U.S. to Pull Combat Unit Out in Spring

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command, in a surprise move, has marked at least one brigade of the 1st Air Cavalry Division for withdrawal from Vietnam in March, informed sources said today.

The decision to pull out a brigade of the veteran combat unit as part of President Nixon's 6th phase cutback apparently reflects Pentagon thinking that the U.S. withdrawal should be accelerated.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said in Paris that all American combat responsibility in Vietnam will end in the fall of 1971 and that troop strength reduction is ahead of amounced objectives.

It has been widely assumed by military officials in Vietnam that the last American units to be withdrawn would be the 1st Air Cavalry Division and the 101st Airborne Division, because of their helicopter mobility.

More Helicopters

The two airmobile divisions each have more than 400 helicopters for use in combat and combat support operations.

The 1st Air Cavalry division, composed of three brigades of about 6,000 men each, are the last full division of American troops in the 3rd military region, which includes the 11 provinces around Saigon.

Until the allied incursions into Cambodia last May, it remained the region of heaviest military activity in South Vietnam. The 1st Cavalry shouldered a major part of the combat responsibility in the past two years.

New Level

The 6th phase pullout is intended to reduce authorized troop strength by 60,000 men on May 1 to a new level of 284,000.

However, because troop pullouts are already running ahead of schedule, it will cut actual strength to about 275,000 men. Actual strength at the end of the 5th phase on Dec. 31 stood at 335,000, about 9,000 ahead of schedule.

The 6th phase cutback also is expected to include most of the 1st Marine Division based at Da Nang and possibly elements of the 101st Airborne and the Americal Division, all based in the northernmost 1st military region.

The U.S. Command would not comment on the troop withdrawal reports. But sources said one reason why the 1st Cavalary was marked for the pullout may be a consideration that more helicopters should be made available sooner to the South Vietnamese air force.

Noncombat Roles

Laird told a news conference that the first phase of the Nixon administration's Vietnamization program will be completed by midsummer. He said after that, American forces will be limited to logistics, air support and security roles.

The defense secretary and Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, stopped in Paris on their way to Bangkok and Saigon for talks on the progress of the war and the withdrawal of U.S. troops.

Laird said Phase Two of the Vietnamization program calls for training and equipping the South Vietnamese forces to take over the logistics and air support missions. He said that this part of the program is ahead of schedule but requires much more time than the first phase.

Laird said that by the end of 1971, the Nixon administration will have reduced U.S. troop commitments in Asia by well over 320,000 men. This includes 265,000 in South Vietnam, 12,000 in Japan, 20,000 in South Korea, 16,000 in Thailand, 5,000 in Okinawa and 6,000 in the Philippines.

Biting Cold Chills Fox Cities

Fox Cities residents were greeted with bitter-cold temperatures this morning just as they got themselves dug out of this week's near-record snowfall.

The Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. reported the season's lowest temperature, minus 13 degrees, about 7 a.m.; however, it was eight degrees warmer than the record low for this date set in 1968. The area also has had a colder chill factor this winter as the wind today hit only about 6 miles per hour.

U.S. Weather Bureau officials at Green Bay predicted the cold spell would last up to two more days but they said the weekend should bring warmer temperatures and more snow. They said Friday-through-Sunday temperatures might hit the low 20s.

Meanwhile, about 16 inches of crunchy snow cover the Fox Cities area, with greater depths where shovels and plows have piled it up. Green Bay weather officials said the cold does help to reduce the snow depth by evaporation, especially with a heavy, wet snow which fell this week.

High of 9

The Fox Cities began slipping into a cold spell Tuesday as temperatures dropped to a high of 9 compared with 32 Sunday. The coldest temperature this season before today's low was 5 below the day after Christmas. Fox Cities residents weren't alone as the bitter-cold numbed nearly the entire nation from the Rockies to the Appalachians, causing more hardship in snow-laden areas of the Plains and a heavy drain on power supplies in the Southwest.

Temperatures dropped well below zero from Nevada, Utah and New Mexico to the central Midwest. Readings in many cases failed to rise above zero throughout Tuesday.

Weekend Storm

Highway crews in Nebraska and Iowa carried into a fourth day their struggle to free roads to drifts from a weekend storm that brought 10 to 20 inches of snow.

The storm and its effects were blamed for 33 deaths in the two states, most from heart attacks while shoveling snow.

Many residential streets in Omaha remained closed, and Public Works Director Gene G. Jordan said it would be Friday before some could be cleared.

In Des Moines, United Air Lines said Tuesday up to 15,000 persons were waiting to fly out, many from a storm-caused backlog built up while airports were closed. The airline said it hoped to clear the backlog today.

Most major highways through Iowa were open, but many secondary roads and city streets remained closed.

Continuing subzero cold caused a heavy drain on power supplies in sections of Utah and New Mexico.

Power Shortage

Albuquerque city officials warned of a potential power shortage, and the city's schools were ordered closed today to conserve electricity.

The temperature fell to 15 below in Albuquerque early Tuesday, the lowest January reading ever recorded there. The cold contracted and snapped power lines and left parts of the city without electricity for nearly two hours.

Demands for natural gas in Utah caused the Mountain Fuel Supply Co. of Salt Lake to cut service when supplies fell short. Salt Lake City schools switched to standby coal or oil heating.

The mercury tumbled to —31 at Randolph, in northeast Utah, early Tuesday, —30 at Bryce Canyon and to —42 at Eagle Nest, N.M.

Near-record cold also clung to Arizona, and citrus industry spokesmen predicted a severe loss.

The cold caused light damage to the Southern California citrus crop and if it persists, agriculture officials said, there might be heavy damage to the avacado crop.

Labor to Fight Antistrike Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor has vowed an all-out fight in Congress against President Nixon's attempt to win a new antistrike law and some other high-priority White House legislation.

"It's going to be a year of legislative fighting," said a spokesman for AFL-CIO President George Meany after Secretary of Labor J.D. Hodgson said the strike bill will have top White House priority.

"We will oppose compulsory arbitration any time, any place," the spokesman for the 13.6-million member labor federation said Tuesday.

Hodgson said the Nixon administration will press for the nation's first new strike law in a quarter century to deal with such "national emergency strikes" in transportation as the recently postponed nationwide railroad walkout. Congress on Dec. 10 passed a special law halting that strike, but it could resume March 1.

Industrial H-Bomb

"Such strikes become something like an industrial H-bomb," Hodgson said.

The Nixon strike bill will be similar to one that got nowhere in Congress last year. It would give the president power to delay strikes up to 110 days, allow partial strikes against an essential industry or set up an impartial board to set a binding settlement.

Hodgson said other major Nixon goals in the new Congress include another try at the family assistance plan for welfare reform, turning most federal job-training programs over to the states; federal revenue sharing with financially strapped cities and states; further efforts to get more job opportunities for Negroes, and an attempt to curb what he called astronomical construction wage increases.

The AFL-CIO opposes some aspects of most of these programs.

"It's going to be a year of clashes with the administration on Capitol Hill," said the AFL-CIO spokesman.

He said labor generally approves Nixon's welfare reform to put a $1,600 floor under all families, including the working poor, but will fight the administration's compromise with the Senate requiring recipients to work at jobs paying as little as $1.20 per hour.

"We are against compelling people to work at substandard jobs at less than the $1.60-per-hour minimum wage," he said.

The labor federation also opposes no-strings-attached federal revenue sharing with cities and states, he said, and demands that any job training bill provide money for public service jobs to put the unemployed to work. Nixon vetoed such a bill, saying he opposes creation of "dead-end" jobs at government expense.

Fight Effort

Both the Meany spokesman and a source in the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department said the unions will fight any effort to curb wage increases without also limiting profits and other forms of income.

Both said the labor movement will cooperate if Nixon imposes federal controls on wages, prices, rents, profits, dividends, and bank interest rates.

Construction union sources hinted however, they could cooperate in working against some excessive wage settlements if Congress would amend the 1938 Landrum-Griffin Act to give national union leaders more control over local unions. Construction is one of the nation's few major industries that bargains largely at the local level.

One construction union source said wages are not as high as they seem because of frequent layoffs due to bad weather and recent federal cutbacks in construction funds. Construction unemployment generally runs about twice the national average, he added.

"Our guys do not negotiate annual salaries. They negotiate an hourly wage and they only get it for the hours they work," he said.

Military in Vietnam Adopts Tough Antidrug Program

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command today unveiled a sweeping new program to combat drug abuse among American forces in Vietnam. It includes search-and-destroy operations with marijuana plants as the target.

A 64-page directive to all field commanders estimated that more than 6,000 GIs were guilty of drug abuse during 1970, including more than 11,000 apprehended or investigated and five times as many who escaped detection.

10 Months

It was the U.S. Command's first public acknowledgment that drugs have become one of its major problems.

The command said that of 9,253 drug violations by American troops during the first 10 months of last year, 7,065 were for use or possession of marijuana, 1,452 for use or possession of such "dangerous" drugs as amphetamine, barbiturates or LSD, and 736 for use or possession of narcotics, mostly heroin or opium.

The Army also has reported that during the first 10½ months of 1970, there were 25 confirmed drug deaths among Americans in Vietnam, another 64 fatalities in which drugs were suspected, and more than 700 hospital cases related to drugs.

The directive from Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, orders his subordinate commanders throughout the country to conduct ground and air search operations to locate marijuana plants, and to "utilize their resources, equipment and personnel in assisting the South Vietnamese government in eradicating the unlawful growing of marijuana," when the eradication work does not interfere with military operations.

Vietnamese Responsibility

The directive adds that while U.S. forces will search for marijuana, "under no circumstances will such fields, once discovered, be destroyed by U.S. forces. The responsibility for destroying these crops rests with the government of South Vietnam."

Although the directive apparently is the first formal statement that destruction of marijuana fields is an objective of U.S. policy, the burning of fields has been carried out in some areas for two years or more.

A great deal of marijuana grows in the grassland provinces of the western Mekong Delta. Some of it is cultivated as a cash crop, especially by members of the Hoa Hao religious sect which dominates areas of Kien Phong, An Giang and neighboring provinces.

The burning of these fields, reportedly at the urging of U.S. officials, has strained relations with the Hoa Hao from time to time, sources in the delta say.

Bounty Paid

A spokesman for the U.S. Command said a bounty of one piaster, less than one U.S. cent, is being paid to the Vietnamese for each marijuana plant destroyed.

Police sources said about 700 Vietnamese were convicted last year for growing, possessing or selling marijuana, while about 1,300 were jailed for LSD or opium offenses. In most cases they got three to six months in jail.

Abrams also directed field commanders to develop drug suppression programs including "identification and reduction of morale and welfare factors which may lead to drug abuse such as idleness, loneliness, anxiety and frustration."

Drug abuse suppression councils are to be formed in each command down to the battalion level. The mission of the councils will be to provide for analysis, evaluation, and monitoring

Lockheed Rejects Settlement Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. rejected today the government's offer to settle its dispute on the controversial C5 transport plane project. The firm said it would seek to recover its losses through litigation.

Lockheed board chairman, Daniel J. Haughton, described the Pentagon's proposal for Lockheed to accept a $200-million "fixed loss" as "an excessive and unwarranted penalty."

Haughton said at a news conference that his company chose to take its case to the courts because "we have a strong legal position which should ultimately result in a finding substantially more favorable than the proposed fixed loss" offered last week by Deputy Secretary of Defense David M. Packard.

Fixed Loss

Under Packard's proposal, the Pentagon offered to settle the tangled dispute if Lockheed would take the $200 million fixed loss. Packard also offered an alternative plan—the route Haughton said Lockheed has chosen to go—which would involve drawn-out litigation.

Although Packard offered two proposals, he said the Pentagon preferred the fixed-loss plan. He estimated that, if Lockheed took its case to court, it stood the chance of possibly winding up with a $25-million profit or running its losses to as high as $460 million.

In a six-page letter to Packard, Haughton said Lockheed, in choosing to go to court, considered several factors, including "the soundness of our legal position ... the inequity of our being required to accept a $200-million fixed loss to resolve all outstanding legal issues and the responsibility we owe to our company and our shareholders."

The chairman said Lockheed, the nation's largest defense contracting firm, probably would first take its case to the Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals and if a favorable decision should not be forthcoming there, would appeal to the U.S. Court of Claims.

He estimated litigation could take a minimum of two years and a maximum of five years to complete.

Demonstrator Files Complaint

John Wayne Denies Peppery Protest

BY BILL STALL
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) —A reported obscenity-spiced confrontation between actor John Wayne and a group of Vietnam war protesters waving Viet Cong flags was being investigated by police today. Wayne denied the incident occurred.

Gregory Kirkwood, 22, filed a complaint with police Tuesday seeking to have Wayne charged with disturbing the peace. Kirkwood said Wayne called him a dirty name.

Kirkwood told a reporter that Wayne became angered when he saw Viet Cong flags held by the protesters outside Memorial Auditorium Monday night after the film star and other top entertainers appeared at a gala marking the second inaugural of Gov. Ronald Reagan, a former actor.

A spokesman for Wayne, 64-year-old star of films dating back decades—many with patriotic war themes—said the actor was advised of reports of the incident and commented: "Mr. Wayne said there is no truth to the rumor or the story."

Kirkwood said he and his friends said nothing to Wayne, who came toward them on spotting the red and blue flag with a yellow star and shouted "What the hell is that?" Kirkwood said Wayne repeated the question, this time using an obscenity.

"He started to come toward us and the police had to step in and restrain him," Kirkwood said. "He should have been arrested. We would have been if we had said those things."

Police said the complaint would be routinely investigated and a report sent to the district attorney's office, which would decide whether a charge should be brought.

Guard Officer

Another witness was Lt. Robert Chapman of the California Army National Guard, a transportation officer on hand in civilian clothes to see that stars of the show—including Jack Benny and Frank Sinatra—got to the airport or to their hotels.

"They started confronting him with obscenities, but at first he didn't say anything," Chapman said in describing Wayne's departure from the auditorium.

"One of the protesters got his attention by very profusely waving a Viet Cong flag at which time he commented—I can't give you a direct quote—he stated to the effect that he didn't like the Viet Cong flag."

Chapman said Wayne and the young demonstrators exchanged remarks, but that he could not hear whether Wayne used obscenities. He added that at one point Wayne "took one step forward to answer a response but there was no show of force toward them."

Casino Network To be Proposed in State of New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — State Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges is prepared to propose establishment of Las Vegas-type gambling casinos across the state in an effort to produce millions in new tax revenues for New York's state and local governments.

The casinos would offer gambling on cards, dice, roulette and similar games and book bets on horse racing and athletic events.

The general outline of the plan was learned from legislative sources, who said it could yield hundreds of millions of dollars in revenue.

Brydges, generally regarded as the most powerful man in the New York Legislature, scheduled an afternoon news conference to announce his proposal.

Since the state Constitution generally forbids gambling — with voter-authorized exceptions for parimutuel horse racing, bingo and the state lottery—a constitutional amendment would be needed to implement the plan.

This means that before it could go into effect it would have to gain the majority approval of two separately elected legislatures and New York voters—1974 at the earliest.

Its prospects for approval by the Republican-ruled legislature would appear bright, because Brydges, of Niagara Falls, commands a wide following in the Senate—both among the GOP and Democrats.

Fate in Assembly

The plan's fate in the Assembly would depend largely upon its reception by Speaker Perry B. Duryea, with whom Brydges enjoys a close working relationship.

A conservative in many areas, Brydges had opposed approval of the state lottery—initiated by Democrats when they controlled the legislature in 1965. He said then that it would only encourage poor people to squander their money.

He also was unenthusiastic about an off-track betting plan enacted for New York City last year at the behest of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Mayor John V. Lindsay.

All the Way

But now, the sources said, Brydges has adopted the philosophy that as long as government is in the gambling business, it might as well go all the way. One objective, the sources said, is to divert into government treasuries the money that organized crime receives through illicit gambling.

Under Brydges' plan, casino operations would be on a local-option basis. They would be run by local governments, but the state would supervise them.

The constiutional amendment would specify that the state and local governments must derive a "reasonable" amount of revenue from the operations.

Formerly 'Dead' Man Wants to Be Resurrected

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Frank J. Wright, 68, a former North Little Rock resident, who was declared legally dead in August 1965, appeared Tuesday in Chancery Court and asked that he be declared alive again.

Wright's attorneys told Chancellor Murray O. Reed they could not find any Arkansas court cases concerning the return of a person who had been declared dead.

Reed told the lawyers to look again and file briefs in 15 days, delaying a ruling.

Wright said he had been living near Ash Fork, Ariz., for the past 20 years.

Wright's ex-wife petitioned in 1965 to have Wright declared dead under a law that says a person who has "absented" himself from the state for seven years "without tidings" may be presumed dead.

Police Have Sniper Suspect in Slaying Of Deputy at Odanah

ASHLAND (AP)—Authorities feel they now have a suspect in the ambush slaying of a deputy sheriff Dec. 7 but are awaiting a State Crime Laboratory report before considering an arrest, Sheriff Joseph Croteau said Tuesday.

The victim, Deputy Walter Gaik, 58, was killed by an apparent shotgun blast as he drove his patrol car on a side road near Odanah on the Bad River Indian Reservation, 10 miles east of Ashland.

Officers believe the killer lay in a fox hole in the snow alongside the road. No spent shells were found, but the sheriff said it had been determined that a vacant house and a stalled truck were hit by shots from a 12-gauge shotgun near the slaying scene. Shells were found in these incidents.

Her son, John, a former Wisconsin state tax commissioner, is dean of the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas in Austin.

Trial of 9 Soviet Jews Postponed

MOSCOW (AP) — The court-martial of a Jewish officer in the Soviet army continued today in Leningrad, but the trial of nine other Jews has been postponed until next week, Jewish sources reported.

The government charges that all took part in the plot to hijack a Soviet airliner to Scandinavia last June so some of the conspirators could emigrate to Israel. Nine Jews and two Gentiles were convicted in the plot on Christmas Eve and face long terms in labor camps.

The informants said a verdict is expected Thursday in the military trial of Lt. Vulf Zalmanson, 31, who is charged with treason and desertion charges. His brother, sister and brother-in-law were among the earlier defendants.

Possible Sentences

Zalmanson could be sentenced to death on the treason charge and seven years in a labor camp for desertion, but it was not known what the prosecution was asking. Sources said that even Zalmanson's father was refused admission to the military trial when it began Tuesday.

Western correspondents have been forbidden to travel to Leningrad for any of the trials, and officials there refused to confirm that the Zalmanson trial had begun.

Relatives of the nine other Jews awaiting trial said court officials told them the hearing was postponed "at least until Monday" because defendant Lev Yagman, 30, was ill. They were given no information except that Yagman had a fever of 100.4 degrees.

L'Humanite, the French Communist party newspaper, reported today that no more Jews will be tried in Leningrad. "According to our permanent correspondent in Russia, Max Leon," the party organ reported, "a well informed source says that rumors spread in recent days in Western circles concerning the preparation of a new trial at Leningrad have no basis."

In Rome, the Italian Communist party said it has intervened on behalf of Jews in the Soviet Union and other East European countries. It said steps were taken with Soviet and other authorities "in the forms that were considered most opportune and efficacious."

Mail Will Cheer Youth in Hospital

MILWAUKEE — It's "mail-call" time again for 20-year-old Gordon Schroeder, youngest patient ever to undergo two triple-bypass vein graft operations.

Schroeder, the son of Mrs. Betty Schroeder, 124 W. Atlantic St., Appleton, is back at St. Luke's Hospital for the treatment of complications arising from his second operation, July 29.

At the time of last summer's surgery, Fox Valley residents buoyed the lad's spirits by sending him hundreds of cards and letters, expressing sympathy and wishing him well.

Now, Gordon says, he would appreciate a similar outpouring of mail.

His address is: Gordon Schroeder, Room 1010-B, St. Luke's Hospital, 2900 W. Oklahoma St., Milwaukee, Wis.

"It really helped," says the plucky youth of the hundreds of pieces of mail that flooded into his room after a brief appeal was published in The Post-Crescent. "It meant a lot to know that the whole Fox Valley was rooting for me."

A straight-A student at the UWGB-Fox Valley campus, Schroeder has managed, despite recurrent heart trouble, to become an Eagle Scout with the Bronze Palm; to become a member of Phi Eta Sigma honor society, and to win the Elks' Club's "most valuable student" award.

He is a member of the "Concerned Hearts Club," and has been working both as part-time switchboard operator at The Post-Crescent, and as a lecturer in the Fox Valley Center's planetarium.

Surveyor Post Action Delayed

Committee Wants More Information On Ponath Ruling

Further legal clarification will be sought before Outagamie County acts to attempt to eliminate the office of county surveyor.

The county board's executive committee agreed Tuesday that it wanted firmer footing before proceeding with a recommendation from acting Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath that the board declare the post vacant.

The committee decided to hold off for a month action on Ponath's recommendation while seeking further information on whether it can abolish the post during a term of office.

The surveyor issue arose when county officials, checking the surveyor law passed in 1969, learned the surveyor was required to replace at least 5 per cent of the corner markers in the county each year and that the cost could run as high as $200 per day.

James Hebert, a registered land surveyor, was elected to the post in November and took office Jan. 1. The only funds provided in the county budget for 1971 covered the $1,500 specified in the law as the minimum salary.

Ponath then was requested to research the law to determine whether the county could abolish the post. He concluded that the county could and suggested a resolution questioning the constitutionality of the surveyor law and seeking to have the state eliminate the post.

Supv. Eugene Kloes, Appleton, agreed. "This man (Hebert) has gone to the post and has been elected," Kloes said. "If we had done this before the election we would have shown good faith. I think we would be open to a suit if we abolish it now."

Combined Locks To Fill 4 Posts

COMBINED LOCKS — A village president and three trustees are to be elected for two-year terms in the April election this year. Interested candidates are to return signed nomination papers by 5 p.m. Jan. 26, according to Village Clerk Mrs. Irene Rehmer.

Incumbent candidates include President Dan Williams and trustees George Bosch, Henry Wulterkens and Gerald Wydeven.

Alderman Claims $1 Million

Champion Denies City Has Surplus

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

An Appleton alderman's claim that the city had "close to $1 million in unappropriated funds" in the bank at the end of 1970 today was flatly denied by Finance Director David Champion.

Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd) made the claim in a newsletter to be circulated among his consitiuents. Asked whether such a surplus existed, Champion replied, "Not in the wildest figment of anybody's imagination."

Mayor George Buckley, meanwhile, challenged Kalata to attend a meeting of the City Council's Finance Committee tonight "and point out exactly where this mythical million is."

Kalata said the funds on Dec. 30 were on deposit with two Appleton banks and he said Treasurer Ray Feuerstein confirmed that the money was on deposit.

Feuerstein said this morning that he told Kalata of the deposits, and added that they are still invested until needed to pay bills. But Feuerstein denied telling Kalata they represent an unappropriated surplus — cash for which no purpose had been assigned by the council.

The treasurer is sole custodian of city funds, but he has no way of knowing whether cash he invests for the city is earmarked for specific purposes or is "unappropriated," as Kalata claims.

The treasurer regularly invests city funds to earn interest until they are spent. His investments earn the city substantial sums each year.

The city's financial authorities pointed out that it is possible for the city to have large amounts of cash in the bank without having a surplus.

LeRoy Seifert, a private accountant whose firm audits the city financial records each year, pointed out that at the end of 1969 the city had $2,759,000 in the bank, yet after all demands on city funds were tallied, the city had a temporary unappropriated deficit of $214,000.

"You can have money in the bank, but you can have deficits," Seifert said. He added that the presence of money in the bank doesn't necessarily mean it isn't appropriated.

The auditor added that Kalata's statement is difficult to

Northeastern Asks FAA Aid in Starting Project at Shawano

The Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission today requested technical assistance from Federal Aviation Agency officials for establishing an aviation and marine instrument repair station and school for its Greensleeves project in Shawano County.

Greensleeves is a proposed housing and economic opportunities development whereby 2,500, or 10 per cent, of Wisconsin's physically handicapped would be provided with reasonable living conditions and employment.

It is hoped Greensleeves can get off the ground in about two years.

The station and school would be only one of several industries which would support the Greensleeves population.

Mrs. Barbara Kennedy, senior housing planner at Northeastern, said that Shawano's able unemployed people would be given an employment opportunity through this project.

First in Nation

FAA officials were enthusiastic about the project, especially the school, because there is none in the nation, Mrs. Kennedy said.

Noting the demand for fully qualified and certified airplane electricians, electronics and instrument mechanics, and radio and avionics technicians, as well as airframe and power plant mechanics, James Ash, a State Department of Transportation aviation official, said:

"It is our opinion that the establishment of an aircraft instrument repair station (shop) and perhaps a school for training of instrument repairmen, would be a project for the handicapped that you have planned at Shawano.

"Wisconsin does not now have a certified instrument repair station and it would certainly be a service to the aviation community in the state."

Personnel Needed

FAA officials outlined to Northeastern planners what technical information and materials they would need. They said that it would be required to have a technically trained person to head the school and another to head the shop if the project were to be certified.

Mrs. Kennedy said the project could include repairing in the fields of aircraft, marine and possibly hospital equipment.

Charles Wright, chief of the maintenance section of the FAA office in Milwaukee, said he anticipated that aviation people would be happy to bring repair needs to the shop if they could be assured of quality and on-time service.

"The aviation people will bring you all the work you can handle," he said.

Northeastern was assured help from the state and from FAA in getting the project going.

Mrs. Kennedy said that she had two private developers who were interested in the project. She also said she had the name of technically trained people who might be interested in heading the project.

She indicated the first step will be to visit other shops in the country and then to try to determine the initial financial commitment which would be necessary.

Burglary Case Meets Delay

Keller Postpones Hearings After Defense Motions

Against angry objections from the district attorney's office, Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller today reset preliminary hearings for three burglary suspects, one who was wounded by police gunfire during a stakeout at Xavier High School Dec. 12.

Keller, calling it a "matter of conscience," changed the hearings for Jan. 26 for Harry Mueller, 28, Madison, and a Combined Locks couple, Irvin Zehren, 40, and his wife Florence, 39, of 500 Hartjes St.

The judge's decision was based on what he believed to be delayed defense motions for dismissal of charges. Attorneys for Mueller and the Zehrens filed the motions, which challenged the sufficiency of the criminal complaints, just minutes before the hearings were to begin at 9 a.m.

Keller gave both attorneys until Monday to file briefs supporting their contentions in the motions. The defense motions questioned the reliability of informants who supplied

Board Authorization

Kimberly May Hold Primary Election

KIMBERLY — The village board Monday night passed a resolution authorizing a primary election on March 2 if more than two candidates are seeking the office of village president or more than six candidates file for the three trustee posts.

President Alvin Fulcer already has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election. He has served for 26 years.

The village previously had no provisions for a primary, but board members felt there may be a large number of persons seeking the top village office.

Two persons already have taken out nomination papers for the post — Eugene Schelfhout, village trustee, school board veteran and mail carrier, and James Siebers, school board president who just made his plans known.

In other action, Fulcer urged board members to make a second review of the village budget in an effort to reduce the deficit of the past two years.

Noting that the deficit remained at about $100,000 at the end of both 1969 and 1970, Fulcer suggested the current budget be broken down into two categories — fixed expenditures over which the board has no control, and village expenditures.

He said that just because the money is in the budget does not mean board members must spend it, and he urged that each such expenditure be carefully reviewed by the trustees.

In areas where they do have control, Fulcer suggested, trustees should determine whether the funds should be spent or the programs or purchases delayed or an alternative solution sought which might be more economical or beneficial to the community.

Fulcer stressed that he felt such review of expenditures should be a constant thing for elected officials.

In his review of major 1970 accomplishments, the president pointed to the new municipal complex and swim lake at Sunset Point Park and said that the extensive use of both facilities indicates that most citizens really felt a need for these improvements.

An ordinance was amended raising interest charges on unpaid special assessments from 6 to 8 per cent, but this involves only future special assessment projects which are paid on the installment plan. The 6 per cent charge continues for existing unpaid balances on special assessments.

The administrative committee was authorized to seek applicants for a position as director of the Sunset Point Park swim lake and supervisor of the recreation department programs.

Board members voted to hold the next regular meeting March 8 rather than March 1, because the clerk-treasurer would be busy on the regular date completing work on tax collection.

Contract Issue Rehashed by County Group

Outagamie County's executive committee started its 1971 season with a rerun Tuesday, repeating its last show of 1970.

The question of the group health insurance contract for county employes, which had been argued by the executive committee at a special meeting Dec. 28, and will be argued again before the entire county board next Tuesday, was rehashed for more than an hour, involving considerable top-of-the lungs oratory by several supervisors.

The controversy started when the personnel subcommittee advertised for group health insurance bids for 1971 and recommended selection of Blue Cross over two lower bids.

County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, Kaukauna, and County Clerk Arthur Hoolihan then signed the contracts with Blue Cross.

Several supervisors, led by Eugene Kloes, a member of the finance committee, charged the personnel committee did not have jurisdiction over the insurance and that the finance

Austin Is 5th Candidate

Oneida Chairman Seeks County Post

Norman Austin, supervisor from the Town of Oneida, has become Outagamie County's fifth declared candidate for the newly created post of county executive.

Austin, 51, announced his candidacy Tuesday afternoon, saying his decision was reached after "consulting with many friends, businessmen and local government leaders who expressed an opinion that the new executive should be a man who is acquainted with all phases of government, both on the administrative and legislative levels."

He said a survey he made "disclosed that the voters who approved creation of a county exective last spring want an executive who will represent all of the people in the county, not an executive who is a member of a minority clique whose ambition is to control county government."

Austin, who has been on the county board since 1961, is chairman of the board's Board of Social Services. He also has been chairman of the Town of Oneida for the past 10 years. Referring to previously announced candidates, Austin said, "the county executive does not have to be an attorney or an accountant. He must use good common sense and have a knowledge of all phases of government. He must be willing to listen instead of dictating."

Austin said the executive "must be humble and not tempermental in his dealings with the public and other public officials."

"I come before the voters of Outagamie County not as an attorney or an accountant, but as a public spirited citizen and public official who wants our county to move forward and not backward."

He cited his budgetary experience as Town of Oneida chairman, saying he annually prepares a true executive budget for submission to the town board and town electors.

Norman Austin

Austin said he believed he could give the voters "the type of leadership they expect and deserve."

He is married and has eight children. He is employed by the Chicago and North Western Railroad.

Previously announced candidates include Appleton Mayor George Buckley, County Administrator Alvin Woehler, Supv. John Schreiter and Kimberly Public Works Director Patrick Flanagan.

Buckley and Woehler are the only two who have formally taken out nomination papers.

Executive candidates need only 20 signatures to qualify them for the ballot. If more than two candidates file by the Jan. 26 deadline a primary will be held in March.

Kaukauna Mayor Says Austerity to Continue

KAUKAUNA — "As we begin 1971 we must remind ourselves anew that the economic outlook still is not good and local government must be ever more alert to a continued austerity program," said Mayor Gilbert Anderson in his state of the city message to aldermen Tuesday night.

"The economic slide which the nation, state and our city experienced in 1970 has carried over into 1971 and although there are some rays of hope that the new year will improve itself," the mayor continued, "we still must insist on using every method possible toward savings of tax dollars."

Pointing to problems of unemployment and increased costs of living resulting in revenue loss to local government and individual taxpayers, he reminded of the state fiscal crisis which could mean loss rather than an increase in state revenue sharing.

He urged aldermen to write their senators in regard to a bill pending which could result in the city sharing in federal aid to the amount of $100,000.

"Education, which takes a great share of our tax dollar, must be constantly reminded that they too must undertake an austerity program and pledge themselves toward elimination of all but basic and fundamental education," said Anderson.

Regarding state and federal government pollution control orders, Anderson felt the city was in fairly good condition with a modern sewerage plant, sanitary landfill site and the continuing sewer separation program. The federal order for tertiary sewage treatment must remain one of the top priorities, he said.

The mayor spoke in favor of continuing the permanent road program, terming it "vital" to progress, but felt other capital improvement programs may

An Appleton Diver took a dip in the Fox River today, in sub-Zero weather, to repair a leaking water main. Virgil Nowak, 715 E. Dennison St., donned wet suit and face mask and waded into a tailrace where water leaving a local industrial plant's hydraulic power system returns to the river. A 6-inch water main serving industries in the "Flats" area off S. Lawe Street had broken. The same main has been broken before, once by workmen repairing a bridge and once by city street crews dumping snow on the main in the shallow water.

Sewer User Fees Face NM Councils

MENASHA — A proposed sewer user fee will be unveiled at a meeting of the common councils of Neenah and Menasha and the Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission at 7 p.m Wednesday, Jan. 13.

The meeting was called by Mayor James Adams and the Menasha common council Tuesday night during discussion of a request for $290,000 from the commission as the city's one-half share of the costs for preparing detailed plans and specifications for sewage plant improvements and addition.

Third Ward Ald. Sumner Parker had just proposed that the council only give them part of the request (he suggested $50,000), and hold back on the rest until the council sees what is done with in, when Adams, City Atty. Richard Stevvens and Parker huddled at the mayor's chair and came out with the idea for the meeting next Wednesday.

Both the proposed sewer user fee and Parker's suggestion will be discussed.

Parker's concern was that the goal for sewerage plant addition and improvements is a facility that will treat 40 million gallons per av (MGD) of raw sewerage. He thinks that may be too much.

Over-designed

Both he and Ald. William Erickson, Parker's Third Ward counterpart, said they felt the plant was being "over-designed."

On Monday night, the Neenah common council delayed action on the request for $290,000 from that city (the commission plans to spend a total of $580,000 on planning in 1971, one-half from each city) to allow Mayor Roman V. Hauser to check into "various methods of financing."

Parker said he didn't want to see more delay in planning funds but that he was "concerned" about immeiate authorization of the entire $290,000.

"I question whether we ought to go full speed ahead," he told aldermen at Tuesday's council meeting, on designs for a 40 MGD plant. On the other hand, he said, "I hesitate to say don't give them the money" because of the need to improve treatment plant operations quickly.

He said by giving the commission only part of its request, the council could request periodic reports from the commissioners on the status of the planning and the criteria (treatment goal) to see "if they (the criteria) can stand the light of day."

Parker said the council could give the commission $50,000 to "start them down the road," but withhold the rest until the council gets reports on design criteria.

Civil Air Patrol Still Searching For Lost Plane

Reports Received of Light Craft Bound For Holland, Mich.

A Civil Air Patrol search picked up today where it left off Tuesday to find a light plane bound for Holland, Mich. . . that never arrived there Sunday.

The plane, a Cessna 172, was piloted by Donald Triplett, 24, and carried his wife, both of Holland. They left Ladysmith in Rusk County at 10:30 a.m Sunday.

Two planes from Outagamie County, and six others from Milwaukee, Iron Mountain and other cities joined in the search suspended at nightfall Tuesday when it met with no success.

Air Patrol based at the Outagamie County Airport, said the eight aircraft aloft concentrated their efforts on the area between Sturgeon Bay and Algoma in Door and Kewaunee counties.

Wooden said search planes from Chippewa Falls, Eagle River, Racine and possibly Superior would join the party today. He said that since the search began Tuesday, about 30 reports of low flying planes received from citizens had been checked out without confirmation.

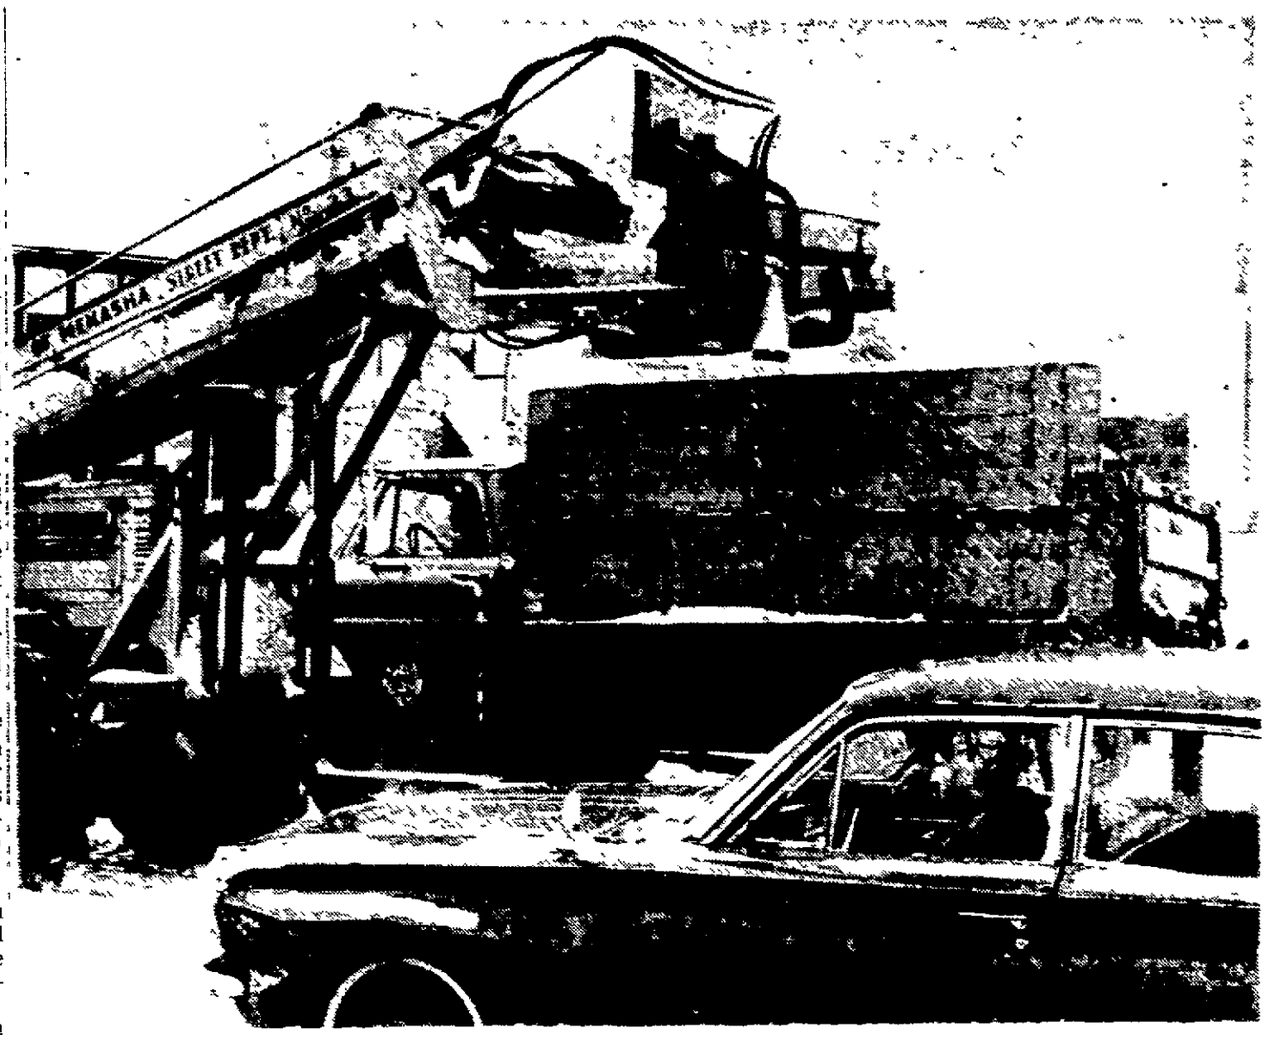

Wooden said Triplett apparently intended to fly north around Lake Michigan but may have changed his plan because of the severe snowstorm. If he had flown south on a straight path between Ladysmith and Holland, Wooden said, the aircraft would have passed almost directly over the Fox Valley.

Triplett did not file a flight plan, the officer said. Wooden said the Civil Air Patrol is looking for a downed plane with a blue body and white wings. Thick snow cover would seriously impair visibilty of such a downed craft from the air, he said.

Wooden said search efforts would likely be concentrated in the Algoma-Sturgeon Bay area again today, because of the number of reports of a low-flying plane. Many of the reports were turned in by persons who reportedly heard something overhead about the same time the Triplett plane would have passed over the area.

The Cessna aircraft Triplett left Ladysmith in has a full range of instruments, according to the officer, but Triplett is not believed to be qualified as an instrument pilot. The only survival equipment on board was a flashlight, Wooden said.

Triplett, and his wife who were visiting in Ladysmith, were lightly garbed, Wooden said. Triplett supposedly had on only a jacket when the couple left Rusk County, and his wife wore a dress.

Winnebago Building Reaches $20 Million

OSHKOSH — Kimberly-Clark Corporation's 12 million research and engineering building in the Town of Menasha raised the total value of county-issued building permits to a record $20.9 million last year.

Without it, building activity would have been $1 million less than in 1969.

Almost the same number of permits were issued, 872, as in 1969 when 871 were issued. Of these, 231 were for single family homes, a slight increase over 1969 and a slight decrease from 1963's 247 single family permits.

The Town of Menasha led in home permits issued, as usual, with 42. This was six less than in 1969 and eight less than in 1968. Twenty-seven permits were issued for the Town of Clayton, 25 for the Town of Algoma, 23 for the Town of Oshkosh, 21 for the Town of Neenah, 15 for the Town of Winneconne, 8 for the Town of Vinland and 6 for the Town of Winchester. The estimated value of all single family home construction was $4.6 million in 1970.

Seven permits for duplexes were issued and three for apartment buildings, two of them in the Town of Menasha and both to Burns and Sengstock.

Big-value permits were issued to the Town of Menasha, $475,000 sewage plant. At Inc., $357,000 mausoleum; Wisconsin Tissue Mills, $200,000 warehouse; Fred Kampo, $150,000 warehouse; Continental Oil Co., $140,000 service station; Donald Utschig, $135,000 food store, and Kimberly-Clark, $90,000 office addition.

The permits generated $16,303 in revenue for the county during the year.

The total valuation of Winnebago County went over the $1 billion mark for the first time last year. That includes the value of incorporated municipalities as well as the towns. The total value of real estate in the towns was $297 million.

Menasha Council OKs Housing Plan

MENASHA — The common council unanimously approved a cooperation agreement with the Menasha Housing Authority (MHA) that now opens the way for application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for a $2.5 million elderly-low-income family housing project.

The next step in the quest for the low-rent housing will come Monday night, when the MHA will probably approve a contract with the Nika Corp., Madison, giving that firm responsibility for preparing applications to HUD and guiding the project through the various technical stages until units are ready for occupancy.

The contract is expected to cost the MHA about $15,000, but all of that money will be reimbursed by HUD when (and if) the project is funded.

170 Units

Nika has told MHA Chairman Gerald Wagner that it could have an application ready to submit to HUD for 170 housing units (150 for elderly persons, 20 for low-income families) by March.

Wagner said today he hopes a Nika representative can be at the meeting Monday, although the authority could still approve signing a contract with the firm. The MHA wants to move as fast as possible and get an application into HUD so that it can qualify for project funding sooner.

The several-page cooperation agreement, approved 11-0, by the council Tuesday, was required before the MHA could submit an application to HUD. It is designed primarily to show that the community will cooperate with the housing authority in carrying out the project.

Among other things, the agreement provides for payment of 10 per cent of the project's rents in lieu of property taxes. It also provides that the housing project must pay special assessments for city services (roads, utilities, etc.) like any other property owner. The original contract from HUD did not include that, but City Atty. Richard Steffen had conferred with HUD officials and had it changed.

Students Plan For Music Convention

The music departments of the Appleton public schools will participate in the Wisconsin School Music Association convention this weekend.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, Appleton High School-East's wind symphony will perform at the general session. The group was selected from 30 other state high school bands from tapes that were submitted to the association last spring.

Students from both AHS-East and West will participate in the evening honors concert. Taking part from East will be Sue Dell, Judy Kurka and Linda Tilly. Performing in the honors orchestra from West will be James Vosper.

Mrs. Evelyn Wilke, orchestra director at East, will serve as one of the coaches for the Wisconsin honors orchestra.

Participating in the honor chorus will be Cindy Harrant, Dave Kloes and Sherry Van Wyk, all from East; and in the honors band, Ruth Bretheim, Bob Buesing and Carol Guithen, also of East. Vicki La Count will represent West in the band.

Marine Bank Spurs Downtown Neenah

NEENAH — The Marine National Bank of Neenah's announcement Tuesday of its intent to build a new bank has been met with a hopeful response that it would provide impetus to both city officials and the downtown business community to get back on the redevelopment track.

City Council President Ald. Harold Young said, "It's encouraging to say the least. I hope it will generate interest and create an atmosphere that is more adaptable to redevelopment."

Mayor Roman V. Hauser calling the bank's intention "a good thing," said, "It should stir the downtown area. It will be completing, to a large degree, that block."

Abbott Byfield, redevelopment authority (Racon) chairman, said, "I'm gratified that the move toward redevelopment is still alive with the bank choosing to go ahead with their plans."

John Galloway, chamber of commerce president, said, "This should be the impetus to attract other specialized retailers to our area. It should help to promote a healthy retail climate."

James Webb, a downtown businessman and a member of the redevelopment authority, cited the bank's announcement "as proof that the potential is here and whatever the city spends is going to be returned in additional tax base. It shows another community redevelopment will be profitable," he said.

Bank President Thomas Prosser, in making the announcement, urged the city to move ahead with plans to improve municipal services and traffic within the downtown area.

Hauser, pleased with the bank's "faith in the downtown community" said, "I think the city should go ahead with the traffic loop system and try to implement it as soon as possible."

The loop system, which was a part of the new defunct redevelopment plan, involved funneling through traffic around the downtown area by using Canal, Walnut and Church streets.

Aldermen Boot Meters In Menasha

MENASHA — No more running to the corner store to get change for the parking meter! At least not for a while.

The common council passed an ordinance Tuesday repealing parking meter regulations in the city, thereby rendering the city's 236 meters unnecessary.

Mayor James Adams said today that as soon as the ordinance goes into effect, the city will take the mechanical part of the meters off the posts so that persons don't mistakenly put money into them.

No Discussion

The vote Tuesday was 9-2. Those voting "no" were Alds. Herbert Bailey and Felix Rodella Jr. There was no discussion.

The idea is to eliminate the meters and see what happens. If it generates more downtown business, cuts down on need for police enforcement of meter regulations and creates no problems, it will stay in effect.

If it doesn't, the mayor said he may come in with new measures (stiff fines, time limits) to make it work. Or the council can re-enact the old parking meter regulations.

Obey Explains

Farm Bill Allows Payment For Milk Ordered Dumped

The omnibus farm bill passed by Congress early in November continues a program to indemnify dairy farmers for milk they are required by the government to dump because it is contaminated with pesticides.

Under this program begun in 1964 dairy farmers can qualify for these payments only if their milk is contaminated with pesticides which have been approved for use by the federal government and only if it was found that these pesticides had been properly used.

So far about 400 farmers in over 30 states have benefitted from this program, according to Rep. David R. Obey in his weekly newsletter.

In addition to continuing the program for farmers, the general farm bill extended the indemnification program — for the first time — to dairy manufacturers as well he noted.

"I proposed such a program in a bill I introduced with 10 other Congressmen last year, and I fully support its being included as part of our general farm programs," he said. "Just as the problem of pesticides can cause severe financial hardship if not rum for the farmer, it can do the same to the cheesemaker or creamery which unsuspectingly uses contaminated milk and consequently has its products removed from the market. In fact, at least two such instances have occurred in Wisconsin in the past year.

I have made it clear during my 9 years in the state legislature and in Congress that I believe we must take steps to halt the use of persistent pesticides. I have authored legislation to ban DDT and other chlorinated hydrocarbons.

"Unfortunately neither the Congress nor the U. S. Department of Agriculture has acted to prohibit the use of these hard pesticides. As long as this is true, I believe we have an obligation to protect innocent persons who through no fault of their own become the victims of the use of these compounds.

"While funds for the indemnification program for farmers were provided in the agriculture budget for 1971, no such funds were available for indemnification for dairy manufacturers. Fortunately, however, an amendment I proposed in the House Appropriations Committee — to provide $300,000 to fund this program — was adopted by that Committee and later by the full House of Representatives. It was also accepted by the Senate and was part of an appropriations bill recently sent to the President for his signature."

"It may be that none of this money will ever be needed and spent," Obey concluded, "but now we know that 'insurance' is available if a farmer or manufacturer becomes the victim of irresponsible pesticide use."

Your Money's Worth

Current Recession Rated as a Mild One

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Assuming that the recession of 1969-71 is bottoming out in this, its 14th month, it will go down in history as the mildest of the five business downturns of the post-World War II era.

If your business has failed in recent months or if you are now being pushed into bankruptcy, this judgment may make you even more bitter than you already are about the U.S. economy in the first half of the Nixon Administration. And you, of all people, would have a point, for in terms of business failures, this has been a serious slump. The 105.28 per cent upsurge in business failures since the economy turned down in November, 1969 is the worst of the five recessions.

Or, if you have lost your job or been put on a part-time shift,

you too may wince at this objective comment, for to you, being unemployed at a time of rapidly climbing prices is far more than a recession. It's a disaster, a nightmare. But, nevertheless, in terms of the unemployment record, this recession to date ranks as next to the mildest.

The following statistics, never before published, tell this tale more clearly than any of my words could. The 1969-71 recession is compared with the previous postwar recessions of May, 1960-February, 1961; July, 1957-April, 1958; July, 1953-August, 1954; November, 1948-October, 1949. Count from No. 1, which stands for "mildest."

Index	Recession's Rank
Nonfarm employment	1
Unemployment rate	2
Industrial production	3
Personal income	1
Real personal income	2
Retail sales	1
Real retail sales	2
Manu.-trade sales	1
Real manu.-trade sales	2
GNP current	1
GNP real	1
After-tax profits	1
Business failures	5
Housing starts	2

Now where do we go from here? For several weeks, the economy will continue to be distorted by the catchup from the General Motors strike and stockpiling of steel in anticipation of a possible steel strike this summer. But the developing recovery is based on far sturdier forces than these temporary stimulants.

Interest Rates Down

First, extremely powerful recession antidotes are now being administered by the White House and the Federal Reserve System. Money is being poured into the banking system: interest rates have fallen well below their '70 peaks.

Tight money helped bring about the 1969-71 recession and stock market crash; easier money is helping to bring about the recovery and stock market rebound.

Housing is bouncing back under the spurs of easier, cheaper money and great pent-up demands. This industry alone will be a tremendously important anti-recession influence.

Spending at all levels of government — local, state and federal — is strongly contributing to expansion now.

And the very fact that the recession has remained so mild for so long a period — at 14 months, it's the longest of all the recessions — is a factor in favor of its very early end.

Do not forget this recession was deliberately created by government policy; there was nothing accidental about it at all. As it was created so it can be ended.

In fact, it well may already have ended, even though it will take time to brighten the unemployment picture.

Discovery of Stoa Ignites Interest

Socrates Was Unjustly Accused, Modern Greek Prosecutor Believes

By CHRIS ELIOU
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, (AP) — Socrates is making news again in Athens, 2,369 years after he drank the poison hemlock.

The recent discovery of the "Royal Stoa", the site where the great philosopher was indicted, has been followed by a new reconstruction and critical examination of the trial. A noted Athens high court judge and historian, Ioannis Zeginis, says Socrates was the victim of "unjust indictment" and one of ancient Greece's "greater miscarriages of justice."

Zeginis, a prosecutor of the Athens Appeals Court, reviewed the legal aspects of Socrates' trial in the course of a lecture before a distinguished crowd of lawmakers, journalists and university professors.

Public Opinion

The one-day trial, he said, was staged at a time when the climate of public opinion had been affected by the defeat of Athens in a war against Sparta and by the political passions cultivated by the Sophists, a philosophical movement to which Socrates was popularly but erroneously thought to belong.

Zeginis charges that ancient playwright Aristophanes also prejudiced the hearings by depicting Socrates as an atheist in his celebrated play "The Clouds".

The indictment was leveled against Socrates by three Athenian citizens, the poet Melitos, the tanner Anitos and the orator Lykon. They charged the philosopher with disrespect for the gods and corruption of youth.

Imprecise Charge

The charge was imprecise, Zeginis said, since it mentioned no specific instances. Also, he said, there was doubt whether the ancient Greek penal law recognized the offense of corruption of youth, and this additional charge was probably tacked on to make his position graver in court.

There was no court prosecutor, Socrates had no defense counsel and there were neither prosecution or defense witnesses.

Procedure for assessment of sentence at that time was for the accuser to propose one penalty, the condemned another, and the judges to decide at a final verdict.

Socrates' three accusers asked for death. Socrates' proposal was that he should be given a public pension in recognition of his services to the city of Athens.

Judges Angered

"This infuriated the judges," Zeginis said, "and thus in the second balloting, those who sided with him in the first vote moved into the opposite camp."

Socrates himself contributed to the "miscarriage of justice," he said, by replying in the affirmative when asked if he was guilty of the charge, and by failure to invoke his poverty and his three children as mitigation or in support of a plea for leniency.

Between pronouncement of death and execution, his pupils pleaded with him to flee to another city, "but rather than prove inconsistent to his own teachings, that a citizen must obey the law, he chose the hemlock," Zeginis added.

Investigation Directed In Sentencing Former W. A. Close Salesman

A presentence investigation was directed Tuesday for a former clothing salesman who changed his plea on a theft charge to guilty.

Circuit Court Judge Andrew W. Parnell set no date for sentencing James Wallace, 20, 437½ First St., Menasha. Wallace was freed on a previously set $1,000 signature bond.

Parnell found Wallace guilty of the theft of between $800 and $900 from the W. A. Close store, 200 E. College Ave., where he worked for over a year. Detectives said that Wallace pocketed the money from sales made to customers between April and Nov. 4 of 1970. He had worked there since September of 1969.

Sewer User Fees Face NM Councils

MENASHA — A proposed sewer user fee will be unveiled at a meeting of the common councils of Neenah and Menasha and the Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 13.

The meeting was called by Mayor James Adams and the Menasha common council Tuesday night during discussion of a request for $290,000 from the commission as the city's one-half share of the costs for preparing detailed plans and specifications for sewage plant improvements and addition.

Third Ward Ald. Sumner Parker had just proposed that the council only give them part of the request (he suggested $50,000), and hold back on the rest until the council sees what is done with in, when Adams, City Atty. Richard Stevvens and Parker huddled at the mayor's chair and came out with the idea for the meeting next Wednesday.

Both the proposed sewer user fee and Parker's suggestion will be discussed.

Parker's concern was that the goal for sewerage plant addition and improvements is a facility that will treat 40 million gallons per av (MGD) of raw sewerage. He thinks that may be too much.

Over-designed

Both he and Ald. William Erickson, Parker's Third Ward counterpart, said they felt the plant was being "over-designed."

On Monday night, the Neenah common council delayed action on the request for $290,000 from that city (the commission plans to spend a total of $580,000 on planning in 1971, one-half from each city) to allow Mayor Roman V. Hauser to check into "various methods of financing."

Parker said he didn't want to see more delay in planning funds but that he was "concerned" about immeiate authorization of the entire $290,000.

"I question whether we ought to go full speed ahead," he told aldermen at Tuesday's council meeting, on designs for a 40 MGD plant. On the other hand, he said, "I hesitate to say don't give them the money" because of the need to improve treatment plant operations quickly.

He said by giving the commission only part of its request, the council could request periodic reports from the commissioners on the status of the planning and the criteria (treatment goal) to see "if they (the criteria) can stand the light of day."

Parker said the council could give the commission $50,000 to "start them down the road," but withhold the rest until the council gets reports on design criteria.

Civil Air Patrol Still Searching For Lost Plane

Reports Received of Light Craft Bound For Holland, Mich.

A Civil Air Patrol search picked up today where it left off Tuesday to find a light plane bound for Holland, Mich. . . that never arrived there Sunday.

The plane, a Cessna 172, was piloted by Donald Triplett, 24, and carried his wife, both of Holland. They left Ladysmith in Rusk County at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Two planes from Outagamie County, and six others from Milwaukee, Iron Mountain and other cities joined in the search suspended at nightfall Tuesday when it met with no success.

Air Patrol based at the Outagamie County Airport, said the eight aircraft aloft concentrated their efforts on the area between Sturgeon Bay and Algoma in Door and Kewaunee counties.

Wooden said search planes from Chippewa Falls, Eagle River, Racine and possibly Superior would join the party today. He said that since the search began Tuesday, about 30 reports of low flying planes received from citizens had been checked out without confirmation.

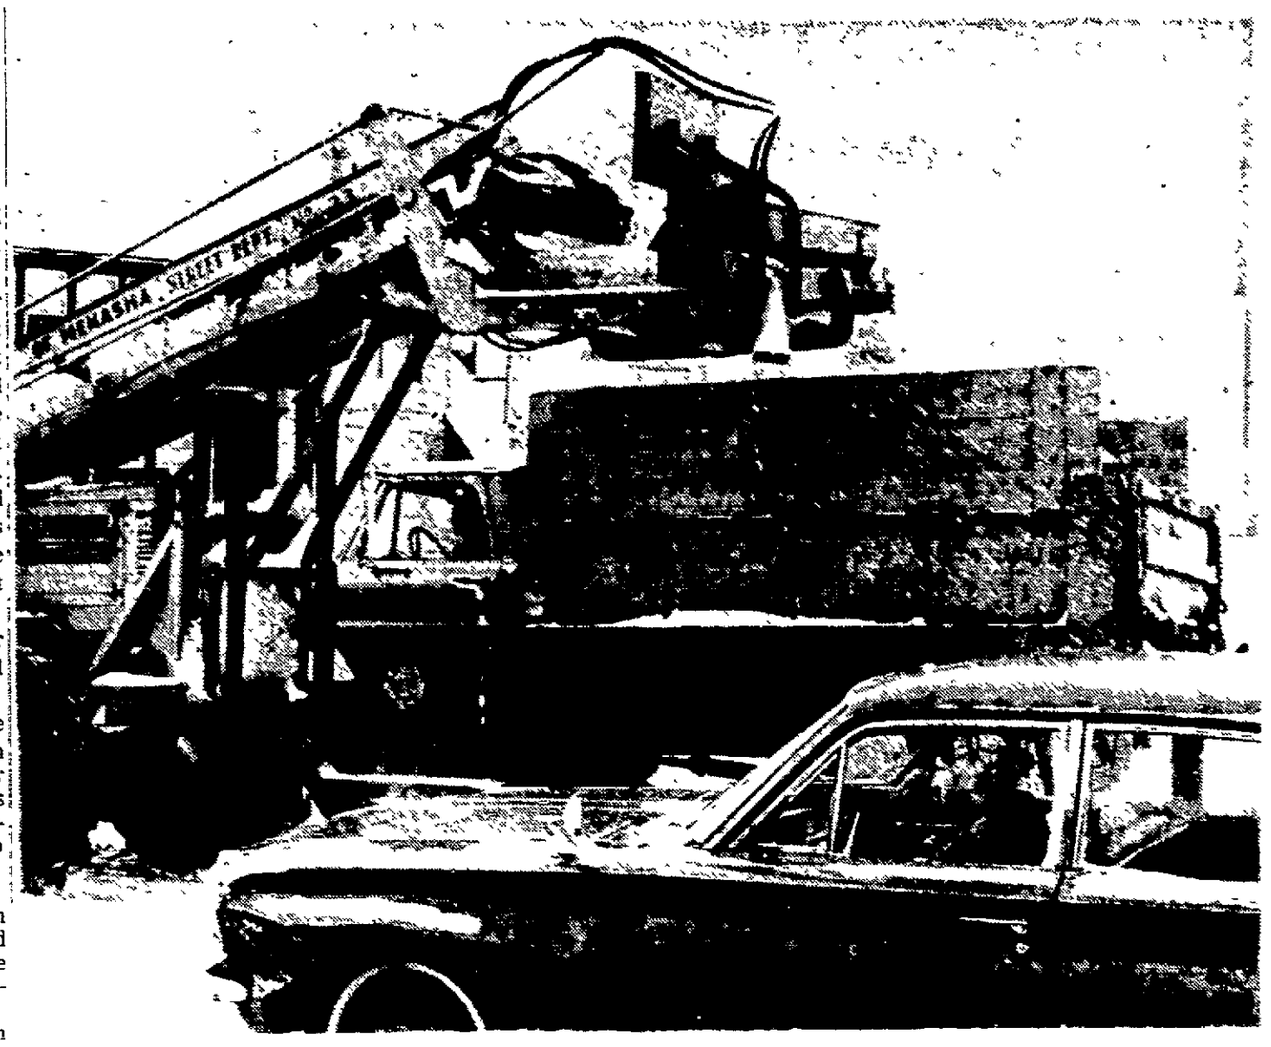

Wooden said Triplett apparently intended to fly north around Lake Michigan but may have changed his plan because of the severe snowstorm. If he had flown south on a straight path between Ladysmith and Holland, Wooden said, the aircraft would have passed almost directly over the Fox Valley.

Triplett did not file a flight plan, the officer said. Wooden said the Civil Air Patrol is looking for a downed plane with a blue body and white wings. Thick snow cover would seriously impair visibility of such a downed craft from the air, he said.

Wooden said search efforts would likely be concentrated in the Algoma-Sturgeon Bay area again today, because of the number of reports of a low-flying plane. Many of the reports were turned in by persons who reportedly heard something overhead about the same time the Triplett plane would have passed over the area.

The Cessna aircraft Triplett left Ladysmith in has a full range of instruments, according to the officer, but Triplett is not believed to be qualified as an instrument pilot. The only survival equipment on board was a flashlight, Wooden said.

Triplett, and his wife, who were visiting in Ladysmith, were lightly garbed, Wooden said. Triplett supposedly had on only a jacket when the couple left Rusk County, and his wife wore a dress.

Winnebago Building Reaches $20 Million

OSHKOSH — Kimberly-Clark Corporation's 12 million research and engineering building in the Town of Menasha raised the total value of county-issued building permits to a record $20.9 million last year.

Without it, building activity would have been $1 million less than in 1969.

Almost the same number of permits were issued, 872, as in 1969 when 871 were issued. Of these, 231 were for single family homes, a slight increase over 1969 and a slight decrease from 1968's 247 single family permits.

The Town of Menasha led in home permits issued, as usual, with 42. This was six less than in 1969 and eight less than in 1968. Twenty-seven permits were issued for the Town of Clayton, 25 for the Town of Algoma, 23 for the Town of Oshkosh, 21 for the Town of Neenah, 15 for the Town of Winneconne, 8 for the Town of Vinland and 6 for the Town of Winchester. The estimated value of all single family home construction was $4.6 million in 1970.

Seven permits for duplexes were issued and three for apartment buildings, two of them in the Town of Menasha and both to Burns and Sengstock.

Big-value permits were issued to the Town of Menasha, $475,000 sewage plant; At Inc., $357,000 mausoleum; Wisconsin Tissue Mills, $200,000 warehouse; Fred Kampo, $150,000 warehouse; Continental Oil Co., $140,000 service station; Donald Utschig, $135,000 food store, and Kimberly-Clark, $90,000 office addition.

The permits generated $16,303 in revenue for the county during the year.

The total valuation of Winnebago County went over the $1 billion mark for the first time last year. That includes the value of incorporated municipalities as well as the towns. The total value of real estate in the towns was $297 million.

Menasha Council OKs Housing Plan

MENASHA — The common council unanimously approved a cooperation agreement with the Menasha Housing Authority (MHA) that now opens the way for application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for a $2.5 million elderly-low-income family housing project.

The next step in the quest for the low-rent housing will come Monday night, when the MHA will probably approve a contract with the Nika Corp., Madison, giving that firm responsibility for preparing applications to HUD and guiding the project through the various technical stages until units are ready for occupancy.

The contract is expected to cost the MHA about $15,000, but all of that money will be reimbursed by HUD when (and if) the project is funded.

170 Units

Nika has told MHA Chairman Gerald Wagner that it could have an application ready to submit to HUD for 170 housing units (150 for elderly persons, 20 for low-income families) by March.

Wagner said today he hopes a Nika representative can be at the meeting Monday, although the authority could still approve signing a contract with the firm. The MHA wants to move as fast as possible and get an application into HUD so that it can qualify for project funding sooner.

The several-page cooperation agreement, approved 11-0, by the council Tuesday, was required before the MHA could submit an application to HUD. It is designed primarily to show that the community will cooperate with the housing authority in carrying out the project.

Among other things, the agreement provides for payment of 10 per cent of the project's rents in lieu of property taxes. It also provides that the housing project must pay special assessments for city services (roads, utilities, etc.) like any other property owner. The original contract from HUD did not include that, but City Atty. Richard Steffen had conferred with HUD officials and had it changed.

Farm Bill Allows Payment For Milk Ordered Dumped

The ominous farm bill passed by Congress early in November contained a program to indemnify dairy farmers for milk they are required by the government to dump because it is contaminated with pesticides.

Under this program, begun in 1964, dairy farmers can qualify for these payments only if their milk is contaminated with pesticides which have been approved for use by the federal government, and only if it was found that these pesticides had been properly used.

So far about 400 farmers in over 20 states have benefitted from this program, according to Rep. David R. Obey in his weekly newsletter.

In addition to continuing the program for farmers, the general farm bill extended the indemnification program — for the first time — to dairy manufacturers as well he noted. "I proposed such a program in a bill I introduced with 10 other Congressmen last year, and I fully support its being included as part of our general farm programs," he said. "While funds for the indemnification program for farmers were provided in the agriculture budget for 1971, no such funds were available for indemnification for dairy manufacturers. Fortunately, however, an amendment I proposed in the House Appropriations Committee — to provide $300,000 to fund this program — was adopted by that Committee and later by the full House of Representatives. It was also accepted by the Senate and was part of an appropriations bill recently sent to the President for his signature."

"It may be that none of this money will ever be needed and spent," Obey concluded, but now we know that 'insurance' is available if a farmer or manufacturer becomes the victim of irresponsible pesticide use."

Your Money's Worth

Current Recession Rated as a Mild One

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Assuming that the recession of 1969-71 is bottoming out in this, its 14th month, it will go down in history as the mildest of the five business downturns of the post-World War II era.

If your business has failed in recent months or if you are now being pushed into bankruptcy, this judgment may make you even more bitter than you already are about the U.S. economy in the first half of the Nixon Administration. And you, of all people, would have a point, for in terms of business failures, this has been a serious slump. The 105.28 per cent upsurge in business failures since the economy turned down in November, 1969 is the worst of the five recessions.

Or, if you have lost your job or been put on a part-time shift,

Porter

you too may wince at this objective comment, for to you, being unemployed at a time of rapidly climbing prices is far more than a recession. It's a disaster, a nightmare. But, nevertheless, in terms of the unemployment record, this recession to date ranks as next to the mildest.

The following statistics, never before published, tell this tale more clearly than any of my words could. The 1969-71 recession is compared with the previous postwar recessions of May, 1960-February, 1961; July, 1957-April, 1958; July, 1953-August, 1954; November, 1948-October, 1949. Count from No. 1, which stands for "mildest."

Index	Recession's Rank
Nonfarm employment	1
Unemployment rate	2
Industrial production	3
Personal income	1
Real personal income	2
Retail sales	1
Real retail sales	2
Manu.-trade sales	1
Real manu.-trade sales	2
GNP current	1
GNP real	1
After-tax profits	1
Business failures	5
Housing starts	2

Now where do we go from here? For several weeks, the economy will continue to be distorted by the catchup from the General Motors strike and stockpiling of steel in anticipation of a possible steel strike this summer. But the developing recovery is based on far sturdier forces than these temporary stimulants.

Interest Rates Down

First, extremely powerful recession antidotes are now being administered by the White House and the Federal Reserve System. Money is being poured into the banking system; interest rates have fallen well below their '70 peaks.

Tight money helped bring about the 1969-71 recession and stock market crash; easier money is helping to bring about the recovery and stock market rebound.

Housing is bouncing back under the spurs of easier, cheaper money and great pent-up demands. This industry alone will be a tremendously important anti-recession influence.

Spending at all levels of government — local, state and federal — is strongly contributing to expansion now.

And the very fact that the recession has remained so mild for so long a period — at 14 months, it's the longest of all the recessions — is a factor in favor of its very early end.

Do not forget this recession was deliberately created by government policy; there was nothing accidental about it at all. As it was created so it can be ended.

In fact, it well may already have ended, even though it will take time to brighten the unemployment picture.

Socrates Was Unjustly Accused, Modern Greek Prosecutor Believes

By CHRIS ELIOU
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, (AP) — Socrates is making news again in Athens, 2,369 years after he drank the poison hemlock.

The recent discovery of the "Royal Stoa", the site where the great philosopher was indicted, has been followed by a new reconstruction and critical examination of the trial. A noted Athens high court judge and historian, Ioannis Zeginis, says Socrates was the victim of "unjust indictment" and one of ancient Greece's "greater miscarriages of justice."

Zeginis, a prosecutor of the Athens Appeals Court, reviewed the legal aspects of Socrates' trial in the course of a lecture before a distinguished crowd of lawmakers, journalists and university professors.

Public Opinion

The one-day trial, he said, was staged at a time when the climate of public opinion had been affected by the defeat of Athens in a war against Sparta and by the political passions cultivated by the Sophists, a philosophical movement to which Socrates was popularly but erroneously thought to belong.

Zeginis charges that ancient playwright Aristophanes also prejudiced the hearings by depicting Socrates as an atheist in his celebrated play "The Clouds".

The indictment was leveled against Socrates by three Athenian citizens, the poet Melitos, the tanner Anitos and the orator Lykon. They charged the philosopher with disrespect for the gods and corruption of youth.

Imprecise Charge

The charge was imprecise, Zeginis said, since it mentioned no specific instances. Also, he said, there was doubt whether the ancient Greek penal law recognized the offense of corruption of youth, and this additional charge was probably tacked on to make his position graver in court.

There was no court prosecutor, Socrates had no defense counsel and there were neither prosecution or defense witnesses.

Procedure for assessment of sentence at that time was for the accuser to propose one penalty, the condemned another, and the judges to decide at a final verdict.

Socrates' three accusers asked for death. Socrates' proposal was that he should be given a public pension in recognition of his services to the city of Athens.

Judges Angered

"This infuriated the judges," Zeginis said, "and thus in the second balloting, those who sided with him in the first vote moved into the opposite camp."

Socrates himself contributed to the "miscarriage of justice," he said, by replying in the affirmative when asked if he was guilty of the charge, and by failure to invoke his poverty and his three children as mitigation or in support of a plea for leniency.

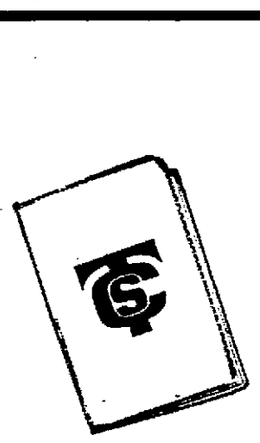

Between pronouncement of death and execution, his pupils pleaded with him to flee to another city, "but rather than prove inconsistent to his own teachings, that a citizen must obey the law, he chose the hemlock," Zeginis added.

Investigation Directed In Sentencing Former W. A. Close Salesman

A presentence investigation was directed Tuesday for a former clothing salesman who changed his plea on a theft charge to guilty.

Circuit Court Judge Andrew W. Parnell set no date for sentencing James Wallace, 20, 437½ First St., Menasha. Wallace was freed on a previously set $1,000 signature bond.

Parnell found Wallace guilty of the theft of between $800 and $900 from the W. A. Close store, 200 E. College Ave., where he worked for over a year. Detectives said that Wallace pocketed the money from sales made to customers between April and Nov. 4 of 1970. He had worked there since September of 1969.

Legislative Work Begins

Committee Appointments Announced for Assembly

MADISON (AP) — Assembly Speaker Robert T. Huber, D-West Allis, wasted little time implementing standing committee assignments Tuesday.

He said all positions on the 20 panels have been filled.

The action clears the way for committees to begin sifting through proposed legislation in preparation for the opening of the regular 1971 session debate Jan. 19.

Huber said he has authority by resolution to pass new bills along to the respective committees as soon as they cross his desk.

Bound to have a heavy bearing on expected legislation is Finance Committee, headed by veteran Rep. George Molinaro, D-Kenosha.

Overshadowing much of the other business because of the state's budgetary crisis, the committee will play a vital role in establishing the relationship between Gov. Patrick J. Lucey and the Assembly.

Key Committees

Other key committees, Huber said, include the Natural Resources unit and the panel for Commerce and Consumer Affairs.

The former is led by Janesville Democrat Lewis Mittness, while Harout Sanasarian, D-Milwaukee, is chairman of Commerce and Consumer Affairs.

Joining Molinaro on the Finance Committee are six Democrats and two Republicans.

Huber said he re-appointed Rep. Merrill Stalbaum, R-Waterford, to the committee at the request of Republican fiscal conservatives. Also on the influential panel is Rep. Byron Wackett, a Watertown Republican.

Two of the committee's most influential members in the 1969 session were Rep. Kenneth Merkel and Rep. John Shabaz, both Republicans. Neither was reappointed.

Four Democrats

Democrats, controlling the lower house for the first time since 1965, made committee assignments in accord with what Huber called a ratio that reflects his party's 67-33 Assembly majority over the GOP.

Beside ruling the Finance Committee 7-2, Democrats will control the influential Judiciary Committee 8-3.

Rep. Harold Froehlich, the Republican speaker for two sessions until his party lost control of the house, was assigned only to the Rules Committee.

Froehlich did not openly seek committee assignments for himself.

Gervase Hephner, Chilton Democrat, landed two vice chairmanships—taxation and agriculture committees—and was named to the excise and fees committee.

Another Democrat, William Rogers, Kaukauna, was named vice chairman of the health and social services committee, and member of the highways and municipalities committees.

Other area representatives and their appointments include:

Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton, highways and excise and fees; Michael Ellis, R-Neenah, taxation; Bert Grover, D-Shawano, education vice chairmanship, state affairs, and rules; Francis Byers, R-Marion, natural resources and environmental quality; Gordon Bradley, R-Omro, Natural Resources.

Prof. James D. Ghiardi of Milwaukee, president of the State Bar of Wisconsin, will address a five-county area bar meeting Tuesday at the Left

Ghiardi

Guard Charcoal House, Appleton.

Lawyers and judges from Outagamie, Winnebago, Calumet, Shawano and Waupaca counties will attend the meeting. Members of the State Bar staff from Madison, along with several members of the association's board of governors representing the five counties, will also be in attendance.

Ghiardi has been professor of law at Marquette University Law School since 1946 and is also research director of the Defense Research Institute, Milwaukee. He received his law degree from Marquette in 1942. Ghiardi will serve as State Bar president until the association's annual meeting next June.

The program will open at 5:15 p.m. with a social period before dinner. Atty. John Wylie of Appleton is arrangements chairman.

Cost Cutting Suggestions

Lucey Getting Plenty of Advice

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin residents are letting their new governor know how they feel about spending.

The chief executive, Patrick J. Lucey, asked for it.

He issued a plea for money-saving suggestions while conducting budget hearings last month on $2.2 billion in spending proposals by state agencies for the 1971-73 fiscal biennium.

So far, the governor's office has been deluged with more than 1,000 letters, most of them from taxpayers.

More suggestions are arriving every day, Richard Weening, the governor's executive secretary, said.

The letters—some irate, most constructive—cover a wide range of subjects from taxes to fluoride in drinking water.

Many writers want to see higher taxes levied on what they consider luxury items.

An Oshkosh resident suggested excise or luxury taxes on snowmobiles and color television sets. A Milwaukee taxpayer wrote that freeway expansion in Milwaukee County should be scrapped.

"Let's cut out the frills and pork barrel projects," a Jefferson letter write said.

One letter contained $2 and a wish from a Marinette girl, Tracy Krapohl, that the governor use funds to combat pollution.

"The money is not much, but as I figure it, every little bit counts," Tracy said, adding that the $2 was collected in a door-to-door solicitation.

A Madison man was upset about fluoride in drinking water. He suggested cutting out the additive would save money.

"In 20 years," he maintained, we may find that fluorides hold the same position as a polluter as DDT and mercury."

One of the longest letters, a nine-page epistle and handwritten in pencil, came from a rural Gillett couple.

Many writers asked for a thorough review of current state spending projects before embarking on any new programs.

A Green Bay taxpayer suggested a 10 per cent across-the-board reduction in department budget requests.

Another Green Bay resident, a professor at Green Bay's University of Wisconsin campus, wrote: "I wonder how many programs initiated in the past 10 years would survive budgetary scrutiny today in light of the state's financial situation?"

He figured there would be few.

Writers also were concerned about rising unemployment and welfare costs.

A Shullsburg man suggested the Department of Natural Resources put unemployed persons to work beautifying state parks.

He also recommended all contracts signed for state highway construction projects require 10 per cent of the work force to come from ranks of Wisconsin's unemployed.

When Lucey issued the call for citizen suggestions, he cautioned he might not be able to implement all of the proposals.

Finance Committee to Get Bonding Proposals

Recommendations for bonding for the proposed safety building and consolidation of short-term notes are expected to be submitted to the Outagamie County Board's finance committee next Monday with bonding approval to be sought from the board in February.

County Administrator Alvin Woehler told the board's executive committee Tuesday that bank officials are preparing bonding information for the finance committee for presentation Monday.

Supv. Jerome Hiler, Appleton, chairman of the special building committee handling the safety building, said the bank officials had indicated that February would be the most advantageous time for the county to bond.

The bond issue will total about $3.7 million, to include the safety building, some remodeling of the existing courthouse, the Plamann School addition, highway department office building, parking space acquisition at the courthouse and consolidation of four short term notes covering various airport construction projects.

Construction cost of the safety building, excluding architectural and engineering costs, is still estimated at $1.75 million, Hiler told the executive committee.

Working plans on the building are now being prepared by Sauter Seaborne Duzek and Paynter, architects, for approval by the State Industrial Commission. An April bidding date is the goal.

County House Fires Took 8 Lives in 1970

House fires took eight lives in Outagamie County in 1970 — a record high, Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said in his annual report released today.

One death was ruled justifiable homicide, while eighteen persons persons lost their lives on county roads. Two of the traffic accident victims had been driving snowmobiles.

Five members of a Kaukauna family died Jan. 11 when their home burned. Two men died Feb. 2 when fire swept through their rural Black Creek home. Another man died Aug. 12 of burns received in a July 25 Town of Greenville gunshop and house fire. Additionally, a 6-year-old Appleton girl died of burns when her clothing caught fire.

The previous record for house fire deaths was six, set in October of 1960, when a mother and five children perished as their Appleton home caught fire. In December of 1958, six members of another Kaukauna family died in a house fire.

Role of Alcohol

Alcohol continued to play its role in fatal traffic accidents. Eight, or 44.4 per cent of last year's victims had been drinking. This compares to 56.8 per cent in 1969, when 17 persons were killed in the county.

Of the eight drivers killed in 1970, four had alcohol in their blood. Three drivers showed alcohol blood level reading above .15, which is legal evidence of intoxication in Wisconsin. Two readings were .29, the other .17. The lone pedestrian victim tested .33.

The two snowmobile fatalities were the first to be recorded in Outagamie County, according to Kemps.

Snowmobile Deaths

An 18-year-old route 2, Hortonville youth died six days after being struck Feb. 21 on U. S. 45, when he drove his snowmobile into the path of an auto in the Town of Hortonia. A similar accident claimed the life of an Appleton man Dec. 20 on County Trunk A in the Town of Center.

In his report, Kemps appeals for stricter snowmobile regulations to protect drivers and passengers.

Other informations in the 1970 annual report shows that 10 persons took their own lives, and that three fatal industrial accidents were investigated, one more than in 1969.

Two inquests were held, according to the report, and 35 post-mortem examinations were authorized. The coroner's office investigated 173 deaths in all, two less than the record year, 1969.

Four Kaukauna Men Announce For Alderman

KAUKAUNA — Four candidates took out nomination papers for aldermanic positions to be filled in the April election on the first day papers were available, according to City Clerk Karl E. Mersabl.

Henry Wildenberg, 927 Wilson St., a project engineer at Badger Northland Inc., began circulating papers for 2nd Ward alderman. The term of Richard Gerrits is to expire. This will be Wildenberg's first try for office.

Two candidates took out papers for 4th Ward alderman where the term of Russel Dix expires. They are R. Clayton Van Dyke, 312 E. 13th St., owner and manager of a local theater and currently county board member from that ward, and Michael A. Swiontek, 506 E. 9th St., a chemical engineer at The Institute of Paper Chemistry, Appleton. Van Dyke has run

Lawrence Offers 3-Session Presidential Election Study

A three-session luncheon program on "The Presidential Selection Process" will be presented starting Jan. 25 by the Lawrence University Alumni Association's continuing education committee.

The course will be directed by Lawrence D. Longley, assistant professor of government at Lawrence. Reservations are due by Jan. 18.

Longley has centered the sessions on one of his specialties, the politics of electoral college reform. He will examine the present workings of the system, reasons behind the movement to change it and the probable consequences of various reform proposals.

The continuing education classes will be met for luncheon at 11:45 a.m. in Lawrence's Jason Downer Carter on Jan. 25, Feb. 2 and 9. Parmesparts will be served cafeteria style at the center and will dine in the Grid Room.

A $5.50 fee includes the cost of the three lunches and registration. The course is open to the public and reservations can be made through Thomas H. Tretin, director of university relations.

The three sessions will be entitled "The Making of a Nominee or The Bandwagon Plays Such Sweet Music"; "The Election of a President or Perhaps the Electoral College

Salary Terms Agreed Upon

Kaukauna Council Grants Increase to Assistant Fire Chiefs

KAUKAUNA — The City Council Tuesday night reached agreement with the assistant fire chiefs on salary and contract terms for 1971, granting an 8 per cent pay increase and full payment by the city of hospitalization insurance.

Annual salary for assistant chiefs prior to the increase was $9,535.65. Aldermen pointed out that the wage adjustment is in line with that granted to the lieutenant in the police department.

Discussion also was held on salary adjustments and insurance benefit payments for part-time workers and retired employes, but action was delayed pending a meeting of the personnel committee Monday, after which the council will review committee recommendations.

City Atty. Donald Green was authorized to meet with the building inspector to set up specifications for temporary garage structures, to be permitted from Nov. 1 to April 1. The legislative committee then will review the specification and determine whether an ordinance should be drafted to permit this type of temporary construction.

Election Procedure

The attorney was instructed to check into what procedure should be followed in setting up primary elections for city offices; ways to make city elected offices, other than aldermanic, into four rather than two-year terms; and the possibility of reducing council membership from 19 to aldermen, one elected from each of the five city wards and two elected at large.

A complaint was read from Ronald Miller, owner of an apartment house, objecting to the unsightly appearance of machinery and equipment stored near Van Daalwyk Construction Co. offices. He asked for a fence to be erected to eliminate the "eyesore" for apartment owners. His request was referred to the board of public works and a copy forwarded to Joseph DeBrain, Chairman of the Town of Buchanan, where the storage grounds are located.

Appointment of Norman Weigman to the board of appeals by Mayor Gilbert Anderson was supported by the council. He replaces Edwin Dougherty who resigned due to ill health. A letter was read from Henry Drechsler expressing interest in filling the unexpired term of William Rogers as 5th Ward alderman should the council accept Rogers' resignation filed last month.

Ownership of Proposed Plamann Sewer Is Debated

Who would finance and own a sewer main providing Appleton sewage treatment for Plamann Park is a central question to be answered before city and county officials know whether they can get together on the county-proposed project.

City officials, ideally, would like the county to finance the project and then turn over the sewer to city ownership, to prevent the sewer main from becoming a barrier to the city's distant future annexation of the sewers' users.

But, county officials warned that rural members of the county board may lack sympathy toward the city's position.

The City Council's Streets and Sanitation Committee told Appleton supervisors on the county board Tuesday that they aren't opposed to the project, but until the questions are answered they aren't ready to make a firm committment either.

Estimated Cost

Supvs. Nick Karras and Herman Ripp explained the county's request to the council committee Public Works Director Robert Miller said the project would be technically feasible, and he made a rough estimate that the main would cost $225,000.

But Miller and the committee were less certain of the financial feasibility.

Miller said eventually $100 000 of the cost could be recovered by charging new users for connecting to the main

But he added it could be 20 years before the city annexes the residential area between the present city limits and the county park, and the city refused to provide sewer service to private users unless their property is annexed.

He said he would recommend undertaking the project only if the city and county "can arrive at some way of avoiding this quarter-million-dollar burden on the city" for 20 years.

Choices for County

Karras and Ripp were somewhat optimistic, pointing out that if the city doesn't serve the park, the county is left with choices between building a separate sewage system or connecting to the Town of Grand Chute system.

Karras said an independent system would cost about the same as a main to the city, making county financing of the main a logical possibility. Costs on connecting to the Grand Chute system are unavailable, however.

There was uncertainty over legal questions, including whether the county has power to levy special assessments against private property owners connecting to the main.

Miller pointed out the city should have control over the design and use of the sewer, to avoid conflicts with the rest of the city system. The city would have to own the sewer, if annexation could be made a requirement for using it.

County Financing

Miller suggested the county should finance the project, turning it over to the city. The city would collect connection fees as new users are annexed and they connect. The fees would be turned over to the county.

Karras said turning over ownership to the city if the county provides the funds "might provide a major obstacle — for those rural supervisors especially."

But he said the county is under pressure to act, due to the current poor condition of sanitary facilities at the park He said soil conditions also create serious problems for residents of the area.

Karras said the county board hopes to issue bonds for other purposes this summer and would hope to finance the sanitary service project at the same time, hopefully building the main this year authorities with information instrumental to the arrests.

Dist. Atty. James Long asked that the preliminaries be conduced anyway, but that a finding of probable cause be withheld pending review of the defense motions later The state must achieve such a finding before continuing to trial in a criminal case.

Reviewing defense motions after the preliminary hearing, instead of before, has been done before in Outagamie County when prosecuting and defense attorneys agree

Long, in making the recommendation to Keller, noted that all witnesses subpoened for this morning's hearing were present in the courtroom Assistant Dist Atty. R Thomas Cane, seated alongside Long, said some of the witnesses had come from outside the Fox Valley area especially for the cases

Cane called moving the preliminaries back an "injustice not only to the state but also to the defendants" Keller, on his own motion, reset the cases for Jan. 26, "in matters as serious as these"

Mueller and Zehren, who were returned to the county jail under bonds of $25,000, are charged with six burglaries in Appleton in November and December, including a break-in at Xavier High School, where Richard Eickhoff, 42, Madison, was killed in a corridor by police gunfire.

The pair is also charged with conspiracy to commit burglary in connection with a Nov. 26 burglary at a Green Bay equipment dealer, and singly, with charges of theft and concealing stolen property in the alleged theft of two shotguns in Appleton Nov. 23.

Mrs. Zehren, who is free on a signature bond, is charged with the alleged burglary at Xavier and one which detectives charge immediately preceded it, at nearby St. Bernard Catholic Church

answer without specific facts and figures

Kalata claimed that, "if aldermen had been aware of existence of an actual surplus of funds, property owners would not have had to shoulder any tax increase"

He said that during the recent city budget hearings, aldermen were told the city would end 1970 "with a zero balance" He charged Champion's department "never discussed the existence" of the bank deposits, and said when finance officials were questioned by Kalata about the possibility of a surplus, "they denied the city had one"

Council Action

His statement is puzzling in view of City Council action when adopting the budget on Dec. 2. The council in three actions voted to apply a total of $332,200 in 1970 surplus funds to the 1971 budget after Champion showed the existence of the surplus on a blackboard erected near Kalata's council chamber desk.

The 2nd Ward alderman's statement concluded by saying "a major reorganization of the City Hall financial program" is needed, after charging the department "failed to provide aldermen with proper financial data" at budget time.

He offered a proposal similar to one recently rejected by the City Council, suggesting placing the finance director under the jurisdiction of the elected treasurer. The rejected proposal was to undertake a similar merger, but after making the treasurer's post appointive.

Committee System

Kalata also called for abolishing the executive budget system and returning to the committee system, under which the council rather than the mayor is in charge of drafting the budget.

He called also for improved reporting of the city's financial condition to aldermen, suggesting a monthly "trial balance" might be issued.

Buckley issued a statement today calling the Kalata remarks "a cheap publicity stunt" and saying if Kalata can prove his claims, "then I will prove that Ald. Kalata has two heads."

Suggesting Kalata was confusing an inappropriated surplus with a "revolving fund" that provides a pool for construction projects financed eventually through special assessments, Buckley concluded, with his challenge for Kalata to prove the existence of the surplus at tonight's finance meeting.

have to be delayed until tax increases level off

"It is imperative that the industrial and business climate continue to be healthy and we must make a concentrated effort to keep what we have and attempt to secure new expansion in both of these fields to insure employment for the majority of our citizens," said Anderson

He urged continuing the fight for tax relief for the elderly and felt some bright spots will appear in the years ahead. "New census figures indicate there will be increased demand for housing and domestic goods which of course should create additional employment. On the reverse side, however, will be the increased demand for government services."

"As we begin this new year, I hope we can act cooperatively to solve the many problems which exist," he concluded.

Madison Man Granted Hearing On Felony Charge

A Madison man, who detectives charge held his mother in her Appleton apartment for six hours Nov 20 aginst her will and went on a rampage, asked for a preliminary hearing this morning.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer scheduled the hearing for Jon Zwickey, 30, for Tuesday. Zwickey, who is charged with false imprisonment, a felony, was returned to the county jail on $1,500 bond.

The complaint, filed by Mrs. June Zwickey, 217 Green Bay Road, said that during the early morning hours of the 20th, Zwickey, her son, entered her apartment without warning and began accusing her of a conspiracy that was "out to get him"

According to the complaint, the episode lasted six hours, and Zwickey damaged furniture and other household goods, including supposedly smashing a chandelier with a fireplace poker.

Contract Issue Rehashed by County Group

committee should have handled the insurance.

The finance committee, in a 4-2 vote, recommended the newly-signed contract with Blue Cross be voided However, the executive committee, on Dec. 23, voted 6-4 to uphold the personnel committee.

Tuesday, Kloes charged DeLaHunt had violated another county board rule in signing the insurance contract. He said no contracts can be signed without prior board approval. He also again repeated his contention that the insurance contract should have gone to the finance committee for action

Supv. George Kloes, Town of Vandenbrook, a member of the personnel committee, told Kloes the personnel committee took the initiative because "you didn't take any action. You just sat on your duff."

He said if it was the finance committee's responsibility they should have taken the initative instead of simply sitting and doing nothing

DeLaHunt also contended the county had already approved the group insurance plan when they approved the labor agreements with the employe unions. "They (the boards) never dictate which company to buy from," he said.

The board chairman said, "I signed the contract because I thought it was the right thing to do I didn't know we had so many geniuses here."

Nixon Attacks Congress' Failures

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — With the sound of his attack on the 91st Congress echoing through the near empty halls of Capitol Hill a continent away, President Nixon worked today on his greeting for the new Congress.

Nixon, spending the first day of at least a week's stay at the California White House, indicated he would be writing, sharpening his State of the Union address, which will renew calls for administration proposals rejected or not acted on by the 91st Congress.

Before leaving Washington Tuesday, the President said the just-adjourned session "will be remembered and remarked upon in history, not so much for what it did, but for what it failed to do."

Similar Charges

Republican congressional leaders said the attack was meant for the Democrats; congressional Democrats countered Nixon charges of failure with similar charges against the administration.

House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma answered back that it was the Nixon administration, not Congress that will be remembered for what it failed to do—"for its failure to halt inflation, for its failure to stop rising unemployment, and for its failure to gain and hold the confidence of the country."

Nixon's words were aimed at the Democratic-controlled Congress and its leadership, "not as a slap at his own party," said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. He noted Republicans are in the minority in both houses of Congress and said "the Democrats control the flow of legislation."

Valuable Information

Nixon said the Congress passed much valuable and useful legislation, but added it lost "the opportunity to write one of the most productive and memorable chapters in the history of American government" by not acting on a score of his proposals.

Topping the list were his welfare reform and revenue-sharing programs that he said "died of neglect."

Among the proposals for the 92nd Congress will be an expanded revenue-sharing program, the Family Assistance, Welfare Reform Plan, a program to overhaul the federal system of grants-in-aid to states and localities, raises in military pay and Social Security benefits, a program to limit textile imports, and aid for schools that have special problems because of rapid desegregation.

New Spirit

To the new Congress, which also will be controlled by Democrats, Nixon declared: "Let us open the New Year in a new spirit. To that end I pledge the full cooperation of this administration."

He made another pledge, one to his Cabinet in which he said there will be no further changes. Nixon fired Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel last year; Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy resigned, and the Washington rumor mill claimed other changes were in the making.

Nixon said Cabinet switches will come only if a member himself determines to leave.

Nixon's eight-to-10-day working vacation in San Clemente tied in with his physician's advice that he ought to relax more in California and Florida.

But initial prospects for some sunshine were remote. Temperatures in this coastal city were chilly and skies were overcast when Nixon arrived.

"You'll probably catch cold," Nixon kidded newsmen traveling with him to California. Weather in Washington has varied between snow and rain.

Wisconsin Isn't the only place in the nation that will bring a chill. President Nixon shivers as he arrives Tuesday in San Clemente, Calif. The temperature was 57, cool for the California area, and the wind brisk. (AP Wirephoto)

Bumper Year for FBI In Catching Criminals Claimed by Hoover

WASHINGTON (AP) — To FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, 1970 was a very good year.

More fugitives were located, more organized-crime figures convicted and more fingerprints checked than in any previous year in the agency's history, the FBI chief said today.

And, according to the FBI's arithmetic, it all was done at a profit:

"Fines, savings and recoveries in FBI investigations during the period reached the record figure of over $422 million, a return of $1.60 for every dollar appropriated for FBI operations," Hoover said in his annual report to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

However, Hoover reported a rise in new-left violence, aircraft hijackings and killings of police by black militants, and added:

Look Back

"As long as crime continues to increase and dissident elements continue to strive violently to destroy our current way of life, law enforcement cannot afford to look back for long on past accomplishments, but must look ahead and seek new ways to meet old challenges."

In the calendar year 1970, Hoover said, 462 persons involved in organized crime were convicted as a result of FBI investigations. Convictions in 1969 totaled 319, the FBI said.

The FBI tracked down a record total of 32,000 fugitives wanted for violations of federal or state laws, including Angela Davis, who declared her innocence Tuesday to murder and kidnap charges in California.

Most Wanted

Miss Davis was among several of the FBI's ten most-wanted fugitives to be captured in 1970. That list itself grew to a record number, totaling 16 before Miss Davis's apprehension in New York.

In 1970, the FBI received more than 6.5 million fingerprint cards, processing them at the rate of 25,000 a day. At the end of the year, Hoover said, some 199 million sets were on record.

Although what Hoover termed "new-left terrorism" increased during the year, racial troubles in the schools took a turn for the better. While 160 racial incidents were reported in secondary schools since classes opened this fall, the figure is below the 299 recorded in the same period in 1969, Hoover said.

Racial Disturbances

Urban racial disturbances, totaling 140 for the year, were down from the peak of the mid 1960s, Hoover said, adding:

"The number of incidents of racial disorder that did occur in our cities and in secondary schools, along with the many unwarranted attacks on police, strongly indicate that we are far from the realization of racial harmony in the nation."

Hoover said six policemen died and 22 were wounded during 1970 as a result of "acts by persons who identified themselves as Black Panthers." He called the numbers a marked increase over the previous two years when the totals were five killed and 42 wounded.

Angela Davis' Attorney Will Try to Move Trial

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — The defense for black militant Angela Davis says it will move to have her trial held away from the Marin County courthouse where four men died in an escape attempt she is accused of helping to plot.

Howard Moore Jr. of Atlanta, head of the five-lawyer defense team handling the former UCLA philosophy instructor's case, said Tuesday in an interview that he will try to have the trial held either across the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco or in Los Angeles.

In those cities, Moore said, she would have the best opportunity to be tried "by a jury of her peers."

At Continuation

Moore and the other defense attorneys appeared with Miss Davis Tuesday at a continuation of her arraignment on charges of murder, kidnap and conspiracy.

During the one-hour court session, Miss Davis, an avowed Communist, read a prepared statement declaring she is innocent and the target of "a political frameup."

She said, "I want to declare publicly before the court and the people of this country that I am innocent of all charges brought against me by the State of California."

Shouts at Judge

Miss Davis is charged with furnishing four guns used in the escape attempt last Aug. 7 in which a judge, two convicts and a youth who brought weapons into court were killed.

Her fellow defendant, San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee, 31, was removed from the hearing as he shouted defiantly at Superior Court Judge Joseph Wilson.

Magee, who survived the escape try, protested that he wanted to represent himself rather than have a court-appointed attorney.

He had been shackled hand and foot to a chair bolted to the floor, in view of repeated outbursts during several previous pretrial court sessions held behind San Quentin prison walls.

Miss Davis, clad in a navy blue miniskirt and matching blouse and with her hair in Afro style, sat across the room in the jury box with her five attorneys.

As she entered the heavily guarded courtroom, she smiled and raised a clenched fist in a Black Power salute. Some of the 67 spectators in the modern windowless courtroom shouted: "Right on!"

Read Statements

Her chief counsel of record for pretrial proceedings, Allan Brotsky of San Francisco, told the judge that Miss Davis wanted to be her own cocounsel. He then asked permission for her to read her statement.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Albert Harris, the prosecutor, protested, but Judge Wilson consented warned Miss Davis not to give a speech.

He also told her that this was not the time to make a formal plea. Attorneys explained later that she would not plead until rulings are made on various defense motions.

Brotsky made motions for bail and for dismissing the grand jury indictments on grounds of insufficient evidence, improper makeup of the grand jury and extensive pretrial publicity.

Judge Wilson gave the defense until Feb. 5 to file motions and supporting material and gave the state until Feb. 22 to reply.

Outside Judge

He said he would ask the chief justice of the state Supreme Court to appoint an outside judge to hear arguments and rule on the motions, probably sometime early in March.

Judge Wilson and all other Marin County judges have disqualified themselves from taking the trial itself because of friendship with Judge Harold J. Haley, who died in the shootout.

In her statement, Miss Davis said that if she could not act as cocounsel, the court "will be aligning itself with forces of racism and reaction that threaten to push this country to the brink of fascism."

"If I am to be granted a fair trial, of which I am at present extremely doubtful, it is imperative that I be given the right of cocounsel," she said.

of all aspects of narcotics and drug suppression within the command.

The commanders were told to step up drug abuse education programs, to insure that each of their men is aware of the drug danger. The directive also said programs of amnesty and rehabilitation under way in some commands would be expanded, coordinated and standardized to aid those who demonstrate a sincere desire to reform."

The directive also outlined three joint Vietnamese-American groups that will be formed:

1. A combined anti narcotics enforcement committee, to be established in each of the four military regions, to eliminate illicit traffic by Vietnamese civilians in narcotics, drugs and related substances;

2. A joint narcotics investigative detachment, made up of representatives from each of the investigative services, which will seek to destroy drugs at the source or stop them before they reach American troops;

3. A joint customs group to assume responsibility for all military customs operations, including inspection of mail, shipments of household goods and unaccompanied baggage, and the processing of personnel arriving in Vietnam and their baggage.

Gore Takes Job At Vanderbilt

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Albert Gore, a Democrat who lost his Senate seat in the November election, will become a part-time professor of public affairs next month at Vanderbilt University.

He told newsmen before departing for a Florida vacation Tuesday he also would begin a book dealing with the office of president and the 1972 elections.

Gore, defeated after 32 years in Congress, said, "There is an old Scotch-Irish saying, 'Don't get mad, just get even.' I have a score to settle with Mr. Nixon, Agnew and Sen. Howard Baker."

During the campaign, Agnew called Gore "Southern regional chairman of the Eastern liberal establishment."

Baker is a Tennessee Republican.

Idealistic Concept

Denver Sets Growth Limit

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Environmental Commission, an advisory agency for the state government, wants to keep the wide open spaces around the four-county Denver metropolitan area wide open.

It proposes to do so by limiting the population to 1.5 million persons, 250,000 more than now reside here.

The commission approved a plan Tuesday to shut off Denver and suburban growth by setting up a green belt of parks and agricultural projects 35 miles wide to fence out encroaching population from satellite communities.

"It's an idealistic concept, yes," said Dr. Max Peters, commission chairman and dean of the college of engineering at the University of Colorado, "but it will get people talking. It's a good bill."

The population limit and green belt concept were included in a proposed Colorado Environmental Act of 1971. A section said, "No political subdivisions shall exceed a total population of 1.5 million persons."

There was no recommendation on how the population within the complex would be contained, once the maximum was reached.

"This will be up to the individual subdivisions," Peters said. "They've got to refuse building permits and write legislation saying you cannot build housing. And if there are violations, and the building continues, simply tear down the houses."

Discourage Industry

Dr. Ruth Weiner, chemistry professor at Temple Buell College and a member of the commission's executive committee, envisioned a milder policy of "encouragement and discouragement."

She said the state should abandon the "[illegible] Colorado" concept, and discourage industries from coming to areas where the population is already great.

"We should encourage industries, and individuals, to settle in sections of the state where population and jobs are needed," she said.

Gov. John Love said he believed discussion of the issue would be good and that he favored dispersal of the state's population.

The proposed environmental act on population limit made no specific reference to Denver, but currently it could apply only to Denver and its ring of suburban counties, Arapahoe, Jefferson and Adams.

The population of the area in last year's census was counted at about 1.25 million, and the commissin anticipated the 1.5 million figure could be reached within five years.

The environmental bill is expected to be one of the first bills introduced before the Colorado Legislature convening today.

Restoration Cost Called Modest

Capitol Walls Safe From Tumbling, Congress Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The venerable walls of the U.S. Capitol's west front are in no danger of tumbling down, Congress has been told, and can be restored to 18th Century perfection by 20th Century technology at relatively modest cost.

The report of an independent New York architectural firm may permanently lay to rest plans to encase the 150-year-old sandstone walls in a marble extension—including tourist restaurants and 40 new bathrooms.

Far from collapsing, the report said, the Capitol "survives in relatively good condition, attesting to the excellence of its builders and to the concern of those responsible for maintaining this, the national monument to our republic."

The report, by the firm of Praeger, Kavanagh and Waterbury, said old columns should not be replaced merely because they are frayed and eroded by time, and concluded restoration can be carried out under congressional guidelines.

Impression of Age

"The Capitol is 150 years old," the report said, "and should give an impression of venerable age, not a crisp newness that denies its historical background."

Required by Congress last year, the report goes to a congressional body whose name has been entirely consistent with its long-sought goals: "The Commission for the Extension of the Capitol."

That commission led and directed the successful drive to extend the Capitol's east front more than a decade ago.

It has since waged a campaign to do the same for the west front, contending that part of the building has so deteriorated it could easily give way, possibly leading to collapse of the building's central section and its towering dome.

Lost Backers

The commission recently lost two of the major forces behind extension: J. George Stewart who was the Capitol architect when he died last year; and John W. McCormack, speaker of the House until his retirement at the end of the 91st Congress.

It was Stewart, an engineer by training rather than an architect, who argued the west front was in danger of collapse. He expressed fears that a sonic boom could even do the structure in.

The new report said such fears are groundless.

One of the first copies of the comprehensive report—it weighs four pounds—was delivered to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has been a leading and vocal foe of the extension project.

"The decisive way in which the report by this prestigious firm has come down on the side of restoration should end for good the $4-million boondoggle that would make the west front of the Capitol of the United States a glorified McDonald's drive-in hamburger stand," Proxmire said.

The architectural report states restoration can be accomplished for as little as $13.7 million and in no case more than $14.5 million. Estimates of the cost of extension had ranged to more than $50 million.

Dole Expected as New GOP Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert J. Dole, a first-term senator whose political record has earned him presidential favor while dividing his GOP colleagues, will take over the Republican National Committee, according to sources in the party and close to the White House.

Dole's appointment likely will come next week during the national committee's annual meeting here, the sources say.

The post opened up six weeks ago when President Nixon named the current chairman, Rep. Rogers C.B. Morton of Maryland, to replace fired Interior Department Secretary Walter J. Hickel.

Speculation had centered around Dole until mid-December when several Republican senators, including Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott, opposed the Kansas senator and plans to announce President Nixon's choice by Christmas were scrapped. Now, the sources say, Dole is alone in the running.

Dole himself told The Associated Press he believes he is the leading contender but had not been notified by the White House he would get the job.

Dole has made no secret he wants the post, maintaining Scott and Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., are wrong in saying he can't handle both the committee and his job in the Senate.

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that Scott and Griffin apparently have dropped their opposition to Dole after meeting with the Kansas Republican Tuesday.

The Post said the 47-year-old freshman senator assured Scott and Griffin he would respect their prerogatives in directing legislative strategy for the President's programs, while reserving his right to speak out as an individual senator and as party chairman when Nixon's policies are under partisan attack.

Election Challenge

The Post also said informants reported Dole told the two men he would take no part in any challenge to their re-election.

In the meantime, the GOP national headquarters announced Tuesday Morton will name a nominating committee this week to formally recommend a new chairman to the national committee. The nominating committee will meet first with Nixon, however.

Robert J. Dole

The sources explained Nixon would make clear at that meeting his preference for Dole.

The 47-year-old Dole, after eight years in the House and two in the Senate, has emerged as the leading Senate spokesman for the President on widely varied issues. In fact, he has criticized Scott for not supporting Nixon more staunchly.

Shortly after the November election Dole said, "Younger, more aggressive leadership is needed by the GOP in the U.S. Senate."

Dole also is opposed by some liberal Republican senators who say the job should go to a moderate.

But one liberal, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland, said, "While Sen. Dole speaks from the conservative wing of the party, I think he understands the necessity for bringing together all elements of the party. I've discussed these things frankly with Bob Dole and he agrees."

Private Fliers

Pilots Urged to Show Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's private pilots were urged today to make use of their unique vantage points in the fight against air pollution.

The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association asked private pilots, most of whom fly slowly and fairly low, to photograph instances of serious air pollution for local or national clean-air agencies.

In an editorial in the magazine Pilot, AOPA senior vice president Max Karant told the association's 158,000 members:

"Photograph the plumes of smoke, record the date and time, and send the documents to local authorities.

"If they don't do anything, send it to AOPA and we'll see that the appropriate federal office gets it."

Karant said the AOPA pollution-picture program is not aimed at any specific industry or polluter.

"I am confident that many industry people aren't fully aware how much area is affected by just one smokestack and that when they see the documented proof from above they will be more eager to take corrective measures," Karant said.

"No one is more vividly aware of air pollution than the airplane pilot. Long before such terms as 'ecology' and 'protecting the environment' became popular, air pollution was a serious concern and a problem for the airman," Karant added.

"We can take off and in a few moments be in clear, clean air and look down at the blanket of dirt in which we live.

"From the airplane we can see belching stacks and watch the trail of pollution spread over miles of cities and countryside."

Karant, noting frequent appeals for cooperation in pollution control, added: "If all the public talkers really mean what they say, hardly anyone can help more than AOPA members going about their daily flights."

Maddox Cleared as Lieutenant Governor

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Gov. Lester Maddox has been cleared by the Georgia Supreme Court to take office as lieutenant governor next Tuesday.

The court dismissed Monday a suit contending that the state constitutional bar against governors succeeding themselves also disqualified Maddox as lieutenant governor because he would succeed Gov.-Elect Jimmy Carter should the latter be unable to serve out his term.

The court ruled that the lieutenant governor does not actually become governor in such event, but merely exercises executive power until a new election is called.

Coverup Charges Dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army today dropped dereliction of duty and other charges against four more officers in the alleged coverup of a massacre of South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

It announced that Lt. Gen. Jonathan O. Seaman, commanding general of the 1st Army at Ft. Meade, Md., dismissed the charges against Lt. Col. David C. Gavin, Lt. Col. William D. Guinn, Maj. Charles C. Calhoun and Maj. Frederic W. Watke because of "insufficient evidence."

The action leaves only three officers—including Maj. Gen. Samuel Koster, former American Division commander and former West Point superintendent—still facing possible court-martial for handling of a field investigation of the My Lai incident nearly three years ago.

Originally, 14 officers were accused after a high level Army probe reported evidence indicating that "certain persons, wittingly or unwittingly, suppressed certain information about the incident from passing up the chain of command."

This finding was made by a panel headed by Lt. Gen. William R. Peers following a three-and-a-half-month investigation.

Budget recipes with flair for taste and looks, ones that create dishes robust in nourishment, are the foods for now. At the left, there is Turkey Medley in the 2-quart casserole on its combination stand. The stainless steel serving platter holds Oven Baked Lamb Shanks with cabbage and carrots on the side, while in front is Skillet Herbed Kidneys surrounded by rice. Above, a whole bologna coated with spicy mustard is served as a surprise roast. Right, the humble chick pea goes glamorous with its cranberry touch as does the baked ham with cranberry glaze.

Budget Balancers Both Hearty and Hot

POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR
By Lillian Mackesy

There's no doubt in anyone's mind that winter has arrived in all its snow-shoveling, icicle glory — not after the big blow and snow. The nippy, frosty air makes youngsters hungry and the grown-ups need a hot, hearty meal to keep them going.

The trick for the homemaker is to keep the budget from zooming while supplying these demands of her family. One helpful hint is to plan meals over a week or so, another is to shop for specials, nutritious but economical cuts of meat with enough to provide for two days' dinners instead of one. Plan the "leftovers" right along with the original meal by buying an extra-large cut of meat and saving part of it for later use.

Meat takes about a third of the food dollar, so selecting the main supper or dinner dish with care is all-important. Take advantage of less desirable cuts of meat — watch for meat specials and plan creative dishes around these either with the help of a good cookbook or the cook's own sense. Lamb shanks are a meaty dish, perfect to serve with winter vegetables such as cabbage or carrots, or both if the crew is the hungry type. Leftover meat can be designed for interesting dishes completely different because of the way they are prepared and served.

Consider turkey and chicken if the price is right at the market. A casserole with egg noodles and cheese is a meat stretcher that keeps the dents out of the budget.

A novel idea is to serve a whole piece of bologna baked as a roast after it's coated with a spicy mustard sauce. Serve with oh-so-good scalloped potatoes. French onion soup, prepared from slices of sweet Spanish onions, makes an elegant picker-upper, first course and even a super supper soup when served with thick slices of crusty bread, a wedge of homemade pie and hot, spicy tea or coffee.

Then, there's a delicious Cranberry glaze recipe for a baked ham that can go a long, long way. This is combined with a baked dish — Sweet and Sour Chick Peas with jellied cranberry sauce.

One for every woman's file as an excellent budget dish is the recipe called Penny-Wise Casserole. It's made with no-waste frankfurters, packaged scalloped potatoes and green beans for a meal-in-one that's both delicious and nutritious.

Here they all are for the trying.

OVEN BRAISED LAMB SHANKS

- 4 lamb shanks
- ¼ cup flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
- ½ teaspoon leaf oregano
- ¼ cup cooking oil
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup chopped celery
- ½ cup dry red wine
- ¾ cup beef bouillon

Wash lamb shanks; pat dry with paper toweling. Combine flour, salt, pepper, parsley flakes, oregano in plastic or paper bag. Dredge lamb shanks in flour mixture. Heat oil in large skillet; add lamb shanks, and garlic; brown well, turning meat often. Transfer to 2½-quart Dutch oven and discard garlic. Add chopped onion and chopped celery to skillet, cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Sprinkle with any remaining flour. Add liquids. Bring to a boil and pour over the lamb. Cover and bake in 350 degree oven until the meat is tender, about 1½ hours. Serve with cabbage wedge and carrots if desired. Three servings normally are from two shanks. Recipe makes about six servings.

SKILLET HERBED KIDNEYS

- 4 lamb or 2 veal kidneys
- ¼ cup bacon fat or margarine
- 1 small white onion, sliced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 3 cups hot cooked rice

Remove outer membrane and cut kidneys in half lengthwise. Use scissors to remove white veins and fat. Cut veal kidney halves into thirds. Wash well and dry on paper toweling.

Melt fat in skillet over moderate heat and saute onion until yellow. Add kidneys and sprinkle with seasonings. Cook, turning often until tender, about 15 minutes. To serve, arrange kidneys in center of skillet and surround with rice. If desired, garnish with lemon twist. Recipe makes four servings.

DIVINE TURKEY MEDLEY

- 2 cups egg noodles
- 1 can condensed

This penny-wise casserole combines popular, no-waste frankfurters, packaged scalloped potatoes and green beans for a hearty and delicious meal-in-one-dish. Serve with a tray of curled carrots, celery sticks, black olives and pickles to round out a satisfying meal that needs only a sweet and favorite beverage

New Year's Resolution for Two: Let's Try Communicating

Making up your list of New Year's resolutions? Why not include better husband-wife communications for '71? This is the recommendation of Dr. Mary Jane Hungerford, a marriage counselor affiliated with the American Institute of Family Relations here in Los Angeles. She suggests you start the year right by talking to — instead of at — your spouse, and by listening to what he or she is saying as well.

Dr. Hungerford declares that communication — or the lack of it — is the "number one problem" with most couples who have been married for many years. To remedy this, she recommends they set aside a specific time each evening, perhaps 10 or 15 minutes, for really talking to one another. They might alternate, she says, with the husband having one night to air his views and his wife the next. When it's the husband's turn, Dr. Hungerford notes, the wife "must be ready to absorb what he's dishing out." She must be prepared to listen whether he chooses "to keep rambling on, or be silent . . . whether his communication is in the form of words or body language." On the wife's night, the husband in turn must do the same, the marriage counselor adds.

"Every marriage," according to Dr. Hungerford, "needs this kind of communication." When counseling couples with marital problems, she instructs them in specific communication techniques, including "no-interruptions" and "checking-back." During the first interview, for example, she tells them that "if one is speaking, the other mustn't butt in and not let him finish." Also, neither is permitted to state he already knows what the other is going to say even before he says it, nor claim he heard something that wasn't actually said. Should this occur, Dr Hungerford stops the conversation immediately and tells the interrupting spouse "to try waiting until the other is finished." She also suggests that when the one who's speaking is done, he say "end of statement," to indicate he has actually finished talking.

Checking-back, according to Dr. Hungerford, is an equally important part of the communication process. By this, she means restating what has just been said to make certain the listener really understands the speaker's point of view. "Communication," the marriage counselor explains, "is not just what we ourselves broadcast, but learning to receive the broadcast of the other person and checking back on what you think you've received." The key, she adds, is to recognize that the only authority on what was meant by any statement is the person who made the statement in the first place.

Dr. Hungerford even has a New Year's prescription for those shy adults who find it difficult to communicate eye-to-eye and who, she says, "can often talk more easily into a telephone or tape recorder than they can when someone is looking right at them." She recommends that such couples have their communication sessions while sitting back to back, so they can hear — but not confront — one another. This, she reports, will make it easier for them to be much more direct with each other.

Summing up, Dr. Mary Jane Hungerford advises that couples who wish to achieve better communication in 1971: set aside enough time and privacy each day for talking together; establish interesting and objective conversation with each other; talk over problems without dealing in personalities; and listen to what the other is saying, even though their interests and opinions may vary.

Here's A Buying Guide For Synthetic Fabrics

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — If you have trouble trying to sort out all the differences in wear and care characteristics of the new synthetic fabrics, you will have much to gain by consulting a new 28-page booklet from the National Bureau of Standards.

The booklet, one of three reported by title in an earlier column, is a far cry from the usual run of government booklets which are not worth the postage stamp necessary to request them.

This one, "Fibers and Fabrics," is helpful in the best possible way: by reducing all the commercial gobbledygook into simple terms in one of the most confusing corners of the marketplace.

The booklet is fancier and more expensive (65 cents) than necessary. But it is worth the price. For there is something of value in it for almost everyone who buys clothing and other textile products.

Now that the number of fabrics has risen above 100 from the basic four of wool, cotton, silk and linen, the job of buying textile products is beginning to require a scorecard.

With this scorecard, shoppers can learn what they want to know most about textiles: the differing properties of 16 new fabrics, how to care for them properly, how to use them, how flammable they are and how to recognize fabric types from 75 commercial trade names.

Here is what the booklet says about some of the more common synthetic fabrics:

Acrylic: Wool-like qualities and easy care. Resists moths, mildew, sunlight, wrinkling. Retains pleats. Poor abrasion resistance and strength; tendency to pill. Machine wash and tumble dry at low temperatures. Can be dry cleaned. Safe iron temperatures 300 to 325 degrees. Burns readily.

Nylon: Strongest of man-made fibers. Colorfast, dimensionally stable, elastic, resilient; resists abrasion, mildew, moths, perspiration. Poor absorbency. Machine wash and tumble dry. Iron at 300-375 degrees. Not readily ignited but when ignited, it burns, melts and drips.

Polyester: The fiber that made wash-and-wear possible. Colorfast, dimensionally stable. Retains press. Resilient. Resists abrasion, mildew, moths. Clean and iron as nylon. Flammability like nylon.

Rayon: Absorbent, colorfast, drapable. Poor resilience, resistance to abrasion, mildew and wrinkling. Hand wash in lukewarm water but can be machine washed and tumble dried. Iron at 300-350 degrees. Ignites readily.

Acetate: Silk-like in appearance, dimensionally stable if drycleaned. Poor resistance to wrinkling. Handle like rayon.

Modacrylic: Similar to acrylic. Its heat sensitivity enables dense, fur-like fabrics. Soft and warm. Can be machine washed and tumble dried but should be removed when tumbling stops. Iron at 200-250 degrees. Fur-cleaning process recommended for deep pile. Generally flame resistant.

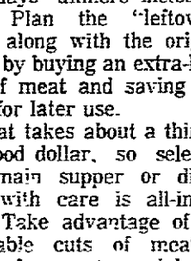

Various blends of these and other fabrics may alter the predominant qualities. For example, cotton and rayon are combined with other fibers to increase absorbency and comfort, decrease static build-up, improve dyeability and reduce production costs.

The booklet is sold by the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Appleton Woman Wins Trip to Hawaii for '71 Pillsbury Bake-Off

Mrs. Glenn Ocock, 3518 N. Spruce St., has been named one of the 100 finalists in the 22nd annual Pillsbury Bake-Off to be held Feb. 6 to 9 in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Not only did Mrs. Ocock win an all-expense paid trip to

Mrs. Ocock

Hawaii to compete for the big prizes totaling $63,000 in cash, but her dessert recipe won a double-oven, self-cleaning range for her kitchen and $100.

Her dessert, in the refrigerated crescent dough division, was chosen after each of the entries was tested five or six times. This was a task that's been going on ever since the recipe competition closed Aug. 31.

The Appleton homemaker will be a guest of Pillsbury, along with the other 99 finalists, in the Hawaiian Village in Honolulu during the four days. None of the contest recipes are available until after the Bake-Off with winners picked by a battery of expert judges in each of the divisions.

The top Grand Award of the Bake-Off will bring $25,000 to the winner. Each of the four categories in the competition also will have cash winners. The divisions are for recipes starting from scratch with flour; recipes using cake and frosting mixes; recipes based on the use of refrigerated biscuits, and those using refrigerated crescent roll dough.

Mrs. Ocock has been a recipe winner before, on a smaller scale, when she entered and was chosen a finalist in the 1969 June Dairy Month Recipe contest conducted by Outagamie County Farm Bureau Women. Her entry then was for a Cottage Cheese Pumpkin Pie.

The Pillsbury finalist is the wife of Glenn Ocock, health benefits administrator for Aid Association for Lutherans. The couple has three young sons, Jeffrey, 10, and Mark, 8, both students at Woodlawn School, and Jonathan, 2, at home.

Cosmetics Manufacturers Climb On Cartridge Belt Bandwagon

BY ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — The fashion world is fishing for spring customers, and clear color is the bait.

The bright-cheeked, dark-eyed face is strong in cosmetics, but will the girls who favor the natural look go for this high color idea?

Ring Around Eyes

"As for college and post-college girls, we've found that at the sign of the first wrinkle, they put on makeup. I haven't seen any beatniks of the 50s without makeup. And we were so worried then," says Stan Kohlenberg, new vice president of merchandising at Coty.

The Bird of Paradise theme, shown Monday at the New York Couture National Press Week, was inspired by Cliff Nicholson's pheasant head dresses and peacock breast plate jewelry. Eyes are ringed with slate and blue. Cheeks are rose bronze.

If you want to carry color with you, there's Stanley Hagler's lipstick belt ($150), a takeoff on the already-famous cartridge belt. The original circle of cartridges and bullets has brought as much controversy as it has consumer dollars in the last six weeks, and almost everyone is climbing on the bandwagon.

The belt looks ready to be fed into a machine gun, but retailers soothe upset customers by saying that it can be a symbol for doves as well as war hawks.

"Let's keep the bullet factories busy manufacturing blanks for peace instead of making real bullets to shoot," says Francine Farkas of Alexanders department stores. She brought the belt over from London in November, despite offers of $200 for it and a run-in with German police at an airport.

Belt Gets Booted

However, the belt was snatched from Bergdorf Goodman counters last week.

"We can do without the macabre connotation of this," says Vice President Leonard Hankin. "We're delighted to have customers shop elsewhere for the belt."

Other stores are glad to accommodate them, including some in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Houston, Atlanta, Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago.

"I'm not trying to mock the war. I just think it's a beautiful belt," says Caren Ross, a Philadelphia housewife who found herself in the Bang Bang belt manufacturing business in November—3,500 belts sold in one month—after her trip to Europe.

If plans work out, there will be a Bang Bang dress for Jonathan Logan and Bang Bang boots and blue jeans.

More Take-Offs

If that isn't enough, Tiny Town has offered a child's tunic and pants with gold bullet replicas in the white patent leather belt ($16-$18).

Junior Sophisticates has even gotten into the paramilitary spirit with "cartridge pockets" on a bright yellow jacket. The rest of the collection is uncontroversial enough and filled with color: tailored skirts and jackets, pink amoeba print knickers—slit tank dresses—giraffe print midi and pants—crepe du chine black-print ensembles.

Brides also are turning on to color. Oscar de la Penta used his red heart belt on one design for Piccione Bridals. His dresses had a light fluffy look, but the customer pays for that, to the tune of $400 and up.

Susan Eisenhower, 19, granddaughter of Mamie Eisenhower and the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, will be married Friday at Gettysburg, Pa., to London barrister Alexander High Bradshaw. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. D. Eisenhower. Her father is U.S. ambassador to Belgium. (AP Wirephoto)

Color, Fashion Observers say, is coming on strong for spring. That was the word in New York at spring fashion showings, where this model represented Coty's Bird of Paradise theme. The look is inspired by Cliff Nicholson's pheasant head dresses and peacock breast plate jewelry. Eyes are ringed with slate and blue, while the girl's cheeks are rose bronze. (AP Wirephoto)

A Lipstick Toting miss? No, but one cosmetic designer announced at New York spring fashion showings that he is ready to market his lipsticks in place of the blanks now adorning cartridge belts like this one. The controversial fad has gone from East Coast to West to the dismay of many a peace-loving American. Women wear the belts with pants or jumpsuits; men with safari or bush jackets. The one cost $15, but they range up to $40.

A Princess Talks Of Hearts, Flowers

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

What happened to the romantic custom of sending flowers to a favorite girl or to one a shy admirer would like to know?

If it is any comfort to girls who dream about such overtures, even princesses don't get long-stemmed roses any more.

"Only in Austria and Germany is that custom still followed," says beautiful Princess Barbara von Liechtenstein, 23, "and then the flowers aren't usually from someone you do not know—more often they are a 'thank you,' a duty hostess dinner thing or something..."

It was agreed that young men do not realize what an impact flowers can make.

Works Behind Counter

The princess was explaining that she didn't expect to get flowers from secret admirers who might see her behind cosmetics counters on her beauty tour of the United States. She is a beauty consultant for Eve of Roma.

For one thing, men are a bit awed by titles and that makes it even more difficult for a princess to meet them.

American girls, Princess von Liechtenstein continued, are ready for romantic gestures such as flower-giving. They are in an age of romantic grooming —as evidenced by their long flowing tresses, healthy, clean skin and sparkling eyes. In America, she said, only older women are making the mistake of overdoing makeup, of wearing heavy false eyelashes and heavy eyeliner for daywear. Younger women wear more casual makeup to go with daytime dress.

When she was growing up, the princess added, she could only be casual in dress and makeup when she was away at schools in Paris, Rome and Vienna.

Life of Princess

"My life had to be different. My parents were strict and always reminded me that people would look more at me than at other people. It is true. In the United States, I am asked incredible questions, such as how it feels to be a princess. I always answer that I am so used to it that I don't think about it."

In her new job, she is doing what comes naturally, she says. The delicate shadowing of her own blue eyes was achieved after many, many hours of practice.

"This is what I am going to tell girls: You cannot smear makeup on your face and expect to look pretty. One must experiment, sitting before a mirror with the cosmetics and makeup remover. They should put on faces until they get the look that flatters them. Makeup should never glare. It should be subtle. Girls may not know this if they make up their faces only for special occasions.

"Foundation creams, lip stick, eye shadows may be used to improve shortcomings of features as well as to enhance good features. And this should be the aim in grooming. For example, hair styles can do a lot toward giving the face a good frame.

"My head is sort of flat in the back, so I wear this hairdo slightly teased on top and at the back to give my head a more rounded look."

Ways of Kingdom

She draws the hair straight back slightly puffed all the way to the nape of her neck. At the interview, she was dressed casually in an elegant beige pant suit. In Leichtenstein, one can dress more casually than was possible before.

The country is a romantic one, and girls have an opportunity to be coquettish for a long time. Men marry later in Leichtenstein than they do in the United States—when they have finished their studies and have established themselves. The princess, who is unmarried, thinks it is sad to marry young and to miss the fun of the early years "and to have a lot of problems before you are mature enough to cope."

She is a world traveler that gives her the opportunity of enjoying her pet hobby, photography. She has photographed Tanganyika and Kenya and has taken a great many pictures at Aspen, Colo. where she enjoys skiing because "it is such a breathtaking place.

Older Person Is More Disturbed By Night Noise

Whether the supersonic transport (SST) ever flies over land in the U. S. may depend partly on sleep research being conducted at the Stanford Research Institute.

In a special room, sleeping volunteers are being subjected to air pressure and noise similar to effects created by a flying SST. According to the Spring Air Matiress Company, older people (over 70) are more often disturbed by the effects than middle-aged (40 to 50) persons. Youngsters (7 to 8) are least affected.

World Beauty Becomes Bride Of U.S. Doctor

DUBLIN (AP) — Reita Faria of India, the 1967 Miss World beauty queen, was married Tuesday to Dr. David Powell, an Irish physician.

"She looks like a fairy princess from off a Christmas tree," exclaimed an Irish woman watching the wedding ceremony.

Miss Faria, 26, and a doctor in her own right, had met Powell, 27, here during her Miss World reign and later at London's Kings College Hospital. He was a house surgeon at the hospital and she was a medical student.

The bride, a shy, dark beauty, wore a full-length white velvet gown fitted to the waist and a hood of white lace for the ceremony at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church.

The Rev. Daniel O'Connell, an uncle of the groom, performed the ceremony. About 60 friends and relatives, including Miss Faria's mother, a Bombay beauty shop owner, attended the wedding.

After a honeymoon, the couple will go to Boston where Powell is completing post graduate studies at Harvard. His bride works in a Boston hospital.

Car License Increase Sought to Aid Buses

MADISON (AP)—An increase in auto and motorcycle license fees that would yield an additional $10.8 million to Wisconsin annually was endorsed Tuesday by a legislative subcommittee in hope of helping mass transit firms.

The Mass Transit Subcommittee of the Legislative Council's Highway Committee recommended hikes of $5.85 a year for automobiles and $2 a year for motorcycles.

Autos are now taxed at $18.15 a year and motorcycles at $5.

The proposal was forwarded to the parent committee. If it wins approval of the full panel, it would be placed before the Legislative Council for further consideration.

The proposal, approved 5-2, would eliminate the 15-cent assessment for reflectorized plates while setting a new license fee on cars of $24.

Proposed increases for trucks and car dealers' plates were set aside for further study. The subcommittee recommended no increases for farm trucks, certain other trucks and trailers.

The increased revenue would be used to subsidize transit systems which, in many Wisconsin cities, are encountering financial shortages because of increasing costs and reduced passenger traffic.

Arthur Padrutt, chairman of the State Public Service Commission, said subsidies aren't the answer for the bus companies' problems.

Padrutt said the legislature should spend its time instead in establishing restrictions on auto use, encouraging more public use of transit facilities.

He also objected to a provision which would transfer regulation of transit systems from the commission to the state secretary of transportation.

"If you treat this problem by subsidy, you are treating symptoms, not the disease," he said. "You just pour more money down the rat hole."

The rising numbers of cars, and the subsequent congestion on city streets, will lead to controls on car use anyway, so legislators "ought to be considering these restrictions right now," he said.

"It isn't going to do much good to have publicly supported buses coming into town with nobody riding them," Padrutt said.

Henry M. Mayer, a manager of the Milwaukee Transport Co., said increased fares chase away patronage.

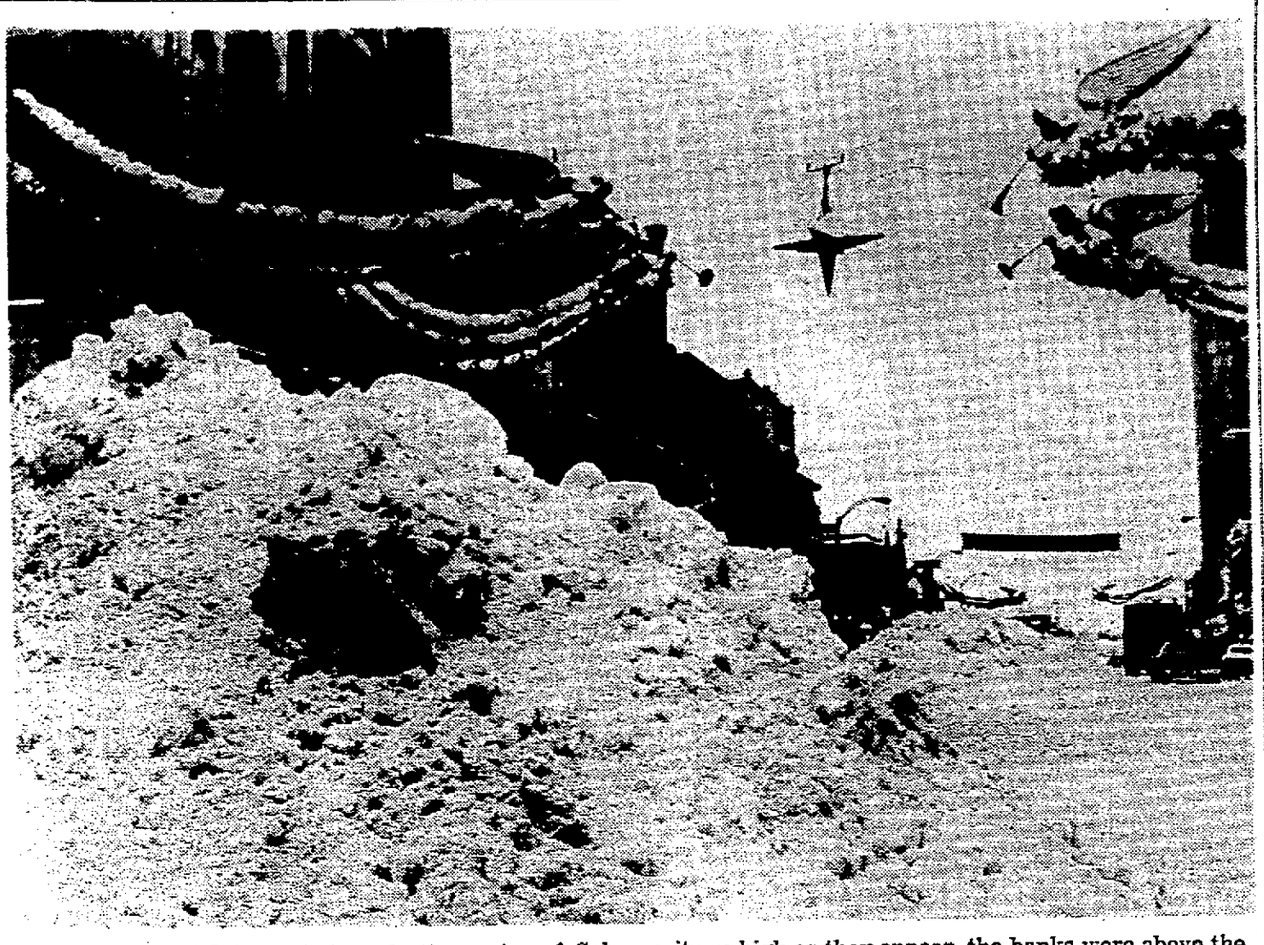

His bus firm has lost 20 per cent of its patronage because of fare increases to 40 cents, he said. The subsidy, he estimated, would allow fares to be cut back to 25 cents.

Mayer predicted there will be restrictions on auto travel in cities in the next 10 years.

Ed Johnson, an executive of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, questioned whether the new revenue from an increased license fee would be enough to meet transit needs as well as future highway requirements.

A spokesman for the Wisconsin chapter of the American Automobile Association opposed the fee increase, arguing Wisconsin auto owners pay enough already.

Wisconsin, the subcommittee was told, ranks 46th nationally in car registration fees. The increases would make the state No. 40.

State Task Force

Welfare Disclosures Recommended

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Information about public assistance recipients and the payments they receive by categories would be made available to anyone asking for such information, under provisions of a draft law approved Tuesday by the Task Force on Welfare Payments.

The task force approved the controversial measure unanimously on a voice vote. The bill will be recommended to the Legislative Comcil that may in turn recommend it to the 1971 legislature.

Under provisions of the draft amendments, county welfare departments would be required to keep records of the names and addresses of aid recipients and a breakdown of the allotments made, including the basic allowance, shelter aid, food stamp program participation and special needs allotment.

That information could be made public to anyone requesting it. In addition the county treasurer or other fiscal officer would be required to show cancelled public assistance checks to those requesting to see them.

Discrimination

The provisions of the amendment are controversial because there is some feeling that public knowledge about someone's welfare status could result in discrimination against the recipient when he attempts to rent housing or sign other kinds of contracts.

On the other hand there has been sentiment expressed that such information should be subject to public scrutiny in order to prevent abuse of public assistance programs.

Sen. Wayne Whittow (D-Milwaukee) argued that the provisions of the amendment are not thorough enough as the disclosure does not provide information on job training allotments, free lunch programs and others administered by agencies other than the department of Health and Social Services.

"One of the big problems in the welfare system," he said, "is no one knows what the other hand is doing," and he indicated that the figures covered in the bill will not provide a complete picture of the economic status of persons receiving other help.

The committee also recommended changes in the aid to families with dependent children that would revise the definition of dependents, permit aid to families where both parents reside with the children but are unemployed and would revise the procedure for calculating eligibility.

The changes would permit a child aged 19 who is in high school, or vocational school in lieu of high school, to be considered a dependent. The provision would raise the age from the 18 year cutoff now effective, but only to cover children still in secondary school.

The unemployed parents provision is a reinstatment of a portion of the law repealed by the 1969 legislature that eliminated aid for children of unemployed parents. The parents involved, however, would be required to accept work, vocational training or public works assignments offered in order to receive the aid.

The computation of eligibility for welfare would ordinarily continue to be based on the monthly income a family receives. However, in the case of persons who work nine months of the year under contract and do not work three months, the computation would be based on yearly income.

That provision would mean that a person who teaches or is hired as a teachers aid could not receive public assistance during summer vacation unless the entire 12-months income average is low enough to make him eligible. He would then receive assistance 12 months a year, rather than only during the three months vacation.

The amendment would apply to persons who contract for employment of nine or more months a year, and would not apply to persons working under contract for fewer months.

The task force unanimously approved an amendment to the marriage law that would make marriage more difficult for persons under 21 years of age. The waiting period between the purchase of a license and the marriage would be extended from five to 15 days for persons under 21.

The longer waiting period could be waived if the couple submitted proof that they had received marriage counseling by either an authorized professional, or in counties where none reside, by the family court commissioner. The waiting period could also be waived in the present instances in which the five day period may now be waived for persons over 21 — that is in the case of one party who is dangerously ill and expected to die; when the female is pregnant or when one party is in the military service.

Basic agreement was reached on a change in the mandatory school attendance law, though the vote was postponed until later in the meeting to consider revising it slightly.

The proposed amendment would permit persons required to attend school until they are 18 years of age to go to a vocational, technical and adult education school, full or part time, in lieu of attending public high school. The major change in the measure is that the child and his parents, not the public school district in which he resides, could decide whether he would go to the high school or vocational school.

Official Lists Reasons For Collapsing Roofs

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — New construction technology makes some roofs unable to support the weight of heavy snow, a state official has told the department of industry, labor and human relations.

Charles Hagberg, administrator of the industrial safety and buildings division of the department, said that ten years ago only one kind of steel was used for building supports and trusses. Now, he said, there are 10 or 11 kinds that all look alike.

Each kind of steel is a combination of several minerals and its appearance does not reveal the composition. Further, each combination of minerals requires special welding procedures requiring different voltage and amperage of the torch, different kinds and sizes of welding rods, different rates of welding and different levels of heat.

Although materials need to be welded differently, Hagberg said, the ineffectual and defective welding jobs are not immediately apparent as cracks often form underneath the surface of the joint. Old methods of determining poor welding bonds do not necessarily apply to the new materials.

"We simply do not have the controls," he said. "All it takes is a worker pulling out the wrong sheet of steel."

In order to control the use of steel and the quality of the joints, Hagberg told the committee the steel fabrication plants, sary to conduct spot checks at the steel fabrication plants, using X-rays, pressure and bending tests and other procedures. Such inspections, to prevent more new buildings from collapsing, would need to be done at every fabrication plant that supplies materials from Wisconsin projects.

The plants, however, are not all located in the state, he said. Wisconsin contractors deal with firms in Chicago, Duluth and Minneapolis-St. Paul among others. There are about 200 steel fabricators in Wisconsin.

Although the Wisconsin industrial safety division would not have jurisdiction over the standards that an out-of-state fabricator must meet, Hagberg said, the division could check materials that will be shipped into the state.

The checks he said would require considerable man-hours and expertise. He said his division would need an additional trained staff member to handle Wisconsin firms, alone.

Since the program is not in the 1971-1973 biennial budget request, he advised the commissioners, if they consider that the public safety is at stake, to request the funding for the position from the board of government operations, the emergency funding arm of the legislature.

Man Sentenced To Two Years In Reformatory

A state repeater charge, brought in connection with three convictions, resulted Tuesday in a two-year Green Bay reformatory sentence for a young Black Creek man.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer passed sentence on James McGowan, 24, in County Court Branch 2.

Originally, McGowan was charged by county investigators with contributing to the delinquency of three minor girls to whom he allegedly served beer in Shiocton Dec. 4 and 5. The girls, aged 14, 15 and 17, will appear later in Juvenile Court for consuming the beverage.

After a first court appearance on that charge, the district attorney's office lodged the repeater count against McGowan. It was based on two theft convictions and a conviction for concealing stolen property dating to March 18, 1969.

McGowan had pleaded guilty to the contributing and repeater counts before Schaefer sentenced him.

Seven Kimberly Juveniles Admit Theft of Beer

KIMBERLY — Seven juveniles, ages 14 through 17, have been referred to juvenile court by village police for their involvement in the theft of five cases of beer on Dec. 29.

According to police, one of the youths called a local beer depot and ordered a case of beer delivered to his home. When delivery was made, the youth and a companion kept the delivery man talking while the other five boys took five cases of beer from the delivery truck, hid it and later held a party.

All admitted being in on the plan to steal the beer. The delivery man thought he was making the delivery to the father of one of the boys.

Second Baby Is Her First to Take Home

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine had an illegitimate child five years ago. Vanessa was very much in love with the man but for some reason he did not marry her. She carried very small and stayed in school through her fifth month. Then she went to a home for unwed mothers and arranged to put the child up for adoption.

Two years later the man married someone else. The following month Vanessa married also. She told her husband and his parents about her out-of-wedlock child but aside from them, only her parents and sister knew. It was fantastic how she fooled everyone.

Three months ago Vanessa gave birth to a baby girl. She acts as if this is her first child. (Mother love is wonderful but this dame is overdoing it.) There is something phony and dishonest in her gushiness. Is she putting on an act because she feels guilty about her out-of-wedlock child? Is she trying to deceive people into believing motherhood is a new experience for her? How can a mother forget her first-born, even if she didn't keep the baby? Please explain this to me so I will know how to feel about her. — Her Best Friend

Dear B.: If you are her best friend I'd hate to here from one of her enemies. People like you make me sick. Why does it bother you that this girl has found happiness at last? True, this is not her first-born but it is the first time she will be able to take a baby home. You've revealed more about yourself in your letter than you meant to. You are this girl's sister.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a freak. I don't drink. I have nothing against alcohol. I just don't happen to like the taste or smell of it. I admit that when I see some awfully nice people drink more than they can handle, it makes me glad I don't care for the stuff. But the thing that really bugs me is the way drinkers keep trying to push drinks on a person who has said he doesn't want one.

Landers

You can't believe the gimmicks they use. "Drink to my health —" and "Hold the glass so the others wont' feel uncomfortable —" or "Just taste it." The rum drinkers tell you how mild rum is and in half an hour they are passed out in a corner. The scotch drinkers tell you how they never get sick because they stick to scotch. I've seen them turn green around the gills and disappear for the night. The wine drinkers are a sketch. They think because it's wine and not gin they appear elegant. But they all get equally sloppy and talk the same kind of foolishness when they are bombed.

Can you supply me with a snappy retort for people who keep pressing me to have a drink? My mind is made up but I need a witty comeback. — Dry D.

Dear Dry: A sober person who would bullyrag you to have a drink is an insensitive boor and doesn't deserve an answer. A drunk wouldn't know a witty comeback or a snappy retort if he heard one so why bother?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What is the socially accepted procedure when dining in a first class restaurant and the steak is tough, the chicken is raw, or the soup is cold? Should one complain to the waiter or manager? Or is it best to be quiet about it and simply not return? — Minus $20

Dear $20: It is not necessary to complain to the manager. The waiter should be happy to bring you another steak or put your chicken back in the oven or reheat your soup. To sit in silence and not return would be an injustice to the restaurant. Give them a chance to set things right.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I married a man 14 years my senior because he said he loved me more than anything in the world. He proved it by leaving his wife and three children to marry me. It also meant leaving his church. I thought any man who would do all that must be sincere.

We have been married less than a year and for the past seven weekends I have been alone. My husband goes over to his ex-wife's home every Friday evening for dinner. Sometimes he spends the night there. If he comes home in the morning he runs back at noon and stays through dinner. Last weekend he stayed overnight both Friday and Saturday. When I told him I was getting fed up, he said, "Find a hobby. My kids need me and I'm not going to let them down."

My husband's parents like his first wife better than they like me. I'm sure they have been encouraging him to go back to his first family. What can I do? All the cards seem to be stacked against me and I'm afraid I'm losing out. — El

Dear El: You might as well throw in the deck, honey. The ex-wife is holding the winning hand. Sorry.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Ernie and I went together for nearly five years. We were planning to get married. Last February Ernie got into a jam and I lent him $1,000. In June I caught him cheating on me. I later learned he had been sneaking around with this tramp for almost a year. When we split he owed me $500. After the bust-up, he stopped making payments. I learned yesterday that Ernie has applied for a job that he wants more than anything in the world. I happen to know a few things about his past that could ruin his chances. Should I drop the louse a note and tell him if he doesn't come across with the $500 I will tie a can to his little red wagon?

After the dirty trick he played on me I believe I have every right to get my money back any way I can. Do you? — Used

Dear Used: I'd say Ernie has done enough damage. Are you going to let him make a blackmailer out of you, too? Revenge is not sweet — it is bitter. Don't debase yourself.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

One of the country's most competent and best liked bridge teachers is Bill Root of New York City. He teaches his students many of the more subtle points of the game. Among these is the admonition. "Don't accept every trick that may be offered."

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
INT	Pass	2H	Pass
Pass	2S	Pass	Pass
3D	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of Spades.

Bill Root had an opportunity to demonstrate this principle in an important team game. Bill held the East cards in today's dog fight.

The auction was competitive, with West refusing to allow North to play a two-heart contract and South refusing to defend two spades.

West led the spade queen, which was won by Root's ace. A second spade was won by declarer's king. Declarer played the queen of hearts and was allowed to hold the trick. Declarer continued with the heart 10, which was won by West.

West exited with a low trump. He knew a spade lead would yield a sluff and ruff and that a heart lead would provide an entry to dummy. A club lead was even less attractive. West's lead of a diamond gave declarer a free finesse in that suit. How did declarer put it to use?

Root played his queen of trumps to West's trump lead. Declarer won with his king and played the eight of trumps, tempting Root to win the 10. If Root had won, dummy's trump nine would have provided an entry to cash the heart suit.

However, Root saw through declarer's trap. He refused to win the 10 and left declarer with his problems.

Declarer no longer had any choice. He drew the outstanding trump and led a club to dummy's jack. Root won the queen and led a spade, reducing declarer to his last trump.

Another club by declarer was won by West's 10, and another space lead exhausted declarer's trumps. West took the last two tricks with the club ace and the 13th spade. Down two.

South was the victim of excellent defense. In particularly, Root was able to demonstrate that, like the second helping of cake, it sometimes doesn't pay to accept everything that is offered.

Food Value for Families Found in Milky 'Whey'

Whey is one good example of how a dairy product may be developed into a valuable food process by reverse osmosis states Shirley Watson, Extension home economist for Winnebago County.

What is whey? Nationally it is a minor — virtually unknown — cheese by-product. To the dairy people of Wisconsin it is known as "what's left-over" after the cheese is made.

Annual world production of whey is high-it totals 50 to 75 billion pounds according to the U S Department of Agriculture (U S D A Wisconsin cheese-makers contribute greatly to this total. Also reported was that when cheese is made, much of the milk's nutritional value is in the whey — about three-fourths of which is discarded to become an effluent problem — one of the problems now under research Fortunately Wisconsin cheese-makers are able to produce other products from this whey so that waste is kept to a minimum.

Whey is high in iron, vitamin A, thiamin, riboflavin, and niacin. The U.S.D.A. has been developing new uses for whey which should delight everybody. Whey combined with soy flour and citrus flavoring is an interesting new beverage. Whey with cream, and chocolate or fruit flavor is another. Both are available in concentrate form and the citrus one is also in powdered form. By combining high food value with moderate cost they cater to low-income families both here and abroad.

U.S.D.A scientists state that they find that we can recover, process, and utilize about 15 billion pounds of whey — mostly for food uses

The homemaker consumer will want to consider this as an important food in the family diet as continued research and the cheese industry develop more new and exciting uses for the whey.

A non-food direction has been taken by G D Hustad, T. Richardson and C H Amundson, University of Wisconsin in food scientists who have found that dried sweet or acid whey can be made into a polyurethane type of foam.

This new whey-based foam has inherent self-extinguishing flammable properties and since this foam can absorb shock, it has potential use in the packaging industry. It might also be used in building construction owing to its open cell nature which should result in good acoustical properties Above all, a market for this new product would provide another means of using whey to benefit the dairy industry.

Marquette Equals Victory Mark by Crushing Loyola

Jim Chones Scores 27 in 78-63 Win

By BOB GREENE

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marquette's style of play doesn't impress the college basketball polls; it just wins games.

The nationally third-ranked Warriors tied a school record Tuesday night by crushing Chicago Loyola 78-63 for their 22nd consecutive victory, the nation's longest winning streak. In the 1954-55 season, Marquette lost its first game of the year and its last, but strung together 22 victories in between.

"We never win big," Warrior Coach Al McGuire said. "That why we don't impress the polls. But our style is to spurt ahead, then play the clock."

The Warriors did that to perfection for the 10th time this season. With Loyola leading 6-4, Marquette ran off 10 straight points with an impressive defense leading the way.

After taking a 20-point lead at intermission, 44-24, the Warriors relaxed with a spread of 15 to 24 points through the final 20 minutes.

Chones Hits 27

Center Jim Chones, a 6-foot-11 sophomore, was the big gun in the Marquette attack with 27 points. He also hauled in 12 rebounds to lead both squads.

"Jimmy's a pure shooter," McGuire said. "He's probably the best 6-11 shooter in college from 10 to 15 feet out. He might be the best shooter on our team."

McGuire also gave praise to his entire front line.

"I thought that we were too physical underneath for them," the Warrior coach said. "We've been physical for six years. Being physical doesn't mean being rough, it means being tough, being able to take the punishment under the boards."

George Ireland, Loyola coach, was also impressed with the Warriors.

Very Advanced

"I think they should go a long way," he said. "Chones is a very advanced sophomore."

Asked how this Marquette team ranked with other Warrior squads of the past, Ireland hesitated.

"I've been around a long time," he said, "and Marquette has had some great teams, especially the ones with Don Kojis," now a star forward with the Seattle Supersonics of the National Basketball Association. "But this one ranks with the best of them."

Former Champion Liston, 38, Found Dead in His Home

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Charles "Sonny" Liston, the powerful former world heavyweight boxing champion, was found dead at his home late Tuesday night after his body lay about one week, sheriff's deputies said.

An investigation was launched immediately to see if there was foul play, the Clark County deputies said. Cause of death was not immediately known.

Sonny Liston

Liston's wife Geraldine, who was in St. Louis and tried to reach her husband by telephone and failed, found the body, said a spokesman for Palm Mortuary, which is handling funeral arrangements.

Liston, once considered the strongest of all heavyweights, boxed professionally from 1953 to 1969, winning the heavyweight crown Sept. 25, 1962, with a stunning first - round knockout over Floyd Patterson in Chicago.

The burly, 6-foot-1 Liston defended the title twice, winning a first-round knockout in a rematch with Patterson here on July 22, 1963, and then suffering an equally stunning seventh-round defeat to Cassius Clay, now known as Muhammed Ali, on Feb. 25, 1964.

Listless Fight

In that fight, Liston fought a listless six rounds and failed to answer the bell for the seventh, claiming an arm injury.

He was blasted to the deck by Clay's mysterious "phantom punch" in Lewiston, Maine, on May 25, 1965, in a rematch. Some thought it was the punch that ended Liston's career but he launched a comeback in 1966 and at his death had a record of 48-4.

Liston, 38, was almost constantly in the news, either because of his stunning ring exploits that included 36 knockouts or because of his frequent runins with the law.

"I have been in the limelight two ways—good and bad," he once said. "Ever since I was born I've been fighting for my life."

Something Exciting

Even before his pro boxing career began, he was involved with the law. "one night we wanted to do something exciting," he recently admitted. "We stuck up a restaurant and I wound up in jail." He served time in the Missouri State Penitentiary in the 1952 holdup.

Another term came in 1957. All through his career, including his championship years, he was in trouble with the law. He was arrested an estimated 20 times on various charges. Most recently, it was in connection with possession of a weapon.

He had a mean, fearsome scowl but was known as gentle and friendly out of the ring.

Clay called him "The Ugly Bear" and Sonny later said the defeat that lost him the title also lost him his dignity and his pride. It was the left arm that failed him—as medical reports later showed — but the word "quitter" hurt Lison and some say that day in Miami Beach when he lost his title was the last time boxing saw the real Sonny Liston.

On his rise to fame, Liston, a native of Pine Bluff, Ark., beat Wayne Bethea, Cleveland Williams, Zora Folley, Eddie Machen and Roy Harris.

Plante Posts Third Shutout Of Season

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — When the Buffalo Sabers made such a ballyhoo over their 7-2 victory against Toronto Nov. 18, Coach John McLellan said his Maple Leafs became a winning National Hockey League team.

"From then we started to realize that nobody feels sorry for you in this game," said McLellan, "and you can't feel sorry for yourself. You just have to work yourself out of a slump."

Work, the Maple Leafs did.

On Dec. 8, the Leafs lost 4-0 to Pittsburgh. However, they've won 11 of 12 games since to rise from the East Division cellar to a solid fourth place only five points behind Montreal.

The Maple Leafs, with veteran Jacques Plante posting his third shutout of the season, made the Minnesota North Stars their latest victims 2-0 in the only NHL game Tuesday night.

Plante stopped 29 Minnesota shots as Toronto won its fourth straight. The only loss the last month has been against the North Stars, 6-3 Christmas night.

Reitzner Leads Way

Appleton West Downs Waupaca, 75-57, for Season's Sixth Win

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — Rich Reitzner demonstrated the form which made him an all-state performer last season as he banged in 19 points to lead Appleton West to a 75-57 win over Waupaca Tuesday in a non-conference contest.

Reitzner had one of his better offensive nights of the campaign as he hit six of seven field attempts in the first half. Dwight Mueller contributed 14 points, Tim Moriarty 13 and Ike Chestnut 12 to the winning total.

The victory hiked the 1970 state champions' season's record to 6-3, while Waupaca suffered its fifth defeat in eight outings.

A combination of things contributed to the Comets' woes. A strong press forced 22 turnovers and allowed Waupaca to get off only 39 shots — four coming in a strong showing on the offensive board in a flurry of action in the second period.

Superior Height

The Terrors' superior height gave them an advantage at close-range, not indicated in a slim, 27-25, advantage in rebounding. Moriarty (6-5), Chestnut (6-3), Carl Joosten (6-4) and Rick Luebben (6-2) took lead passes going to the basket or would shoot over the defender at close range.

Waupaca, although never in serious contention, played a tough game and in the final period outscored the Terrors, 26-11.

Tim Lewis fired the Comets' late surge as the slim 6-1 junior scored six field goals in the last stanza and ended with 16 points to pace the losers. Lee Solberg added 13 and Dean High 10.

Takes Lead

Luebben hit a 15-foot jumper and Moriarty swished an 8-foot base shot to give West a 4-0 advantage. West went on to a 23-10 lead after one period as Moriarty and Luebben each scored six points and the Terrors hit 11 of 14 shots from the floor.

Reitzner cut loose in the second frame with drives into the key for short jumpers and shots from 20 feet out to account for half of West's 16 second quarter points.

The third period was time for Mueller to shine as the 5-1 senior tallied 10 points and the Terrors outscored their hosts, 25-12, for a 64-36 lead after three periods.

West had a volley of six shots in the final canto, but failed to score in the most concentrated effort of the night. Waupaca trimmed the lead by scoring the last eight points of the game.

The Comets hit 19 of 39 floor attempts for the game and converted 19 of 26 charity throws. Appleton was successful on 30 of 56 field attempts and sank 15 of 23 from the foul line.

Ghosts 79-74 Victors

Kaukauna Wins Behind Franzke

WAUPUN — Leon Franzke meshed 13 buckets and a charity toss for 27 points in leading Kaukauna High School to a hard-fought 79-74 nonconference victory over the Waupun Warriors here Tuesday night.

The Ghosts are now 7-3 overall while Waupun slipped to a 2-6 mark.

The Warriors' Doug Stelsel and Jim Singer scored seven and six points, respectively, in the first quarter in leading the home team an impressive 22-12 advantage at the end of the stanza.

But the Ghosts, aided by the powerful shooting of Franzke battled back to grab a slim 38-37 lead at intermission. Kaukauna outscored its opponent 36-15, in staging the comeback.

The Waupun attack, led by Stelsel and Singer, was not enough to offset the 10-point third quarter output netted by Franzke, as the Ghosts built up a 61-55 lead at the quarter's end.

Fight Back

With 2:00 left to play in the contest, the Warriors fought their way back to within three points of the visitors (71-68), as they raced toward the Kaukauna basket in an attempt to reduce the deficit to a mere point. Waupun then took a total of five shots, mostly tips, but were unable to sink an all-important bucket.

The game was loosely played, as Waupun yielded a total of 24 turnovers compared to 20 for the Ghosts. Franzke was equally instrumental in the decisive fourth quarter, as he duplicated his third period 10-point output. Karl Mueller had a game total of 14 points for Kaukauna, while Mark Kobin added 10.

Stelsel and Singer shared scoring honors for Waupun as they both sank seven from the floor and added six gifts for a total of 20 points. Jim Petersen contributed 15 for the losers. The Warriors were especially accurate from the charity stripe as they sank 20 shots in 24 tries.

Little Chute Win Paced by Mollen

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

LITTLE CHUTE — Led by a brilliant shooting performance by Steve Mollen, the Little Chute Mustangs rolled to an 83-64 non-conference victory over Weyauwega here Tuesday night.

Mollen put on a fantastic display in the first half when he scored 23 of his 32 points and helped the Mustangs to a comfortable 20-point lead at halftime.

The 6-3 senior forward fired in 11 field goals out of 13 attempts in the first two periods and connected from the floor on his first seven shots. Guards Ben Pennings and Tim Fitzpatrick were largely responsible for Mollen's success as they did a beautiful job of feeding him in the first two segments.

Played Reserves

Mollen failed to score in the third period as Coach Al Schmidt alternated reserves throughout the quarter and Mollen saw only a few minutes of action. He picked up nine more points in the early minutes of the final quarter.

The victory boosted the Mustangs to a 7-2 overall record while the Indians slipped to a 4-4 mark.

In addition to pouring through 52 points in the first two periods (26 in each quarter), the Mustangs did an excellent job on defense, stole the ball frequently and broke up Weyauwega plays. Little Chute scorched the nets at a 55 per cent clip in the opening two periods with 21 field goals out of 38 attempts.

Weyauwega hit its first five shots from the field and jumped to a 10-6 lead before Little Chute caught up, at 13-all. It was still tied at 15-15 when Mollen went to work and drilled seven straight points. Fitzpatrick added a pair of buckets and the Mustangs were off and running with a 26-16 advantage.

The Indians didn't give up, however as 'Wega scored 11 points at the outset of the second period while limiting the Mustangs to four and the margin was cut to 30-27.

Picks Up Slack

Dick Hackel then picked up the slack for the Mustangs and scored 12 points before the intermission to put Little Chute in command again.

Hackel finished with 22 points on six field goals and 10 of 11 from the free throw line. Gary Van Handel also was in the

NHL President Levies $7,000 In Fines Due to Brawling

MONTREAL (AP) — Walt McKechnie of the Minnesota North Stars learned Tuesday that it does not pay to argue with National Hockey League referees.

McKechnie was tagged with a $250 fine by NHL President Clarence Campbell for an incident in which he attempted to accost referee Bryan Lewis in a New Year's Eve game in Pittsburgh.

But McKechnie was not the only player to receive bad news from Campbell. Players on four NHL teams were fined a total of $7,000 for leaving their benches to join on-ice brawls.

Just before Christmas, Campbell assessed a total of $15,850 in fines for similar incidents.

The McKechnie incident started when Lewis handed him an elbowing penalty. The Minnesota player argued the point and was then slapped with a misconduct penalty for using abusive language.

Campbell said that the player then went out of his way to obstruct Lewis while the latter was returning to his position and then received a game misconduct.

The misconduct cost the Minnesota player $50 while the game misconduct was $200. Normally the fine for a game misconduct is $100 but Campbell felt that the regular fine was inadequate in McKechnie's case and therefore added the extra $100 penalty.

The first of the bench-clearing incidents occurred in a Toronto Maple Leafs-Philadelphia Flyers game at Maple Leaf Gardens, Dec. 26.

Fourteen Philadelphia players each paid the automatic $100 fine for leaving their bench to join the melee and 12 Leaf players paid $200 each, because it was the second such occurrence involving Toronto players in less than three weeks.

Wild Rose at Shiocton (non-conf.)

Bonduel's Bears are sitting pretty as the Central Wisconsin Conference basketball scramble resumes this week.

Coach John Reinke's cagers, boasting a 5-0 league record, will be out to keep at least a 2-game advantage over co-runnersup Little Chute Marion, and Wittenberg-Birnamwood (all 3-2) Friday night.

The Bears collide with fifth-place Manawa (2-3) at Bonduel, while Little Chute visits W-B and Marion travels to Wautoma (1-4). Last-place Shiocton (1-5) entertains Wild Rose in non-conference action.

Teams in the CWC saw their last conference competition Dec. 18 when Bonduel toppled Little Chute, 61-53, in overtime; Manawa nipped Wautoma, 69-68, and Marion buried Shiocton, 77-52.

In non-league games Dec. 29, Wittenberg-Birnamwood thrashed Bowler, 80-55, but Marion dropped a 72-60 decision to Hortonville. Tuesday night contests pitted Ashwaubenon at Shiocton, Bonduel at Oconto Falls, Weyauwega at Little Chute, Marion at Tigerton, and Manawa at Hortonville.

Bonduel owns the best team marks in the CWC, sporting top 77.8 offensive and 51.6 defensive averages. Little Chute is second in both departments with a 72.4 mark on offense and a 56.8 log on defense.

The individual scoring leadership has been taken over by Marion's Goodwin Peterson. Peterson owns a 21.6 average after successive 29-and 26-point performances in recent league starts.

W-B's Harold Mavis is second with a 21.0 scoring rate, followed by Bonduel's Mike Eisch, 18.6; Little Chute's Dick Hackel, 17.2; and Manawa's Kent Gehrke, 16.8.

Bonduel has the most double-figuring scorers in the league as all five Bear regulars are hitting at 10 points or better. In addition to Eisch at 18.6, other team high point-makers include Mike Boettcher, 14.2; Jim Reinke, 12.6; Jim Foreman, 11.2, and Neil Boettcher, 10.0.

Hackel is joined by three more teammates in twin figures for Little Chute. Gary Van Handel owns a 16.6 average, Steve Mollen 16.5, and Tim Fitzpatrick, 13.2.

Stout's Glover Wins Honor

MADISON (AP)— Cal Glover, who set a new Stout State career scoring mark in a recent holiday tournament, has been named Wisconsin State University Conference basketball player of the week.

The 6-foot-2 product of Rockford, Ill., led the host Bluedevils to the Red Cedar tourney title, sparking victories over Bemidji State and Dubuque University.

Glover's 59 points in the two contests gave him a career total of 1,413 points to surpass the former high of 1,375 set by Fred Seggelink in the early 1960s.

The Lucey Inaugural Address

The inaugural address of a new governor, particularly one who represents a change in partisan command of the state's highest office, is intended to set a tone for the coming administration and the listing of broad goals in contrast to the specifics which will come later in the governor's State of the State message and budget proposals to the legislature.

Within that framework, Gov. Patrick Lucey's speech in the Capitol rotunda Monday can best be described as realistic. With Lucey beginning the state's first four-year gubernatorial term, it may be that many in the Wisconsin electorate expected an address in more sweeping terms and with more lofty goals. It may even be that Lucey expected to be able to deliver such an address when he was stating his beliefs for a better Wisconsin on the campaign trail last autumn.

But the new governor is up against reality. To his credit, he is making no attempt to fuzz over this state of affairs. Lucey has warned that there must be some belt-tightening in the next biennial budget and he has made it clear that he recognizes it will be no easy thing — politically and economically — to ask for additional state taxation at a time when the nation is fighting against an economic downturn. What the new governor can do about this in the face of required expenditures will be made clear in his budget message. But there can be no quarrel with the scope of the problem and the hopes of the taxpayers as he has outlined them for the next biennium.

In his address, Lucey noted that the state's revenue problems are largely not of its own making. There is the strange combination of inflation, which must be beaten back on the national level, and a recession, which must be turned around, also on the national level. As a Democrat, Lucey also could complain of the continued financial drain of the Vietnam war which is not being wound down as fast as his party thinks it can be. The new governor, in a less partisan nature, also could have added a remark about a Congress which has not been able to match all the talk of reordering priorities with deeds such as federal revenue sharing with the states or a like program of more federal income tax deductions for the increasing load of state and local taxes.

Lucey took note of the political circumstances facing him with Republican control of the State Senate. A governor cannot act without the cooperation of those with whom he shares power, he said. Wisconsin must demand this cooperation from both the Senate and of the new Democratic administration. And the state also will expect the same kind of working for the common good in the Lucey administration's relations with a Republican president in reaching Mr. Nixon's goals of revenue sharing and welfare reform, to name but two fields left dangling by the past session of Congress.

The new governor reflected accurately the returns of the November election when he said the state must increase its activities in the fields of anti-pollution and in taking on urban problems with more than slogans and promises. But again, much of the answer must be found in Washington, and states must press for a rearranging of spending and programs to grant states and localities more of the tax dollar.

Gov. Lucey is correct in saying the 1970s opened with a new awareness of problems and a consensus that the time for meeting them was running out. The theme of his inaugural address was that Wisconsin must not pull back from these problems and that the road will not be easy. Regardless of partisan affiliation, the Wisconsin voter will accept this call to action within the realistic terms the new governor has set forth.

The Army May Be Watching You

For some time there have been hopeful opinions expressed that perhaps the capitalist and communist nations were drawing closer together. The Commies have found they have had to have work incentives to raise production and there has been in some Communist countries at least a lessening of pressures against dissent.

But unfortunately it also seems to be working in the other direction as the army surveillance of perfectly respectable American citizens indicates.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird was quite right in ordering a thorough investigation of the problem, exposed by Senator Sam Ervin of North Carolina, who cannot be regarded as a doctrinaire liberal but is a staunch defendant of individual rights. This is another case in which the rights of the individual — civil liberties — run up against the fears about threats to the national security and such matters are not easy to decide. We know what happened during World War II when Japanese-Americans — and let us emphasize that American part — were put in detention camps and that order was later upheld by the United States Supreme Court in a decision that seems completely out of line with American traditions.

But even if that detention could be upheld, there is no reason today for army investigations of citizens just because they may be critical of the way the country is being run. One federal law enforcement official who didn't want to be named tried to explain that "if someone is out there plotting a riot or a bombing I think you will agree that it is better for society if we know about it and can act to head it off." Fine and good. But is Senator Adlai Stevenson III plotting a riot or a bombing? As Senator Ervin mentioned, he has at times been critical of the Johnson and the Nixon administrations so he may be on the questionable list of the Secret Service. This is entirely out of keeping with the American frontier tradition, Senator Ervin points out, and he is right.

There are fears in the nation, we have had three assassinations of prominent citizens, including a President of the United States, and innumerable threats against the lives of others. Perhaps there is a real danger of revolution in the nation, although such a possibility seems remote at present — perhaps even more remote than one or two years ago.

In any event, there is no reason for the type of investigation by the Army as charged by Senator Ervin. If there is, why are we fighting the Communists? What difference does it make which big brother is watching us?

Lesson: Don't Wear a Wig

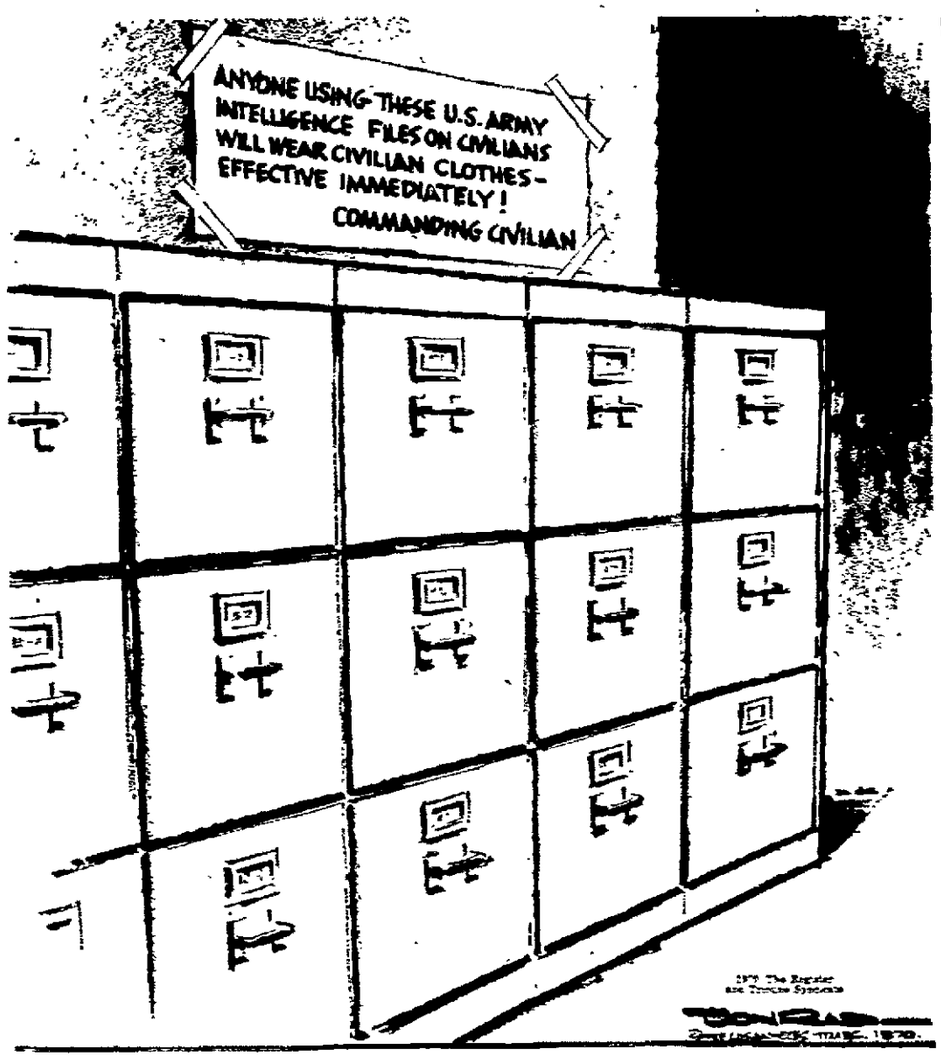

Oh, come on now.

The story of the member of the National Guard in Idaho suddenly ordered to sixteen months of active duty, although his six years of active vulnerability is up in February, is one more reason to cast serious doubts about the military leadership in this country.

John Baugh, who is a folk singer and thereby makes his living — not in the National Guard — tried a wig to appease the military regulations which somehow equate long hair, beards and until lately mustaches with all sorts of dreadful goings-on including treason, homosexuality, pot and whatever else they can think of that's un-American.

Baugh tried a wig while on active duty. Then there was the unfortunately usual military bruhaha. This officer said such and so. That officer said so and such. Some knew he was wearing a short wig. Some didn't. And what in the world this old passel of dispute has to do with the defense of the nation should be incomprehensible to most Americans, but apparently not to the generals of the Army.

We suspect Baugh's orders may be changed. There probably are good reasons for sensible "dress rules." But when are military — and educational authorities — going to find out that clothes do not make the man and certainly not his morals?

Dump Nixon in 1972?

Republican Party Liberals Might Put Up Own Candidate

BY KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

There is a possibility, unlikely but growing, that President Nixon's 1972 renomination will be challenged by the moderate-liberal wing of the Republican Party.

As of January, 1971, this is mostly talk, fanned by a number of Republican governors and others anxious to push the Nixon Administration towards a more liberal policy stance. But more and more people are actually taking the idea seriously. Two of the most frequently mentioned challengers are Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York and the Empire State's governor, Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Mayor Lindsay is not much of a threat to Mr. Nixon. Although he has little to lose from venturing a primary battle or two, his party credentials are too poor for the majority of moderate Republican regulars. Nelson Rockefeller, though, with his unmatched resources and unsatisfied ambition, could mount a real contest if he decided — at age 64 in 1972 — to risk the now-or-never gamble.

Help From Michigan

Should Rockefeller throw the dice, the odds against him will be long. Unless the national picture is greatly changed, the multi-millionaire governor would be likely to get substantial party support in only two of the eight biggest states — New York and Michigan. William Milliken, the governor of Michigan, is a liberal who has been making harsh anti-Nixon noises since before the GOP Governors Conference in Sun Valley last month. Milliken's anti-Nixonism helped get him elected vice-chairman of the Republican Governors

Phillips

Association, and he will succeed to the chairmanship in 1972, at which time he is expected to cause considerable problems for the White House.

The first states with Presidential primaries — New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts — could give an early boost to a moderate, anti-Nixon bandwagon. Three of these four states backed liberal candidates at either the 1964 or 1968 GOP national conventions. Furthermore, the New York State Legislature, to convene this month, will be considering a proposal to establish a full-scale N. Y. Presidential primary for 1972. If enacted and scheduled for spring, 1972, a New York primary would present Governor Rockefeller with an all-important Rubicon.

But those who think that Nelson Rockefeller could play havoc with President Nixon — as Eugene McCarthy did with Lyndon Johnson — raise an implausible analogy. Clean Gene McCarthy came from out of the blue, a lone-wolf Senator with a cause, the perfect political guerrilla. Nelson Rockefeller, on the other hand, is an old face, a 12-year governor and party bankroller with a long record to shoot at and a home state political structure for the White House to undermine and attack.

If liberal Republicans move against President Nixon in 1972, New York and Michigan are two of the states in which they are most open to return attack. This is because the very liberalism of the local GOP has given rise to statewide conservative third party movements.

New York's Conservative Party was founded in 1961 by a group of young conservative lawyers furious at the way Nelson Rockefeller helped scuttle (or so they believed) Richard Nixon's 1960 Presidential bid. During the Nineteen-Sixties, the Conservative Party grew steadily stronger, finally electing a U. S. Senator in the 1970 three-way contest between a liberal Republican, a liberal Democrat and a Conservative.

Gave Support to Buckley

Because of Nelson Rockefeller's 1969-70 move to the right in New York politics, the Conservative Party did not field major opposition against him in 1970, and in return the governor gave covert support to James Buckley, the Senate nominee of the Conservative Party. But if Rockefeller were to shift back to the left and challenge President Nixon, the Conservative Party would fight him again, as of yore. Whereas the Conservatives want to put President's Nixon's name on their ballot column if he is renominated, they would run a separate Presidential ticket against Rockefeller, and, with the support of Nixon Republicans, surely deny the New York governor the electoral votes of his home state.

Through Senator James Buckley, the Conservative Party expects to receive considerable patronage from the Nixon Administration, giving Empire State conservatives a new weapon. And many of the Conservative Party's zealots would find true happiness in a return to all-out war with Rockefeller Republicanism.

In Michigan, opposition to Governor Milliken's liberalism is such that conservative forces, barely defeated in the 1970 primary, are planning to put a new Conservative Party on the ballot in 1972 in order to undermine the state's liberal GOP.

Any moderate-liberal move to dump President Nixon in 1972 could rapidly turn into an intra-party bloodbath.

Last Friday afternoon a party of Appleton Odd Fellows, including Grand Master (Sam) Ryan, went to Menasha for the purpose of instituting a lodge in that village.

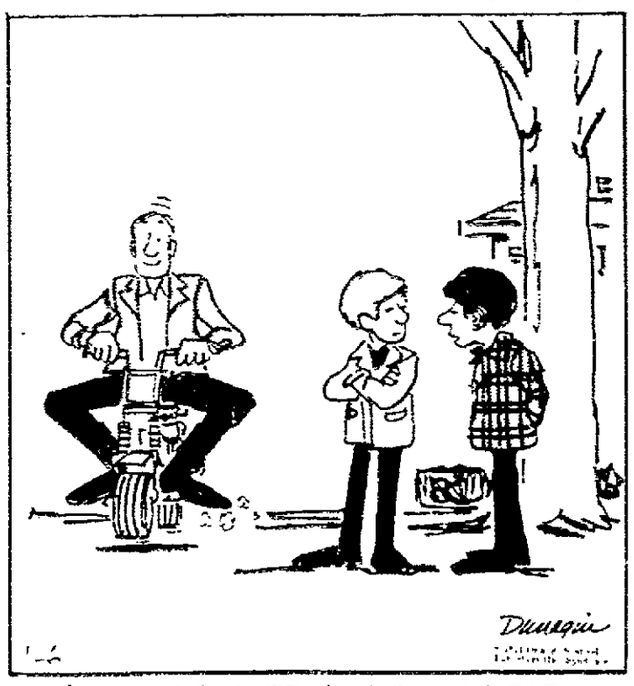

We believe nothing occurred to mar the harmony of the visit except a runaway on their return home the next morning. This little episode occurred on a narrow portion of the road leading from Appleton to Menasha.

Fortunately all of the excursionists escaped without serious injury, which fact was probably owing to the dexterity with which the unruly team was managed.

Significant Property Tax Relief Is Just Not Possible Today

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — It is one of the lesser ironies of the political system that the municipal treasurers of Wisconsin dispatch their melancholy property tax bills at a time coinciding with the festive year-end holidays.

It is a kind of omen of more wintry tax weather ahead that in spite of continued increases of state tax shares to most localities and more urgent taxpayer resistance the greetings from the city halls this year are even more grim than in some of the difficult years immediately past.

In the state as a whole, the sum of the levies against property has been rising at a rate of 10 to 15 per cent annually. The aggregate is now well over $1.1 billion yearly, or more than twice the sum yielded by the second most important revenue source in this state which is the personal income tax. At our house this year, the postman delivered the chilly decision of city hall to raise its exaction well beyond the average, or more than 15 per cent, representing not only an increase in the actual tax rate but a hefty increase in the valuation of our modest but adequate dwelling.

Reassessments Necessary

The reassessment process is a necessary one to the extent that there are changes in the economy that are reflected in the sales value of the property taxed. The law is clear. Fair market value is the rule. But the weary target of these operations finds it difficult to resist the idea that sometimes the revaluation is not solely keyed to market values but reflects also a desire to squeeze more feathers out of the goose without seeming to do so by way of the mill tax rate.

This Capitol reporter confesses to profound doubt that some of the assessments placed on properties in his neighborhood, taking into account the stated ratio of assessed to "true" values, truly reflect market values — if market values are defined as those that can actually be obtained when a home is offered for sale.

The state now has a new state administration which is pledged to a number of policy departures, explicitly or otherwise, and chief among them is some measure of relief for the property tax strain.

No one can doubt the earnestness of Gov. Lucey's concern. He is by way of being an expert in the matter. As a professional realtor he is quite aware of the depressing effect of high and often confiscatory tax rates upon the sale of properties. As a politician he is also expertly aware that his positions and statements on property taxes won more attention for him and more votes than any other single theme he enunciated in a year of hard campaigning.

Not Much Relief

The question then becomes: What can the home owner (and the many other owners of property) expect in the way of relief from the new men in charge of state government administration?

The unhappy truth is that he should not expect much. This is not to suggest that Lucey and his people are not willing and anxious to do something to alleviate the punitive weight of the snowballing property levies. It is, rather, a realistic estimate that all the goodwill that they undoubtedly possess will make it difficult to achieve more than a token measure of relief.

The other demands upon the new administration, as the increasingly glum statements of the governor and his lieutenants have so clearly shown, are so enormous that there will be relatively little room for the kind of maneuver that will permit significant and appreciable amelioration of the property tax load.

Must Tighten Expenses

The more attentively one examines the issue as a whole, the more evident it becomes that relief must be sought through a tightening of municipal expenditure controls. But a clear-eyed appraisal quickly shows that avenue provides little more hope for change than additional state funding through higher state levies.

The public appetite for more and more governmental gratuities on the local as well as the state and federal levels shows no sign of lessening. Such forces as the civil servants' lobby are becoming more aggressive. New conceptions of community need and new definitions of local government responsibility — as in the zeal for environmental protection measures — will inexorably show in future local expenditures and tax billings.

Perhaps it is natural enough, but is worth remembering that the Wisconsin situation — considered as a whole — is not unique. The only comparison readily available suggests that the property tax burden here is about 15th in severity in the country, which is roughly comparable to the state's aggregate economic capacity.

Which is a way of saying, fellow sufferer, that things are tough everywhere, if there is any solace in that realization.

Thoughts at Large Offered by Harris

The real tragedy implicit in McLuhan's concept of the modern world as a "global village" is that we have indeed been compressed to the small dimensions of a village without at the same time having become neighborly; which is worse for world relations that if we still lived weeks or months apart from each other.

Whenever someone mentions his "sincerity," I recall Henri Peyre's fine observation that "The primary condition for being sincere is the same as for being humble: not to boast of it, and probably not even to be aware of it."

Superstition has betrayed fewer men than skepticism has immobilized.

Actors and entertainers and celebrities of that sort are judged more leniently for their dereliction of morals than we judge ordinary people; the reason being that we grant such figures special privileges in order to have them act out our private fantasies, so that we might enjoy vicariously what we lack the resources to experience at firsthand.

Speaking of entertainers, how little the essentials of human nature have changed since Horace wrote in his Satires 2,000 years ago: "There is a fault common to all singers — when they're among friends and are asked to sing they don't want to, and when they're not asked to sing they never stop."

The reason so few marriages are happy is that young women spend more time in making up their faces than in making up their minds; and young men expend more energy in trying to achieve physical contact than in trying to learn what lies beneath the makeup.

Villanova '5' Romps Over North Dakota

Davidson's Streak Ended at 36 by Furman, 84-75

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Marquette's third-ranked, undefeated Warriors wasted no time rolling to their 22nd successive victory—the nation's longest streak—while No. 14 Villanova waited until the intermission was over to post an impressive triumph.

The Warriors, 10-0 this season, racked up 19 straight points early in the game en route to a 78-63 trouncing of Chicago Loyola in Tuesday night's top collegiate basketball game.

But the Wildcats, leading North Dakota State by a slim 43-37 margin at the break, smothered the host Bisons with a second-half zone defense and stormed to a 94-61 victory, their 10th in 13 games.

First Setback

In other major hoopla, Furman handed Davidson its first Southern Conference setback in 36 games, 84-75; St. Louis University turned back Southern Illinois 84-70; Minnesota rallied for a 92-87 overtime victory over Niagara; Oklahoma outscored Arkansas 115-110; East Carolina shelled Richmond 79-63 and New Orleans Loyola hung on to turn back hard-charging Hawaii 111-104.

North Dakota State hit 53 per cent of its first-half field goal attempts before Villanova's tough defense forced the Bisons to shoot from the outside, where their accuracy fell apart.

Clarence Smith's 21 points, Tom Ingelsby's 19 and Hank Siemiontkowski's 18 paced Villanova while Mike Kuppich scored 21 for NDS.

Balanced Attack

Furman's Paladins put together a balanced attack with five players in double figures to drop Davidson's season mark to 6-3 and its conference record to 3-1. Furman, also 6-3 over-all, is 2-0 in loop play. Russ Hunt was the top Paladin with 17 points and Steve Kirley the Davidson leader with 16.

St. Louis, trailing 26-21 with 6:41 to play in the first half, hit 14 consecutive points to take a 38-30 halftime lead, then expanded it to as many as 18 points in the second session. The Billikens were paced by Carlos Martinez' 22 points while Greg Starrick was high for the SIU Salukis with 20.

Ollie Shannon sat out Minnesota's first half with an ankle injury, then hit 15 second-half points as the Gophers, back by as many as eight, knotted the score 75-75 at the end of regulation play.

Jim Brewer, who led the winners with 24 points, put them ahead to stay with their first two field goals of the overtime. Al Williams had 27 for Niagara.

Vernon Murphy of Arkansas broke school records with 19 free throws and 23 free throw attempts—but his game-high 33 points weren't enough to cool off the Sooners, who scored the most points in their history. Bobby Jack hit 27 for Oklahoma.

Winneconne Quint Loses By 4 Points

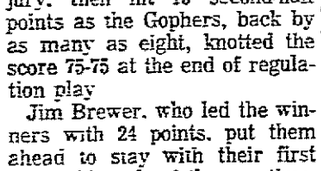

Hot shooting at the free throw line helped Campbellsport record a 85-81 victory over Winneconne in a non-conference game at Campbellsport Tuesday night.

Campbellsport hit 23 of 32 free throws. The Wolves had three more field goals than the victors.

Dennis Pieper pumped in 12 field goals and nine free throws, for 33 points, to lead Campbellsport while a teammate, Jim Gantner, had 24.

Winneconne had five players in double figures with Bill Rice high with 21 markers. Randy Doverspike and Randy Kasuboski each scored 14 for the Wolves while Dary Koneman had 13 and Gene Tippler had 11.

The Wolves shot 44 per cent from the floor with 34 out of 76 while Campbellsport had 31 of 60 for 51 per cent.

Bo Belinsky Says He's Quitting Baseball

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Veteran pitcher Bo Belinsky said Tuesday he is quitting baseball.

"There is a time when every player has to step down and I think this year's is the right time," the 34-year-old southpaw said.

Belinsky's 14-year baseball career included major league stops at Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Houston, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. Last year he pitched eight innings in three games for the Redlegs before being sent to the minors.

BY LEE REMMEL

Larry Krause's football future, illumined by a sparkling rookie year, would appear secure.

But the Packers' freewheeling freshman, a refreshingly genuine All-American boy type, is taking nothing for granted.

Krause, the first 17th round draft choice to make the Green Bay grade since Bart Starr turned the trick in 1956, is not letting his surprising third place finish in National Football Conference kickoff returns affect his equilibrium.

Larry, just beginning an off-season assignment as a grade school physical education teacher in De Pere, says with sincere modesty, "Right now, my only goal for next season is to make the team again . . . and let it go from there. All I'm worried about right now, with the draft coming up, is making that 40-man team. If I do make it, I would like to play a little more than I did this past season.

New Coach Factor

"Another thing, of course, is that with a new coach coming in, everything will be different. It'll be like starting all over again . . . There'll be some big changes made."

Zeke Bratkowski, the Packers' offensive backfield coach, is convinced the pride of St. Norbert will have nothing to fear, regardless of who succeeds Phil Bengtson as head coach.

"I think Larry's future is all ahead of him," The Brat says. "He has great potential. He has all the tools to be a fine offensive halfback. Larry has excellent hands and he has adapted to the pro system tremendously well.

"He also is a very fine blocker and a very good student of the game. He concentrates in all the meetings and does a real good job of learning his assignments from week to week.

"Larry's mistakes have been few and far between and, if he did make a mistake, he didn't repeat it . . . He's a very consientious athlete. His performance on the special teams was just outstanding and he did a tremendous job of returning kicks."

Krause admits he "felt good" about his high finish in the kickoff return race but adds, "I was wishing I could have had a little better game in our last one at Detroit so I could have held second place.

"But," he conceded with a boyish chuckle, "Cecil Turner was first and Alvin Haymond was second, so I was in pretty good company."

'I'm Always Scared'

Krause said his 100-yard runback in Pittsburgh, which triggered the Pack's final victory of 1970, "gave me a little extra confidence . . . I don't know how to explain it, but I felt more sure of myself back there.

"But I'm always scared when the ball comes — scared of dropping it," he laughed. "It's quite a responsibility, running back kicks. You see a lot of games which are decided by that type of thing . . . drop a kick on the one-yard line and you're in trouble."

Regardless of the pressure, the muscular St. Norbert immortal wants to continue in the role. "I really like it — it gives you a chance to take off with the ball," he says. "It's exciting.

"It's true that you take some pretty good licks — if you don't get slowed up and the men coming at you don't get slowed up you're heading for a big collision — but I don't really think about getting crunched."

Although Larry looks to the future with caution, the good citizens of his home town, Greenwood, Wis., (population 1,100) have no such reservations.

"I guess they're planning some kind of a 'night' for me in February," Larry reports, with pardonable pride.

Davis Paces Open Bowling

3,546 Total Leads St. Paul Tourney; Shank Trails by 36

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Despite a horrendous 149 fifth game, Dave Davis of Miami continued to set the pace in the $75,000 U. S. Open Bowling Tournament in St. Paul Tuesday at the completion of two rounds of qualifying.

The lanky southpaw, winner of two PBA national championships, came back from the 149 game to finish his second game block with 262 and 247 games and a 1,744 total. Added to his 1,802 leading first round total, Davis sports a 16-game tally of 3,546.

He needed those two big games at the finish as Bob Shank of Lorain, Ohio, a rookie on the pro tour, also had a strong finish to pull into second place. Shank added 1,758 Tuesday to his opening 1,752 Monday and sports a 16-game set of 3,510.

Second-year pro Jimmy McHugh of Newark, N.J., rolled into third place on the second best series of the day, an 1,814 total. He had games of 266, 223, 218, 223, 197, 235, 226, 226.

Bob Strampe, a veteran Detroit pro and a former National All-Star champion, rolled the best round of the second day's action, an 1,827 set on games of 256, 205, 213, 225, 203, 235, 216, 267. That set helped Strampe vault into fifth place.

Report Redskins Have Solid Offer for Allen

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Allen, just let go as coach of the Los Angeles Rams, has received a solid offer to become head coach and general manager of the Washington Redskins, according to the Washington Post.

Allen is expected to reply to the offer in a day or two, sports editor Martie Zad reported in the newspaper's Wednesday editions.

The Post quoted Redskins' President Edward Bennett Williams as saying "progress is being made" to clear up the team coaching situation for next season and he is "moving as rapidly as I can."

Bill Austin, the current Redskins' coach, ended up with a losing season in his first year at the helm in Washington.

Allen, who has admitted the Redskins sent out a feeler to him about a coaching job, was notified by the Rams Dec. 31 that his five-year contract with the Los Angeles club would not be renewed.

Allen's name has been linked to coaching jobs with the Houston Oilers, Green Bay Packers and Philadelphia Eagles.

Vance 10-for-10 In Second Half Floor Shooting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eau Claire State celebrated a new level in the national small-college basketball ratings with a 103-68 State University Conference victory Tuesday night.

The Blugolds whipped River Falls State. Stout State knocked off La Crosse 92-74, and, like Eau Claire, has but one loss this season to mar the record.

Oshkosh defeated Platteville State 114-96. Rockford of Illinois beat Beloit College 83-46, and Wisconsin-Green Bay won the Hatter tournament in Deland, Fla., with a 67-66 decision over Stetson.

Eau Claire, 15th last week, was elevated this week to a share of ninth place in The Associated Press small-college poll. The Blugolds' only loss in 11 games was to top-ranked Kentucky State.

Tyree Vance scored 10 field goals in the second half without a miss to help the Oshkosh victory. Teammate Greg Seibold had 20 points, Vance 24.

Friday's Games:
Valders at Freedom
Brillion at Mishicot
Hilbert at Reedsville
Denmark at Wrightstown

Five Freedom players scored in double figures as the Irish whipped Hilbert, 70-54, in Olympian Conference action on the Wolves' court Tuesday night.

The win boosted Freedom's record to 4-2 in league competition, good for a second-place tie with Mishicot. Mishicot also won on the road, downing Denmark's Vikings, 64-50, at Denmark.

Front-running Valders, meanwhile, scored a 65-57 home-court triumph over Reedsville for the Vikings' sixth loop victory without a loss.

In the circuit's remaining tilt, Brillion evened its record at 3-3 by romping over Wrightstown, 75-42. The Tigers have lost all six of their conference starts.

A full slate of four more games is on the docket Friday in the Olympian Conference, highlighted by Valders' invasion of Freedom.

18 for Brockman

Tony Brockman pumped in 18 points to pace Freedom's conquest of Hilbert. Bob Garvey added 13 for the Irish, while Bruce Janssen, Joe Vandenberg and Gary Hooyman each contributed 10 markers.

John Schneider hit 18 points, John Kees 12 and Mike Novak 10 for Hilbert, which trailed by margins of 14-10, 35-19, and 61-38 at the quarter marks.

Mishicot used an 18-11 advantage in the third period to pull away from Denmark after the Wolves held a slim 27-24 edge at intermission.

Al Schmidt and Ray Berres shared Mishicot scoring laurels with 17 points each, while Jerry Leiterman meshed 14 and Dan Karbon 13 for the losing Vikes.

A big second quarter propelled Valders past Reedsville as the Vikings outscored the Panthers, 24-10, and grabbed a 34-19 halftime cushion. Reedsville wasn't able to get closer than eight points in the second half.

A 17-point performance from Jim Pivonka topped Valders' scorers, and Scott Schultz and John Kugle swished 12 and 11 points, respectively, for Reedsville.

Brillion enjoyed a 42-16 edge in rebounds in drubbing Wrightstown. The Lions jumped to a 17-7 first quarter lead and were never in trouble.

Jeff Brandes sank 10 baskets for 20 markers in heading Brillion point-makers. Blaine Keuer chipped in with 12 and Hervey Smith notched 10.

Wrightstown scoring honors went to Darrell Smith with 13 points and Terry Schaeuble with 10.

Join Protest of Haywood Signing

Bullets Strike Down Troubled Sonics

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Spencer Haywood did his thing once again—and Baltimore joined the list of National Basketball Association teams doing theirs.

Haywood, recently signed by Seattle after becoming disenchanted with his contract with Denver of the rival American Basketball Association, was on the court again Tuesday night.

But the 6-foot-9 star, last season's ABA Most Valuable Player, couldn't keep the Bullets from shooting down the SuperSonics 109-101.

In other NBA action, Detroit whipped Atlanta 98-90, Portland edged Boston 124-120, Philadelphia beat San Francisco 97-92, Chicago clubbed San Diego 116-103 and Cincinnati stomped Los Angeles 146-112. In the ABA, Indiana nipped Memphis 92-88, Texas blitzed Pittsburgh 142-133 and Utah trimmed Denver 114-99.

Despite winning, the Bullets announced they were filing a protest against Haywood's presence, becoming the sixth NBA team to take issue with Seattle's acquisition of the former University of Detroit star.

The clubs contend the Sonics violated an NBA rule which prohibits the signing of a player before his college class is graduated. Haywood, whose class graduates this June, turned pro after his sophomore year.

Several teams are also insisting that Haywood's name be placed in the upcoming NBA draft and say Seattle's action could result in wholesale raids of college players by the pros.

But Len Wilkens, the Sonics' player-coach, replied: "We're not the ones who are violating the rules. The ABA already has.

No College Player

"He's not a college player," Wilkens said. "He's a pro. He is in the open market. I get tired of other teams suing us because we signed him. They wanted to sign him too."

Wilkens led Seattle against Baltimore with 27 points while Haywood scored 14, equalling the output in his NBA debut Monday night, a 124-110 loss in Milwaukee.

The Bullets, overcoming a nine-point deficit, rallied in the final period as Earl Monroe hit 10 of his 24 points. Gus Johnson also tallied 24 for the Central Division leaders.

Howard Komives' six points in the final four minutes enabled the Pistons to break an 86-86 tie and pull away from Atlanta. Otto Moore topped Detroit with 22. Lou Hudson of the Hawks hit 32.

Portland opened a 12-point fourth-quarter lead, then had to scramble to fight off Boston in the opener of a doubleheader in Philadelphia's Spectrum. Geoff Petrie and Rick Adelman, who led the Trail Blazers with 28 and 27 points respectively, hit the clutch baskets that sank the Celtics, led by JoJo White with 24.

In the nightcap, the 76ers survived a late-game spell of cold shooting to turn back San Francisco. Archie Clark scored 22 for Philadelphia and Nate Thurmond's 28 led the Warriors, who stormed from 15 points back before losing.

Cincinnati rolled up its biggest point total of the season despite a season-high outburst of 41 points by Los Angeles center Wilt Chamberlain, who also passed the 20,000 career rebound mark. Johnny Green's 34 points and Tom Van Arsdale's 31 led the Royals.

Marion Quint Romps Over Tigers, 74-48

TIGERTON — Marion jumped off to a 7-0 lead before Tigerton was able to mount any attack and went on to register an easy 74-48 non-conference win over the Tigerton Tigers.

Marion outscored the Tigers in the third quarter, 19-15, to give the Mustangs a 51-41 advantage at the period's end. In the fourth quarter Marion frosted the cake as they poured in 23 points.

Balanced scoring was a big factor as four Marion players reached double figures. Mike Daley led the way with 23 points, Goodwin Peterson added 18, Mike Meyer 17 and Kent Brandenburg 13.

Tigerton was paced by Les Patzer with 15 points. Bruce Brietenfelt added 13 points for the Tigers.

TIGERTON (13-15-13-7) Brietenfeldt 6 1 0, Schuh 2 1 3, Laatsch 2 0 2, Patzer 7 1 4, Kreiblock 1 1 1, Dankmeyer 2 2 0, Knaut 1 0 0. Totals 21-6-10. FTM—15.
MARION (11-21-19-23—74) Daley 11 1 0, Peterson 8 2 4, Meyer 8 1 2, Brandenburg 6 1 4, Mielke 0 0 1, Newcomb 6 1 0, Halpop 0 0 1, Bertram 0 0 1, Helms 1 0 0. Totals 34-6-17. FTM—6.

Friday's Games:
Winneconne at Omro
Waupaca at Berlin
Weyauwega at Hortonville
Ripon at New London

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Ripon invades New London Friday in a key East Central Conference contest this week.

The host Bulldogs and the Tigers are tied for second in the ECC with 4-1 records.

Other contests pit Weyauwega (2-3) against unbeaten Hortonville (5-0) on the leaders' court, Waupaca (2-3) at Berlin (2-3), and Winneconne (1-4) against winless Omro (0-5) on the Foxes' floor.

New London and Ripon hold identical point spreads over their opponents, although they have used different paths. The Bulldogs' 16.2 spread has come about by an output of 69.4 per game and a league-leading defense which has yielded 53.2. Ripon is the scoring leader with 75.8 per game and second defensively with a 59.6 average.

Question Mark

The home court advantage belongs to New London. A question mark facing the Bulldogs is the availability of 6-3 center Cal Handschke who was injured in a Christmas holiday automobile accident. Handschke is the leading scorer, with a 14.6 average and is second in rebounding.

Completing the starting unit are 6-3 Gary Wendt, the leading rebounder and a 13.2 average, and Dave Teschke, 6-1 with a 12.0 average at forwards and Bill Stern and Roger Steingraber at guard, both averaging slightly under 10 points a game. Stern's and Steingraber's forte has been defense and floormanship.

Ripon's only loss has been to Hortonville, 70-67. New London fell to the Polar Bears, 60-58.

Since the season opening loss to Hortonville, the Tigers have mauled their opponents including tough Berlin, 90-67, in their final ECC confrontation before the holiday break.

Heighth Advantage

The height advantage goes to Ripon where 6-3 Kyle Wiggs owns a 16.4 average. Henry Hilscher, a 6-0 guard, is fourth in scoring with a 16.2 mark and running mate Steve Stellmacher owns a 13.6 average. John Radke, the 6-5 pivot man, is averaging 12.0, while Kelly O'Brien is just under 10 and Bill Hub has 31 points in a reserve role.

Hortonville hasn't overwhelmed anyone the way their two top challengers have, but the adage that one point is equal to 100 has stood up for Gus Laemmrich and his team. The Bears have average 65 per game, third behind Ripon and New London, and have yielded 61.6 — fourth in the league.

Sport Balance

Tom Dorn, fifth in league scoring, is the leader with a 15.8 average for Hortonville. Roger Warning is averaging 12.8, Mark Everts 12.2 and John Kruel 11.2. Robin Pankow is slightly below 10.

Randy Faulks sports a 16.6 mark for Weyauwega and Jeff Gast is averaging 15.8. Ron Kriese at 11.2 gives the Indians a third threat.

Waupaca will be shooting to climb back into contention after a sporadic first half. Tim Lewis with a 15.2 average, Jim Jensen 11.6 and Craig Peterson and Lee Solberg (10) give the Comets a threat.

Bruce Ursin paces Berlin with a 14-point average, Larry Hollmaier is averaging 13.0, Doug Parsons 12.6 and Larry Bahr 11.8.

Ken Tritt, with a 17-point average, and Larry Dobberstein, with 15, pace Omro. Winneconne is led by Randy Kasuboski with a 14.6 production.

Tilt at Maplewood Gym

Cyclones Test New Lineup vs. Lakeland

New faces will dot the starting lineup when the Fox Valley Campus basketball team resumes action in a home contest tonight.

The Cyclones, 4-5 for the season, entertain the Lakeland Junior Varsity at the Maplewood gym at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. coach Tom Alby's athletes travel to West Bend to meet UW-Washington County.

Fox Valley is coming off its worst defeat of the season, a 114-84 trouncing at WSU-Fond du Lac back on Dec. 19. In view of the proportions of that setback, Alby has decided to revamp his starting unit in hopes of injecting new life into the Cyclone attack.

The only regular on the opening five for Fox Valley will be Steve Krueger, the former Appleton East cager who heads the team's scoring with a 25.1 average.

Reserves to Play

Rounding out the lineup will be Ray Price, Steve Sanders, Tony Cox, and Bill Weiss, all of whom have seen limited action to date. Of the quartet, Weiss has been the most consistent with an average of seven points per game.

Missing from the starting lineup will be Ron Haack, hitting at a 15.4 clip; Robin Ristau, 14.0; Terry Noeller, 10.3, and Brad Schliem, 5.1.

Lakeland's jayvees, 4-3, will have five freshmen in the starting lineup. Leading figures are 6-2 Dave Voskuil, averaging 18 points, and 5-9 Bruce Parks, averaging 15

Other regulars include 6-5 center Rick Gaumer, 6-4 Steve Hotz and 6-4½ Bob Bartholomew. Hotz is a product of Sheboygan North High School, while Bartholomew hails from Kenmore, N. Y.

The Lakers could be rusty since they have not seen action since Dec. 9 when they edged Milton in overtime.

2-6 Record

Washington County, coached by former Wisconsin gridder Tom Brigham, will carry a 2-6 overall record into Saturday night's (7:30) clash with the Cyclones.

The Wildcats have been a strong rebounding team to date but have lacked shooting prowess. They own a 2-3 log in the Southern Division of the Wisconsin Collegiate Conference.

A strong 1-2 punch for the West Bend quintet has been 6-3 center John Becker and 6-2 forward Chuck Kreniz, both of whom have averaged over 16 points per game in league play.

Also on the starting unit are 6-3 Steve Stranger, 5-10 Bob Schroeder, and 6-1 Bruce Regnitz.

Lana Koester Hits 510 in Senior Loop

Tom Hibbard Jr. hit games of 192 and 191 for a 547 series. Kim Newling had 177-518. Colin Dowling 199-517. Terry Haertl 209-501 and Dale Reh had a 201 game.

Runnerup for the girls was Kathy Swokowski with a 489 set.

Socks 552 Set

John Lutz rolled games of 206 and 182 for a 552 series and top honors in the Hahn's Lanes Junior Bowling program. Paul Petrasko fired 202 and 502 and Mike Kielbasa had 168 and 176 and finished with 500.

Dan Kubitz hit a 184 game and Wes Fietzner had 187. Mark Tesmer had a 172 game.

For the Junior Girls, Barb Frank had a 176 game and Sandy Erce rolled 147.

In the Bantam Boys Division at Hahn's, Doug Strandell blasted a 161 game to lead the way. Bob Dvorak had 155 and Mike Schabo rolled a 146 game.

Leading the Bantam Girls, was Paula Hanson with a 147 game. Lori Shuldes had 140, Ann Christman hit 139 and Renee Strunk had 131.

Defensive Rookie Award to Return Specialist Taylor

NEW YORK (AP) — Bruce Taylor, the cornerback and punt return specialist who keyed San Francisco's upset of Minnesota, was named by The Associated Press today as the National Football League's Defensive Rookie of the Year.

Taylor, who joined the 49ers out of Boston University, received 23 votes from a special panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Jim Files, the New York Giants middle linebacker from Oklahoma, was second with 14 votes in the balloting that encompassed both the National and American Conference. Previously separate polls were conducted for the National and American Football Leagues.

Mike Reid, Cincinnati's piano-playing tackle from Penn State, was third and the high vote-getter for the American Conference with nine.

Quarterback Dennis Shaw of the Buffalo Bills was named top offensive rookie Tuesday.

"Punt returns are my thing," says Taylor who didn't score any touchdowns doing his thing but did it well enough to lead the National Conference by returning 43 punts for 516 yards and a 12-yard average.

"You have to like to return punts," says Taylor whose longest return was a 76-yarder against Chicago. But his two big ones were of 30 and 20 yards that set up touchdowns in San Francisco's 17-14 upset of Minnesota in the divisional playoffs.

"I have my own way of doing it," says Taylor, of Perth Amboy, N.J., who also ran back 12 kickoffs for 190 yards. "I watch the ball as soon as it is kicked and decide where it's going. Then I watch the coverage and try and find a hole. After I decide where I'm going, I concentrate on catching the ball."

At cornerback, one of the most difficult positions to play, Taylor intercepted three passes and returned one 70 yards.

Others receiving votes were backs Ken Ellis of Green Bay, Lemar Parrish of Cincinnati and Jake Scott of Miami, ends Jim Mitchell of Detroit and Cedric Hardman of San Francisco and linebacker Bob Babich of San Diego.

Questions Drivers Ask

Common Sense Rules in 'Stuck Light' Situation

This feature is one of a weekly series bringing together questions on highway rules and regulations — now you can drive more safely, for yourself and others — as asked by Wisconsin motorists, together with authoritative answers as given by state officials of the agencies involved. It is presented as a public service to our readers.

Q. At least once a year, I come to an intersection and stop with the light against me — it stays that way for what seems like five or ten minutes. Meanwhile traffic on the other street goes merrily on, while the cars pile up on my side. And it always happens — somebody behind me starts blowing his horn, then more take it up. What do you recommend.

A. This is the famous "question without an answer," which has been perpetrated on most of the trusting neophytes in the highway safety field. Nowhere, in either the Wisconsin statutes or administrative code, is there any statement which can be even remotely construed to apply to the "stuck light" situation. Therefore, common sense and a pragmatic attitude must apply. Of course, the results may depend on the attitude and dispositions of the police organization, having control over that location.

First, convince yourself that the light really is stuck. Use your watch — don't estimate. A time which drags on seemingly forever may actually be fairly short. Most light cycles range from 20 or 30 seconds to 90 seconds; seldom are they over. If within three to five minutes the light does not change, you may be justified in assuming it is stuck. If there is a cycle to the opposing traffic flow, choose a time between the peaks to make your crossing.

Remember — your common sense must jibe with the official attitude of the police at that particular point in time and place, or all bets are off! You're on your own.

Q. My 17-year-old son and my 71-year-old father both renewed their auto comprehensive insurance policies the other day. With the same policy coverage through the same agency in the same company, my son's policy cost something over three times what my father's did. And both had changes in premiums, my son's upward about 7 per cent, and my father's downward about 5 per cent. How can this happen?

A Since 1965, the insurance industry has been intensively collecting and studying data on the ages and other status of drivers involved in crashes. Stated simply, they have found that older drivers cost less to insure than most other age groups. The actual premium and loss experience (accident cost) indicated that older drivers had less crash expense, and so should pay lower rates. Other recent studies have confirmed the low accident rates of over-65 drivers, adding to the emphasis on their age as a significant factor in their driving record.

The same insurance studies showed that all drivers under 25 years, and young males 25 through 29, have a worse driving record, and so are to be charged more for their insurance protection, than drivers over 30, considered as the mean in accident experience. Women aged 21 through 24, previously paying the standard adult rate, will now pay at a rate eight percent higher, because of their crash experience.

As to the over-65 drivers, the reason behind their lower rates simply means that their good accident record is the result of their doing proportionately less driving. If the rate were age-adjusted, their record is not so good.

Q AS A NEW-TRUCK DEALER, I AM TAKING POSSESSION OF TRUCKS AT AN ILLINOIS LOCATION, AND AM DELIVERING THEM TO MY DEALERSHIP IN WISCONSIN UNDER MY DIRECTION. WILL THE REGULATIONS PERMIT ME TO SADDLE-MOUNT THEM THREE AT A TIME, WITH ONE TRACTOR DRIVING AND THE OTHER THREE EACH WITH THE FRONT END UPON THE REAR OF THE TRUCK IN FRONT?

A Sorry — only two towed vehicles may be transported by saddle-mount, one towing and two towed, as specified in Wisconsin Motor Vehicle Laws, Section 348.06(1) (a). Permits for more than this number have never been given, according to the State Division of Highways.

Drivers and Car Owners Happy

Qualifying Rules for '500' Changed

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The Indianapolis Motor Speedway eliminated some of the drama Tuesday from qualifications for the 500-mile Memorial Day race but made a lot of drivers and car owners happy.

Speedway owner Anton "Tony" Hulman announced that the United States Auto Club had approved a regulation change which will assure all certified cars a shot at the No. 1 starting position.

In the modern history of the race, which paid the sport's first million-dollar purse last year, the pole position has gone to the fastest car on the first of four qualifying days.

That was true, even when bad weather delayed the 10-mile runs and only one car got out on opening day.

The new regulation provides that a list be made of all cars declared ready to go at the time of drawings for the order of qualifying runs. If any of them are still ready on opening day and have not been given a chance, the list will carry over to subsequent days.

Starting Order

No matter how long it takes, the starting order for the first list of qualifiers will not be determined until all have had an opportunity to run. Cars qualified after that will line up, day by day in order of speeds, behind the original group.

Drivers often have made the 10-mile trial runs on opening day in spite of dangerous cross-winds. They are not permitted to run in rain or on a wet track.

The drivers tried to make a "gentleman's agreement" not to run on the opening day of the 1955 qualifications.

The wind was fierce but Jerry Hoyt, who said he had entered no agreement, went out in the closing minutes and won the pole position. He lasted only 100 miles in the race and had retired when Bill Vukovich, gunning for a third straight 500 victory, was killed a few laps later.

Hoyt himself died while racing less than six weeks later, at Oklahoma City.

Trials this year will be May 15, 16, 22 and 23, with the race itself May 29.

The speedway mailed entry blanks Tuesday. The fee is $1,000 per car. Hulman expects about 70 to compete for the 33 starting spots.

President's Bowl Football Game To be Proposed

NEW YORK (AP) — A President's Bowl football game to be played in Washington is only in the embryo stage at the moment but there are many who feel such a contest will become one of college football's showcase games of the future without interfering with the annual Army-Navy classic.

Plans for the game will be proposed by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame on Saturday when the Extra Events Committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association meets in Houston prior to next week's annual NCAA convention.

It is hopd that the game, to be played in the 51,000-seat R. F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium in Washington, D.C., Dec. 11 will have as the host team one of the three major service academies—Army, Navy or Air Force.

Proportion of WSU Students In Residence Halls Declines

MADISON — Although nearly 5,000 more students are living in Wisconsin State University dormitories now than four years ago, the percentage of students in the halls has declined.

The WSU system office in Madison reports that 25,019 students live in the university halls, compared with 20,170 four years ago. The university halls now house 45 per cent of the full-time students, compared with 55 per cent in 1966-67.

Students live in university-operated residence halls on all WSU campuses.

More than half of all full-time WSU women live in the university halls. This year the figures are 12,445 women students or 51 per cent, compared with 9,457 or 61 per cent in 1966-67.

For the men, the totals are 12,457 or 39 per cent this year, and 10,694 or 49 per cent in 1966-67.

Of the remaining students — 27 per cent of the men and 22 per cent of the women — live at home with their families or relatives while attending the Universities, while 34 per cent of the men and 27 per cent of the women rent private units.

Four years ago the WSU residence halls were filled to full capacity by 20,152 students. This year the total capacity in the system is 28,337, resulting in a vacancy rate of 11 per cent even though some universities have their residence halls filled.

This year most freshmen are required to live in residence halls at all the universities, and sophomores are required to live in university halls except at La Crosse and Whitewater. Next fall all WSU freshmen and sophomores under age 21 — except those who are married, veterans or living at home — will be required to live in university halls if space is available.

This year students pay about $900 per academic year to live and eat in typical residence hall double rooms.

DNR Hearing Set On Paper Firm's Pollution Order

MADISON (AP)—The Department of Natural Resources said Tuesday it will hold a hearing Jan. 26 to allow a Green Bay paper manufacturer to review a pollution abatement order.

The department told Fort Howard Paper Co. in October to add requirements to a general abatement order which had been ordered in 1969 against 16 paper and pulp mills on the Fox River.

Fort Howard called the added requirements "unreasonable and unnecessary." They include a clean-up deadline of Dec. 31, 1972.

The October order stemmed from a test complaint filed last spring by a group of citizens, including Donald O. Peterson, who was campaigning for governor.

Former Farm Boy Now Governor of Nevada

CARSON CITY (AP)—Donald "Mike" O'Callaghan who spent part of his youth on a Wisconsin farm, was sworn in Monday as Nevada's 23rd governor.

O'Callaghan, 41, was born in Winona County, Minn., and moved at the age of 6 with his family to rural Sparta, Wis. He returned when 12 to Winona, where he graduated from high school.

The new Democratic governor said his farm training helped him in politics.

"Having lived on a farm," he said, "I can go out to the ranchers and miners and really talk to them. Some nights I shook as many as 1,500 hands."

Police & Fire Beat

One of three motorists whose vehicles were involved in an accident on S. Lawe Street Tuesday complained of neck pain and was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital. Police identified him as James J. Fries, 43, 500 E. Hoover St.

Police said that David C. Henshaw, 29, Green Bay, driving the auto in front of Fries, slowed while looking for a parking spot and was hit in the rear by Fries. A funeral coach vehicle then struck the rear of the Fries car. All were southbound on Lawe, about 300 feet north of South River Street.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
Is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Win Baseball Game With Candy Scramble

BY CAPPY DICK

Boys and girls! Here's a new chance to win a big, exciting "All-Pro Baseball Game".

Five of these table games which are based upon real, big league baseball strategy, will be awarded as the national grand prizes in today's candy scramble puzzle contest. One will go to each boy or girl who sends in one of the five neatest and most original correct contest entries. The games are manufactured by Ideal Toy Corporation.

In addition, this contest offers a chance to win a local qualifying prize, five of which will be given to contestants in the Fox Cities area. These will be the amazing "Snapper Trick" which can turn you into the master magician of your crowd. Using the equipment that comes with the trick, you can hook a rubber band with a plastic rod, but no one else can do it . . . unless he knows the secret and this, of course, you can keep to yourself.

Entries that win the local qualifying prizes will compete with other qualified entries from all the other cities where this column is published when the judges search for the five that are the neatest and most original of all. Those five will win the Ideal Toy "All-Pro Baseball Games".

The contest is easy to enter. All you need do, as the first step, is unscramble the names of three candies that are jumbled in the picture at the top of this section. When you know what the candies are, clip out the picture, paste it on a sheet of paper, print the names of the candies beneath it and add your name, age, address and Zip Code number.

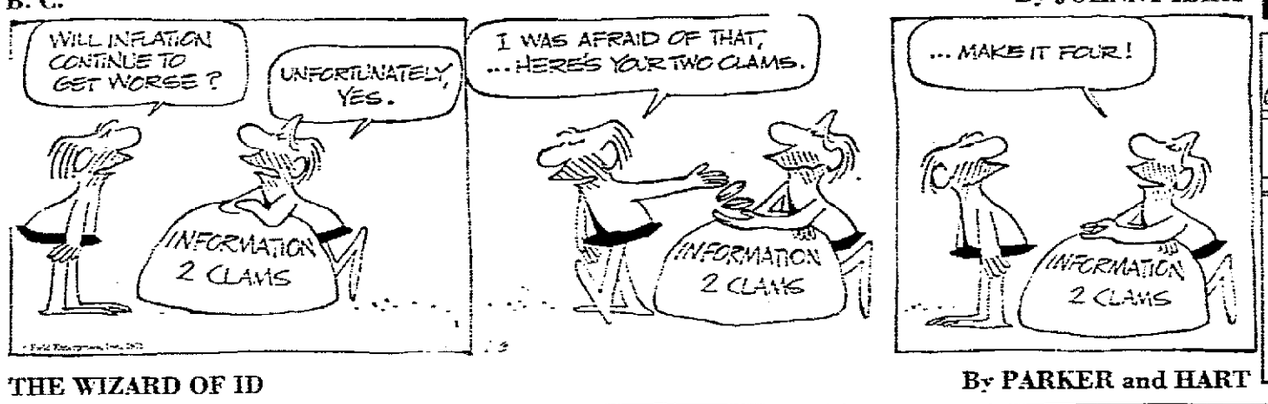

Next, decorate the entry in any neat, original way, using paints, crayons or cutouts. Finally, address it to Cappy Dick's Midweek Baseball Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Names of the prize winners will be published here. The prizes will be sent to their homes by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property. None can be returned.

Love Story In Shiloh Has Fine Acting

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-8 Channel 5 — There's a love story on The Men From Shiloh, and even though it's as predictable as Greek tragedy, good acting makes it worth watching. Diane Baker plays a woman whose brother has killed the man who was attempting to rape her. The man was an associate of Col. Mackenzie's (Stewart Granger), and the rape attempt was decidedly out of character. Mackenzie and the woman find themselves falling in love. E. G. Marshall plays the judge at the brother's trial at the opening of the story.

7-7:30 Channels 11-9 — Milton Berle plays a moocher on Make Room for Grand-daddy, the kind of man who can't ask a favor of an old friend, but rather cooks up an elaborate scheme to get the money he needs. Berle's wife is played by Peggy McCay, and she asks Danny Thomas for help.

10:30 - 11:30 Channel 2 — Medical Center has more problems than a soap opera. Nurse Brenda Scott is about to marry doctor Dennis Cole, who has a future in space medicine. Only she flunks her blood test (syphilis, it seems) and his bad back kicks up. She doesn't want to tell him, but she has to postpone the marriage until she is cured and he thinks what she is keeping from him concerns HIS illness and so on.

8-9 Channel 5 — Kraft Music Hall offers "On Stage Miss America," with Bert Parks (who else?) hosting former Miss Americas, who display their various talents.

9-10 Channel 5 — Night Gallery has two Rod Serling teleplays. In the first, Godfrey Cambridge plays an unfunny comic who runs into a miracle-working Guru (Jackie Vernon), who is a self-styled kluz. He tells Cambridge he'll work a miracle and make people laugh at him, but he warns there may be unforseen circumstances. The other story concerns ecology with Raymond Massey as a man who loves to hunt and kill. He wants to make his son into a "man" and feels the young man (Barry Brown) won't prove his worth until he has a head for the trophy room wall.

Rhonda Fleming Sues To Divorce 4th Mate

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Rhonda Fleming filed Tuesday in Superior Court for divorce from her fourth husband, Hall Bartlett, a movie producer.

The red-haired, green-eyed actress, 48, was married previously to Thomas Lane, Dr. Lewis Morrill and Lang Jeffries.

The marriage to Miss Fleming in 1966 was Bartlett's third.

New Times End Old Last Names

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — One of the most fascinating things that is taking place in America's youth culture is that no one knows anybody else's last name. The fact that American children consider last names irrelevant seems to drive parents up the wall.

My friend Zinnser tipped

me off to this phenomenon. His 15-year-old daughter was giving him a hard time in his living room the other night when I came to pay a holiday visit. It had something to do with a ski trip she wanted to take but she dashed out in tears before I could discover what the argument was about.

Zinnser filled me in. "I guess I'm one of those old-fashioned parents of the non-permissive school," he said. "The argument you just walked in on concerns a rule I've laid down that Ellen can not go skiing for more than 24 hours with any boy whose last name she does not know."

"That's a tough rule," I admitted.

"The question arose," Zinnser said, "because Ellen wanted to go on a three-day ski trip with Betsy, Therese, Randy and Steve. But all she knows about Randy is that he lives in Virginia and Steve lives in Baltimore. For two days we've been arguing about 'Randy of Virginia' and 'Steve from Baltimore.' You might say I'm having an identity crisis."

"I guess it is tough on a father not to know a boy's last name," I said.

"It probably wouldn't be a problem if she just knew one Steve. But she knows three. There is also 'Steve Who Works in the Carry-Out Shop' and Steve, the Cousin of Tina."

"Tina who?"

"That's the problem. She doesn't know Tina's last name either."

"Maybe Ellen isn't good on last names."

"It isn't just Ellen. My 16-year-old daughter, Mitzie, is just as bad. The other night she asked to sleep over at the house of a girl she goes to school with named Karen. I suggested we call Karen's parents to see if it was okay. Mitzi said she didn't have Karen's telephone number. I said we could look it up in the telephone book, but Mitzi said she didn't know Karen's last name. As a matter of fact, the only thing she knew about Karen was that her family had a house in Nag's Head, N. C.

"So now we have to refer to Mitzi's friend as 'Karen Whose Family Owns a House at Nag's Head, N. C.' You have to admit that's a mouth full.

"My son Chris," said Zinnser, "is not any better. He went up to New York last week with 'Bruce Who Owes Him $15' and 'Jim Who Plays the Drums in Some Band' and 'David Who Got Kicked Out of School.'"

"Does Chris use his last name?" I asked.

"I don't believe so. The other night I picked up the phone and the person on the other end of the line asked if 'Chris Whose Father Works for the Government' was home."

Zinnser's 15-year-old daughter, Ellen, came back in the room. "His name is Steve Jackson," she said angrily.

"And what's Randy from Virginia's last name?" Zinnser asked.

Liner Turning Into Floating Classroom

By MICHAEL SHORT
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The luxury liner Queen Elizabeth will become a floating classroom administered by Chapman College and will eventually carry up to 1,800 students on round-the-world scholastic cruises.

The 30-year-old, 1,000-foot-long retired Cunard liner which had flopped as a tourist attraction at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was sold in September for $3.2 million to the nonprofit Seawise Foundation formed by C. Y. Tung, a Far East shipping magnate.

Chapman College was a logical partner for the foundation. The college is a private, coeducational institution with 1,300 students in Orange County, 35 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

Since 1965 Chapman has offered students of its World Campus Afloat program college credit classes aboard a cruise ship.

Direct Program

The Queen Elizabeth will house the floating school beginning next September, a college spokesman said Monday after an agreement was reached under which Chapman will direct the program.

The ship is scheduled to leave Florida next month for conversion work in Hong Kong.

Students enrolling in the oceangoing college program will pay $1,125 for tuition and other fees, plus $2,450 to $2,850 for passage.

It is expected that 400 to 600 undergraduates will sail from Los Angeles next fall. With a choice of more than 80 courses and a faculty of about 30, they will study their way to New York via the Orient and Africa. A spring term cruise reverses the itinerary.

Month's Cruise

The college also plans a month-long cruise from New York to the Caribbean between terms and two summer terms in the Pacific.

Students can take physical education, home economics and courses designed to be supplemented by field work at sea or in ports of call—for example, marine biology, African studies, religions of the world, international trade and music of the world.

The first Queen Elizabeth trips will carry nonstudying passengers in unused space. When the enrollment reaches about 1,600 the students will need all the available accommodations on the 83,000-ton liner, the Chapman spokesman said.

Applications opened for the fall term recently, before prospective students knew they would have a new ship. The full and universities enrollment will be chosen by late summer, officials say.

Chapman accepts applications from its own students and from those at 13 associated colleges

Sophia Loren Tops List of Worst Dressed

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Designer Mr. Blackwell says his 11th annual "worst-dressed" woman is Sophia Loren, who "looks like a 1950 'B' movie costumed by Polly Adler."

The designer, who doesn't use a first name, gave an honorable mention on his 1970 list Tuesday to Flip Wilson, the comedian who sometimes appears as "Geraldine" in blonde wig and Mother Hubbard dress. "Looks like a basset hound in drag," said Blackwell.

Blackwell's runners-up to Miss Loren were Angie Dickinson, Gloria Vanderbilt Cooper, Shelly Winters, Jane Fonda, Jacqueline Susann, Goldie Hawn, Carrie Snodgress, Marlo Thomas and Faye Dunaway. All but socialite Mrs. Cooper and writer Susann are actresses.

Actor Cleared In Blackjack Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Audie Murphy, the most decorated U.S. soldier of World War II, has been cleared of charges that he carried blackjacks illegally.

Superior Court Judge James Kults dismissed the charges Tuesday, saying the 4-year-old Medal of Honor winner is authorized to carry blackjacks because he is a special officer on the police force at Port Hueneme northwest of Los Angeles.

Officers said they found two blackjacks in Murphy's car last May 28 when they arrested him for investigation of assault and battery against a dog trainer. A jury acquitted him of those charges in October.

Amphetamines Useful But 'Might' be Fatal

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My sister is 47 and has been on amphetamines regularly for the last four years. I am convinced that these pills are killing her. She said, if I could prove to her by a doctor's statement that they will kill her, then she would stop.

She takes 30 or more in less than a week. Is this considered a heavy dose? She told me she counted her pulse. 178 beats a minute and it stayed that way for an hour before it would slow down.

Her eyes are sunk way back in her head and I believe the pills are destroying her mental health. — Mrs. E. J.

I can't say that her pills will kill her, but I can state positively that they might — and have killed others.

The amphetamines, known as "bennies," "speed," "pep pills," and so on, loom pretty large in the current drug problem. It would be interesting to know how and why your sister started taking them, and what her present source of supply is.

The effect of these drugs is essentially on the nervous system, and habitual users are irritable, restless, can't sleep, may have the shakes. Physically, other effects of this stimulation are dilated pupils, sweating, increased blood pressure, rapid breathing, rapid and irregular heartbeat.

Your sister apparently was concerned about her pulse of 178. It should scare her. This can lead to a collapse of circulation and death.

Mental changes can include hostility, anxiety, suicidal tendencies, confusion, disorganized thought, faulty judgment — one very good reason why amphetamines should not be used to stay awake while driving. Bad judgment from this cause has been responsible for some hideous accidents. There have also been a number of disastrous occurrences not involving cars, but due to amphetamine mind-blurring.

On the other hand, there are sound medical uses for amphetamines — treating narcolepsy the habit can be hard to break and treating certain behavior problems in children. In both cases dosage is controlled by the physician.

They are used also to depress the appetite to help people reduce weight; the good results are usually short-lived, and if the drugs are continued, there is real risk of the user's becoming "hooked."

They do not cause a physical addiction, as narcotics do, but the habit can be hadr to break. Many amphetamine users have psychological problems — they may be using the drug to mask a depressive state which becomes apparent when the drug is stopped.

Your sister, I suspect, needs psychiatric care. She can be weaned of the amphetamines in a matter of 10 days or so under a doctor's care — and this is best done in a hospital where her behavior pattern can be watched as the dosage is decreased.

Yes, the 30 or more pills a

week are a heavy dose — regardless of the size of the pills, and I think you are right in being concerned about her use of the drug.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it safe to eat fish that have been soaked in salt for five days, then pickled without being boiled? Does this process destroy harmful bacteria? Would it destroy hepatitis if the fish came from a polluted river? — T.Y.

No. The salting and pickling are a preservative measure, but bacteria, as well as hepatitis virus, and some other germs, if present, will not be destroyed. You need heat for that.

Note to B.H.E.: The cause of Paget's disease is not known. Either type. There are two kinds of Paget's disease. One affects the bones; the other the breast.

New London-Readfield Phone Toll Eliminated

Wisconsin Telephone Company crews completed successful equipment tests earlier this week which clear the way for elimination of toll rates between New London and Readfield.

Starting Friday persons in the two cities can call each other as often as they wish without paying long distance charges, according to local manager, Joseph Obertin.

"It's no longer necessary to dial '1' before the number." Obertin emphasized. "Only the usual seven digits are required."

New London residents, who now make 4,700 calls yearly to Readfield, will realize an annual savings of $1,500. About the same number of calls are recorded from Readfield to New London annually.

Calls between the two cities are expected to increase three to five times with the toll free service. Obertin said the company had invested $55,000 in new lines and equipment which can handle several times the present number of calls.

A cooperative agreement between Wisconsin Telephone and the Readfield Telephone Company has made toll-free calling possible.

Obertin said the toll elimination project was part of a $400,000 investment made by Wisconsin Telephone in New London and Waupaca in 1970, raising company worth in plant and equipment in the two cities to $4 million

Included in 1970 activity was installation of $12,000 in additional long distance gear for the Waupaca central office. The new equipment will improve circuits leading to Stevens Point, Scandanavia and Ogdensburg.

Nearly $90,000 was spent on new cable in the Waupaca vicinity, the bulk of which was buried underground. The company used five and a half miles of the underground type on Highway K, and will remove the old aerial wire this year.

Obertin said continued normal growth, a new trailer court and a subdivision had increased demands on the New London central office

New trunk lines, long distance circuits, and equipment to meet dial growth was added to the New London plant last year at a cost of over $35,000. Included was an Audichron machine which now provides "Time of Day" service

A major cable installation is slated for the Chain of Lakes area in 1971, where an increasing number of cottages are being converted into year-around homes. More than $240,000 will be spent on several miles of buried cable which will provide larger capacity lines for the village of King and the lake vicinity.

There are 4,038 telephones operating in New London, up 170 from December, 1969. Waupaca has 4,794 telephones, an increase of 260 from the previous year. The exchanges averaged about 16,000 calls a day each in 1970, almost 1,500 a day more than the 1969 total.

U.S. to Pull Combat Unit Out in Spring

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command, in a surprise move, has marked at least one brigade of the 1st Air Cavalry Division for withdrawal from Vietnam in March, informed sources said today

The decision to pull out a brigade of the veteran combat unit as part of President Nixon's 6th phase cutback apparently reflects Pentagon thinking that the U.S. withdrawal should be accelerated.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said in Paris that all American combat responsibility in Vietnam will end in the fall of 1971 and that troop strength reduction is ahead of announced objectives.

It has been widely assumed by military officials in Vietnam that the last American units to be withdrawn would be the 1st Air Cavalry Division and the 101st Airborne Division, because of their helicopter mobility.

More Helicopters

The two airmobile divisions each have more than 400 helicopters for use in combat and combat support operations

The 1st Air Cavalry division, composed of three brigades of about 6,000 men each, are the last full division of American troops in the 3rd military region, which includes the 11 provinces around Saigon

Until the allied incursions into Cambodia last May, it remained the region of heaviest military activity in South Vietnam The 1st Cavalry shouldered a major part of the combat responsibility in the past two years.

New Level

The 6th phase pullout is intended to reduce authorized troop strength by 60,000 men on May 1 to a new level of 284,000

However, because troop pullouts are already running ahead of schedule, it will cut actual strength to about 275,000 men. Actual strength at the end of the 5th phase on Dec. 31 stood at 335,000, about 9,000 ahead of schedule.

The 6th phase cutback also is expected to include most of the 1st Marine Division based at Da Nang and possibly elements of the 101st Airborne and the Americal Division, all based in the northernmost 1st military region.

The U.S. Command would not comment on the troop withdrawal reports But sources said one reason why the 1st Cavalry was marked for the pullout may be a consideration that more helicopters should be made available sooner to the South Vietnamese air force

Noncombat Roles

Laird told a news conference that the first phase of the Nixon administration's Vietnamization program will be completed by midsummer. He said after that, American forces will be limited to logistics, air support and security roles.

The defense secretary and Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, stopped in Paris on their way to Bangkok and Saigon for talks on the progress of the war and the withdrawal of U.S. troops.

Laird said Phase Two of the Vietnamization program calls for training and equipping the South Vietnamese forces to take over the logistics and air support missions He said that this part of the program is ahead of schedule but requires much more time than the first phase.

Laird said that by the end of 1971, the Nixon administration will have reduced U.S. troop commitments in Asia by well over 320,000 men. This includes 265,000 in South Vietnam, 12,000 in Japan, 20,000 in South Korea, 16,000 in Thailand, 5,000 in Okinawa and 6,000 in the Philippines.

Biting Cold Chills Fox Cities

Fox Cities residents were greeted with bitter-cold temperatures this morning just as they got themselves dug out of this week's near-record snowfall

The Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. reported the season's lowest temperature, minus 13 degrees, about 7 a.m.; however, it was eight degrees warmer than the record low for this date set in 1968. The area also has had a colder chill factor this winter as the wind today hit only about 6 miles per hour.

U.S. Weather Bureau officials at Green Bay predicted the cold spell would last up to two more days but they said the weekend should bring warmer temperatures and more snow. They said Friday-through-Sunday temperatures might hit the low 20s.

Meanwhile, about 16 inches of crunchy snow cover the Fox Cities area, with greater depths where shovels and plows have piled it up. Green Bay weather officials said the cold does help to reduce the snow depth by evaporation, especially with a heavy, wet snow which fell this week.

High of 9

The Fox Cities began slipping into a cold spell Tuesday as temperatures dropped to a high of 9 compared with 32 Sunday. The coldest temperature this season before today's low was 5 below the day after Christmas.

Fox Cities residents weren't alone as the bitter-cold numbed nearly the entire nation from the Rockies to the Appalachians, causing more hardship in snow-laden areas of the Plains and a heavy drain on power supplies in the Southwest. Temperatures dropped well below zero from Nevada, Utah and New Mexico to the central Midwest. Readings in many cases failed to rise above zero throughout Tuesday

Weekend Storm

Highway crews in Nebraska and Iowa carried into a fourth day their struggle to free roads to drifts from a weekend storm that brought 10 to 20 inches of snow.

The storm and its effects were blamed for 33 deaths in the two states, most from heart attacks while shoveling snow.

Many residential streets in Omaha remained closed, and Public Works Director Gene G Jordan said it would be Friday before some could be cleared.

In Des Moines, United Air Lines said Tuesday up to 15,000 persons were waiting to fly out, many from a storm-caused backlog built up while airports were closed. The airline said it hoped to clear the backlog today.

Most major highways through Iowa were open, but many secondary roads and city streets remained closed.

Power Shortage

Albuquerque city officials warned of a potential power shortage, and the city's schools were ordered closed today to conserve electricity.

The temperature fell to 15 below in Albuquerque early Tuesday, the lowest January reading ever recorded there. The cold contracted and snapped power lines and left parts of the city without electricity for nearly two hours.

Demands for natural gas in Utah caused the Mountain Fuel Supply Co. of Salt Lake to cut service when supplies fell short. Salt Lake City schools switched to standby coal or oil heating

The mercury tumbled to —31 at Randolph, in northeast Utah, early Tuesday, —30 at Bryce Canyon and to —42 at Eagle Nest, N.M.

Near-record cold also clung to Arizona, and citrus industry spokesmen predicted a severe loss.

The cold caused light damage to the Southern California citrus crop and if it persists, agriculture officials said, there might be heavy damage to the avacado crop.

Labor to Fight Antistrike Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor has vowed an all-out fight in Congress against President Nixon's attempt to win a new antistrike law and some other high-priority White House legislation.

"It's going to be a year of legislative fighting," said a spokesman for AFL-CIO President George Meany after Secretary of Labor J D. Hodgson said the strike bill will have top White House priority.

"We will oppose compulsory arbitration any time, any place," the spokesman for the 13 6-million member labor federation said Tuesday.

Hodgson said the Nixon administration will press for the nation's first new strike law in a quarter century to deal with such "national emergency strikes" in transportation as the recently postponed nationwide railroad walkout Congress on Dec. 10 passed a special law halting that strike, but it could resume March 1.

Industrial H-Bomb

"Such strikes become something like an industrial H-bomb," Hodgson said

The Nixon strike bill will be similar to one that got nowhere in Congress last year It would give the president power to delay strikes up to 110 days, allow partial strikes against an essential industry or set up an impartial board to set a binding settlement.

Hodgson said other major Nixon goals in the new Congress include another try at the family assistance plan for welfare reform, turning most federal job-training programs over to the states federal revenue sharing with financially strapped cities and states; further efforts to get more job opportunities for Negroes, and an attempt to curb what he called astronomical construction wage increases.

The AFL-CIO opposes some aspects of most of these programs

"It's going to be a year of clashes with the administration on Capitol Hill," said the AFL-CIO spokesman.

He said labor generally approves Nixon's welfare reform to put a $1,600 floor under all families, including the working poor, but will fight the administration's compromise with the Senate requiring recipients to work at jobs paying as little as $1.20 per hour.

"We are against compelling people to work at substandard jobs at less than the $1.60-per-hour minimum wage," he said.

The labor federation also opposes no-strings-attached federal revenue sharing with cities and states, he said, and demands that any job training bill provide money for public service jobs to put the unemployed to work. Nixon vetoed such a bill, saying he opposes creation of "dead-end" jobs at government expense.

Fight Effort

Both the Meany spokesman and a source in the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department said the unions will fight any effort to curb wage increases without also limiting profits and other forms of income.

Both said the labor movement will cooperate if Nixon imposes federal controls on wages, prices, rents, profits, dividends, and bank interest rates.

Construction union sources hinted however, they could cooperate in working against some excessive wage settlements if Congress would amend the 1958 Landrum-Griffin Act to give national union leaders more control over local unions. Construction is one of the nation's few major industries that bargains largely at the local level.

One construction union source said wages are not as high as they seem because of frequent layoffs due to bad weather and recent federal cutbacks in construction funds. Construction unemployment generally runs about twice the national average, he added

"Our guys do not negotiate annual salaries They negotiate an hourly wage and they only get it for the hours they work," he said.

Military in Vietnam Adopts Tough Antidrug Program

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command today unveiled a sweeping new program to combat drug abuse among American forces in Vietnam. It includes search-and-destroy operations with marijuana plants as the target.

A 64-page directive to all field commanders estimated that more than 6,000 GIs were guilty of drug abuse during 1970, including more than 11,000 apprehended or investigated and five times as many who escaped detection

10 Months

It was the U.S. Command's first public acknowledgment that drugs have become one of its major problems

The command said that of 9,253 drug violations by American troops during the first 10 months of last year, 7,065 were for use or possession of marijuana, 1,452 for use or possession of such "dangerous" drugs as amphetamine, barbiturates or LSD, and 736 for use or possession of narcotics, mostly heroin or opium.

The Army also has reported that during the first 10½ months of 1970, there were 25 confirmed drug deaths among Americans in Vietnam, another 64 fatalities in which drugs were suspected, and more than 700 hospital cases related to drugs.

The directive from Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, orders his subordinate commanders throughout the country to conduct ground and air search operations to locate marijuana plants, and to "utilize their resources, equipment and personnel in assisting the South Vietnamese government in eradicating the unlawful growing of marijuana," when the eradication work does not interfere with military operations

The directive adds that while U.S. forces will search for marijuana, "under no circumstances will such fields, once discovered, be destroyed by U.S. forces The responsibility for destroying these crops rests with the government of South Vietnam"

Although the directive apparently is the first formal statement that destruction of marijuana fields is an objective of U.S. policy, the burning of fields has been carried out in some areas for two years or more

A great deal of marijuana grows in the grassland provinces of the western Mekong Delta. Some of it is cultivated as a cash crop, especially by members of the Hoa Hao religious sect which dominates areas of Kien Phong, An Giang and neighboring provinces

The burning of these fields, reportedly at the urging of U.S. officials, has strained relations with the Hoa Hao from time to time, sources in the delta say.

Bounty Paid

A spokesman for the U.S. Command said a bounty of one piaster, less than one U.S. cent, is being paid to the Vietnamese for each marijuana plant destroyed.

Police sources said about 700 Vietnamese were convicted last year for growing, possessing or selling marijuana, while about 1,300 were jailed for LSD or opium offenses In most cases they got three to six months in jail.

Abrams also directed field commanders to develop drug suppression programs including "identification and reduction of morale and welfare factors which may lead to drug abuse such as idleness, loneliness, anxiety and frustration."

Drug abuse suppression councils are to be formed in each command down to the battalion level. The mission of the councils will be to provide for analysis, evaluation, and monitoring

Lockheed Rejects Settlement Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. rejected today the government's offer to settle its dispute on the controversial C5 transport plane project. The firm said it would seek to recover its losses through litigation

Lockheed board chairman, Daniel J Haughton described the Pentagon's proposal for Lockheed to accept a $200-million "fixed loss" as "an excessive and unwarranted penalty."

Haughton said at a news conference that his company chose to take its case to the courts because "we have a strong legal position which should ultimately result in a finding substantially more favorable than the proposed fixed loss" offered last week by Deputy Secretary of Defense David M. Packard.

Fixed Loss

Under Packard's proposal, the Pentagon offered to settle the tangled dispute if Lockheed would take the $200 million fixed loss. Packard also offered an alternative plan—the route Haughton said Lockheed has chosen to go—which would involve drawn-out litigation.

Although Packard offered two proposals, he said the Pentagon preferred the fixed-loss plan He estimated that, if Lockheed took its case to court, it stood the chance of possibly winding up with a $25-million profit or running its losses to as high as $480 million.

In a six-page letter to Packard, Haughton said Lockheed, in choosing to go to court, considered several factors, including "the soundness of our legal position . . the inequity of our being required to accept a $200-million fixed loss to resolve all outstanding legal issues and the responsibility we owe to our company and our shareholders"

The chairman said Lockheed, the nation's largest defense contracting firm, probably would first take its case to the Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals and if a favorable decision should not be forthcoming there, would appeal to the U.S. Court of Claims.

He estimated litigation could take a minimum of two years and a maximum of five years to complete.

Demonstrator Files Complaint

John Wayne Denies Peppery Protest

BY BILL STALL
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) —A reported obscenity-spiced confrontation between actor John Wayne and a group of Vietnam war protesters waving Viet Cong flags was being investigated by police today. Wayne denied the incident occurred.

Gregory Kirkwood, 22, filed a complaint with police Tuesday seeking to have Wayne charged with disturbing the peace. Kirkwood said Wayne called him a dirty name

Kirkwood told a reporter that Wayne became angered when he saw Viet Cong flags held by the protesters outside Memorial Auditorium Monday night after the film star and other top entertainers appeared at a gala marking the second inaugural of Gov. Ronald Reagan, a former actor.

A spokesman for Wayne, 64-year-old star of films dating back decades—many with patriotic war themes—said the actor was advised of reports of the incident and commented: "Mr Wayne said there is no truth to the rumor or the story"

Kirkwood said he and his friends said nothing to Wayne, who came toward them on spotting the red and blue flag with a yellow star and shouted, "What the hell is that?" Kirkwood said Wayne repeated the question, this time using an obscenity.

He started to come toward us and the police had to step in and restrain him." Kirkwood said "He should have been arrested We would have been if we had said those things"

Police said the complaint would be routinely investigated and a report sent to the district attorney's office, which would decide whether a charge should be brought.

Guard Officer

Another witness was Lt Robert Chapman of the California Army National Guard, a transportation officer on hand in civilian clothes to see that stars of the show—including Jack Benny and Frank Sinatra—got to the airport or to their hotels.

"They started confronting him with obscenities, but at first he didn't say anything," Chapman said in describing Wayne's departure from the auditorium.

"One of the protesters got his attention by very profusely waving a Viet Cong flag at which time he commented—I can't give you a direct quote—he stated to the effect that he didn't like the Viet Cong flag"

Chapman said Wayne and the young demonstrators exchanged remarks, but that he could not hear whether Wayne used obscenities. He added that at one point Wayne "took one step forward to answer a response but there was no show of force toward them."

Heavy Snowfall May Result in Light Paychecks

Many Fox Valley laborers who found themselves snowbound Monday will find their checks smaller on payday.

Several of the area's major employers reported today that persons who came in late or not at all Monday will not get paid for the missed time, although in some instances, they would be given an opportunity to make up the time.

Some employers reported that workers who were tardy or absent because of the storm would still get full or at least partial pay and in some cases the time off would be assessed against their emergency leave allotment.

Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. does not have a fixed policy to cover every snow storm, a personnel official explained. He said the last such problem occurred in 1961.

"A Little Late"

The decision was made concerning the latest storm that workmen who were "a little late" in getting in would still receive full pay. But if the workman missed a large part or all of the day, he can either make up the lost time by straight time pay on Saturday or could take the loss in pay.

An official of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. Appleton office said "no decision has been made" on whether to pay workers tied up by the storm. "We're still discussing it," he said.

Appleton Mayor George Buckley declared a snow emergency in the city until noon Monday and at the same time closed City Hall until the afternoon. City Hall employes who made it to work in the afternoon got a full day's pay, Buckley said, but those who didn't come in after the snow emergency was lifted will be docked a half day's pay.

At Appleton Coated Paper Co., employes who missed work will lose a proportionate amount of pay although arrangements will be made so they "can work it back sometime" if they desire.

Hourly employes at Thilmany Pulp & Paper Co., Kaukauna, will not be paid for time they missed. A further complication arose, a company official said, over the provision that in order to collect New Year's holiday

A large number of Outagamie County Courthouse employes did not come to work Monday. Arrangements will be made to allow for makeup time, according to the county administrator's office.

Kimberly-Clark Corp. employes who got to work by noon Monday were docked only a half day of emergency leave and those who were absent the entire day lost an equal amount of emergency leave. Pay checks reportedly were not affected.

pay, the employe must work the day before and the day after the holiday period.

However, workers who missed Monday, are expected to receive holiday pay, the official said. He said that each such case has been weighed individually, and all have been approved.

Post Corporation, publisher of The Post-Crescent, reported that because there are different pay provisions for different departments and because some employes are union members and some are not, varying arrangements will have to be worked out concerning pay for those who didn't come in Monday. Some hourly employes could lose pay, it was reported.

Council Report

Snow Removal Operations Discussed at New London

NEW LONDON — Snow removal, after the 14- to 16-inch storm this week, was among the topics of discussion at the City Council meeting Tuesday night.

Public Works Director Robert Martin, told the aldermen and audience that this was the worst storm, with the heaviest snow at one time, in the past 40 years. He explained that his department's goal had been to have at least one lane open in each street by Monday night.

He added that this meant that the plows had to return and widen the streets as the clean-up progressed. Martin reported that crews were out at 2 a.m., Monday and continued to plow, with an hour break for supper until 11 p.m. before stopping.

The crews were out again at 2 a.m., Tuesday and plowed until 5 p.m. Martin also reported that they would start work again at 4 a.m., today.

City Equipment

Martin stated that the city's equipment was not "the best," pointing out that two of the graders were over 18 years old, and that they broke down "daily."

"Vehicles on the streets are our biggest problem," he said. "If we can keep cars off the streets we can do a more effective removal job."

Art Schmidt, a business owner, complained that his street had not been plowed until afternoon, and Mrs. Adolph Pichelmeyer complained of the lateness of her plowing and the fact that the plows cleaned the streets three different times, plugging up her driveway each time.

Martin explained that the crews had to come back to widen the streets, and that priorities on streets still were being set. He added that one plow had changed its pattern in order to aid an ambulance in coming through the plugged streets.

The need for more equipment was stated, but Mayor S. W. Krostue pointed out that this type of storm was rare, and that it became a matter of economics.

Waupaca Court

In other action the council passed a resolution requesting that Waupaca County Court Branch 2 not be eliminated. The city disbanded its office of municipal justice at the time of the formation of the court. Krostue also pointed out that there were many cases that couldn't be handled by a municipal justice.

Martin reported on a meeting he attended in Wisconsin Rapids, pertaining to the city's share of TOPICS (Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety).

Martin said the amount of red tape on the project was increasing. Among the new requirements was one which stated that only a Wisconsin Registered Engineer could do the work. Martin suggested that the council investigate what action, if any, was needed to take in procuring the funds.

The matter was referred to the Department of Public Works

New London to Build Safety-Office Complex

Three Years of Planning Finished

NEW LONDON — After three years of study and planning, construction will begin shortly on a new safety building and city office annex to cost the city $399,446.

The building will cost the city far in excess of $185,000 it has bonded for the structure, however, at Tuesday night's meeting the City Council felt rising building costs made it necessary to build the entire complex at this time.

The price of the structure had already risen 10 per cent over the estimated costs on the complex, and 30 per cent over the estimate of the safety building itself.

To pay for the building the city will borrow $160,000 — half coming from each bank in the city. The city will pay $20,470.40 per year, at an interest rate of 4.75 per cent.

On the city's assessed valuation of $14,931,050 this will mean an annual tax increase of $1.371 per $1,000. The city's ratio of debt at the time of bonding for the $950,000 issue was 3.73 per cent. The loan will raise the debt ratio to 3.76 per cent.

The balance of the money for the building will come from $212,000 presently appropriated, including the $185,000 bond. Other funds will be $4,500 appropriated for office plans, $15,000 from the fire department's equipment and truck fund, and $7,946 from unappropriated surplus.

The motion to build the entire structure passed on a 9 to 1 vote of the council, with 3rd Ward Ald. Walter Fredericks, casting the only dissenting vote.

Fredericks told the council that he was convinced the city needed a "fire barn," but questioned entering into the construction of the rest of the complex. He remarked "When it comes down to the additional expense and building castles in the air, we are doing the taxpayer an injustice."

Alderman Fredericks predicted that the city could maintain the present city hall for another 20 to 50 years, and stated that the present building was constructed better than the "inferior" building now being approved.

"We have had a nightmade, and I think we are building a bigger one," Fredericks stated.

Alderman Fred Noack disagreed with Fredericks, noting that he was sure the taxpayer would want the structure built now

Ald Jerome Freiburger said he didn't "want to be accused, five or 10 years from now, that when we decided to build the building we only looked at the costs and not ahead."

He pointed out that the idea of doing things just for now had been present in the city for a long time. As an example he cited the sewer separation work presently underway, that was ordered done in 1924. "The taxpayer has been paying too long for things that weren't done," he stated.

Alderman Richard Genske pointed out that the present trend in costs was about a 10 per cent annual increase. He stated that he felt the entire complex should be built.

Mayor S. W. Krostue went on record as favoring the construction of the entire building. He cited costs and the available financing as his reasons for supporting the action.

In presenting the final resolution on the building the safety building committee presented a list of 25 possible changes in the structure. They recommended 10 and rejected 15.

The 10 recommended were: changing the interior plaster to drywall; omitting the phone booth in the lobby; omitting a folding door in the multi-purpose room; changing the brick screen to wood; changing the seven overhead doors from aluminum to wood; deleting the roof band; deleting a dimmer switch; changing the ceilings to tile; omitting lockers, and putting in a smaller generator.

The changes amounted to a savings of $11,142.

The council approved the changes and the building of the entire complex. Fredericks cast a "no" vote for the construction of the building, letting of the bids, financing, and the resolution to build.

The building will now be in the hands of the Public Properties Committee, with the help of the Safety Building Committee.

Contracts will be awarded in the near future.

A. J. Despins, Green Bay, will be the general contractor; Lindsley Plumbing and Heating, Green Bay, will handle the plumbing: Ted Kuck Co., Sheyboygan, the heating; and Stephenson Electric, Appleton, the electrical work. Rice and Urban are the architects and engineers.

Austin Is 5th Candidate

Oneida Chairman Seeks County Post

Norman Austin, supervisor from the Town of Oneida, has become Outagamie County's fifth declared candidate for the newly created post of county executive.

Austin, 51, announced his candidacy Tuesday afternoon, saying his decision was reached after "consulting with many friends, businessmen and local government leaders who expressed an opinion that the new executive should be a man who is acquainted with all phases of government, both on the administrative and legislative levels."

He said a survey he made "disclosed that the voters who approved creation of a county exective last spring want an executive who will represent all of the people in the county, not an executive who is a member of a minority clique whose ambition is to control county government."

Austin, who has been on the county board since 1961, is chairman of the board's Board of Social Services. He also has been chairman of the Town of Oneida for the past 10 years. Referring to previously announced candidates, Austin said, "the county executive does not have to be an attorney or an accountant. He must use good common sense and have a knowledge of all phases of government. He must be willing to listen instead of dictating."

Austin said the executive must be humble and not tempermental in his dealings with the public and other public officials.

"I come before the voters of Outagamie County not as an attorney or an accountant, but as a public spirited citizen and public official who wants our county to move forward and not backward."

He cited his budgetary experience as Town of Oneida chairman, saying he annually prepares a true executive budget for submission to the town board and town electors.

Austin said he believed he could give the voters "the type of leadership they expect and deserve."

He is married and has eight children. He is employed by the Chicago and North Western Railroad

Previously announced candidates include Appleton Mayor George Buckley, County Administrator Alvin Woehler, Supv. John Schreiter and Kimberly Public Works Director Patrick Flanagan

Buckley and Woehler are the only two who have formally taken out nomination papers.

Executive candidates need only 20 signatures to qualify them for the ballot. If more than two candidates file by the Jan. 26 deadline, a primary will be held in March.

Mail Will Cheer Youth in Hospital

MILWAUKEE — It's "mail-call" time again for 20-year-old Gordon Schroeder, youngest patient ever to undergo two triple-bypass vein graft operations.

Schroeder, the son of Mrs. Betty Schroeder, 124 W. Atlantic St., Appleton, is back at St. Luke's Hospital for the treatment of complications arising from his second operation, July 29.

At the time of last summer's surgery, Fox Valley residents buoyed the lad's spirits by sending him hundreds of cards and letters, expressing sympathy and wishing him well.

Now, Gordon says, he would appreciate a similar outpouring of mail.

His address is: Gordon Schroeder, Room 1010-B, St. Luke's Hospital, 2900 W. Oklahoma St., Milwaukee, Wis.

"It really helped," says the lucky youth of the hundreds of pieces of mail that flooded into his room after a brief appeal was published in The Post-Crescent. "It meant a lot to know that the whole Fox Valley was rooting for me."

A straight-A student at the UWGB-Fox Valley campus, Schroeder has managed, despite recurrent heart trouble, to become an Eagle Scout with the Bronze Palm; to become a member of Phi Eta Sigma honor society, and to win the Elks' Club's "most valuable student" award.

He is a member of the "Concerned Hearts Club," and has been working both as part-time switchboard operator at The Post-Crescent, and as a lecturer in the Fox Valley Center's planetarium.

Blood Given At Clintonville Despite Snow

CLINTONVILLE — The Red Cross Bloodmobile visited Clintonville Monday afternoon as scheduled, despite weather that had traffic at practically a standstill.

Fifteen pints of A-positive blood were collected to be used in open heart surgery for a 42-year-old Madison man.

Sixty-four persons volunteered, of whom 60 were used as donors at this years first visit to Veterans Memorial Building. The quota had been announced as 115 pints.

Everett Pierre, blood program chairman for the Clintonville chapter of the American Red Cross, reported that a three-gallon pin was presented to Marlyn Bailey, two-gallon pins to Mrs. Richard Graf and Mrs. Iris Ranker, and one-gallon pin to Lyle Harrison.

Some donors used snowmobiles for transportation to the center, Pierre said.

Lutheran Churches Plan Congregation Meetings

The annual congregational meetings of Peace Lutheran and Nelsonville Lutheran Churches will be conducted Jan. 18 at Peace. Both meetings will begin at 8 p.m.

Officers will be elected. The nominating committee at Nelsonville is Clair Packer, William Frizzell, Mrs. John Romurdson, Mrs. Packer, and Arthur Thompson. At Peace it includes Frank Onan, Lonnie Krogwold, Keith Borgen, and James Guyant.

Chilton Council to Work on Resident's Roadway Dispute

CHILTON — City Council members found themselves in a bind after property owners on Adams Street requested that a roadway past their homes be used as a city street.

Appearing before the council Tuesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin J. Hoffmann and Jack Seipel, Adams Street residents, who live across the property owned by the Earl Andersons of Rio, former Chilton residents.

The roadway in question was once a cowpath but through the years became wider with use by the residents. The Hoffmanns and Seipels have in their deeds a 25-foot setback which is dedicated for road purposes. The property owners wish to deed this setback to the city so it can be declared a street.

However, the Andersons, who own property to the west of the Hoffmanns and Seipels, strongly object to the roadway becoming a city street. They have refused to allow the city to plow the snow on the roadway.

It was noted by both Hoffmann and Seipel that Mrs. Anderson charges them $1 per year for the use of the roadway into their homes.

In a letter to the council, Mrs. Anderson said she offered to sell the land to both property owners, and they did not seem interested.

Both Hoffmann and Seipel denied this.

The entire matter was turned over to the planning commission for study, and it will decide if it is feasible to put a street in that section of the city.

In other business, the council passed a resolution for the overall zoning ordinance. The ordinance had been on the council agenda for more than a year, however, after changes and a public hearing, the ordinance is now ready for enforcement.

William Enger Jr., city attorney, said it is a sophisticated ordinance, and that he assumes there will be changes made as time goes on.

"The basic thing is, we don't want to stop progress in the community, but we do want to have control," Enger said.

Mayor Harold Thompson presented a plaque to former Ald. Emil Yoder in recognition of his work with the council for 17 years. Yoder was an alderman from 1953 to 1970 when he resigned and moved into a different ward.

Possibilities of flooding the tennis court at the high school for an ice rink will be investigated by Walter Muehl, public works director.

Ald. Donald Parsons told aldermen that he had been confronted by mothers requesting that some type of skating rink be made for children. The river pond normally used for skating does not have good ice due to early snows.

Clintonville OKs No Route Yet

Snowmobile Law Adopted

CLINTONVILLE — An ordinance to regulate the operation of snowmobiles, patterned after state statutes, was adopted by the City Council here Tuesday night.

Mayor Frank Sinkewicz suggested that the ordinance be adopted, excluding the designation of where snowmobiles may be operated and that the ordinance committee met again with representatives of the Truck City Riders Snowmobile Club. He said that perhaps, by the time of a special meeting, the council can have an amendment designating routes. (The special meeting may be held Jan. 13.) Until then it is illegal to operate a snowmobile on any city street.

The ordinance regulates the operation of snowmobiles and establishes penalties for violations.

Ald. Calvin Waite, chairman of the ordinance committee, reported on two meetings with the snowmobile club people and the agreement on routes for entering and leaving the city. Members of the safety committee attended the meeting, and at that time, most seemed to be in agreement.

Some Complaints

"Since the time of the snowfall, we have had a little bit of a setback following complaints of property owners to the police department, but with all respect to the safety commitee, we do respect anybody's own personal opinion," Waite said.

Ald. Fred Hangartner asked Waite if he meant you can drive (snowmobiles) around any time of the night, like they are doing now, even 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning.

Waite said this would be up to the council. So far there hadn't been any time limit put on the operation, he added.

Hangartner answered, "I think if you are going to drive around the City of Clintonville, on any of these streets with residents, that they should not have to put up with anything like that."

Near Accidents

Ald. Leon Steenbock said, "I think any ordinance we pass will be almost impossible for the chief of police to enforce. If you pass a law that they can't run on any streets, I don't know how he possibly could enforce it because before he could get there, those machines could be gone."

Ald. Evan Hedtke said, "After what I saw yesterday, I wouldn't be in favor of running on any streets."

Comments then were made by several about witnessing near accidents this week with snowmobiles.

Waite replied, "this is true — you are bound to have a few narrow misses and probably even accidents. But all in all, we are asking a trial period on this type of ordinance. Other cities have it and other cities . . . are experiencing same problems."

Hedtke retorted, "Cal, you just said we are bound to have accidents and even though we are bound to have them, we should open the streets up to them, and possibly lose a life — Oh, no." He then related watching the operation of a snowmobile over a high bank on Sixth Street on Monday.

Concensus was that all snowmobile operators can't be condemned by the actions of a few.

Willing to Help

City Atty. Ralph Lauer told the council and interested parties attending the meeting that he state law says that cities may designate streets as snowmobile routes. If a city does not designate streets as a snowmobile route, under the state law you may not operate on them. "Right now, it is illegal to operate on any of the city streets," he explained.

Herb Reimer, president of the Truck City Riders Snowmobile Club, told the council that the club has a membership of 300 persons. 80 per cent of whom are adults, and all would be in favor of helping the law enforcement agency in town, and reporting any violations that show up to members of the club. The club would back any ordinance that comes up, he said. The only thing it asks for is some consideration for a good number of people who live in this town to get in and out of town

Reimer told the council that snowmobile trails have been laid out that go to several other towns and places.

Ald. Donald Thompson stated that his family takes a trailer to get to the starting place when they want to go snowmobiling.

The motion to adopt the ordinance deleting the section designating snowmobile routes in the city was made by Hedtke and seconded by Ald. Robert Kitzman. Two aldermen, Steenbock and Waite, voted "No." One alderman, Ralph Hall, was absent, and the vote was 7 to 2 in favor of adoption.

Obey Explains

Farm Bill Allows Payment For Milk Ordered Dumped

The omnibus farm bill passed by Congress early in November continued a program to indemnify dairy farmers for milk they are required by the government to dump because it is contaminated with pesticides.

Under this program, begun in 1964, dairy farmers can qualify for these payments only if their milk is contaminated with pesticides which have been approved for use by the federal government, and only if it was found that these pesticides had been properly used

So far about 400 farmers in over 30 states have benefitted from this program, according to Rep David R. Obey in his weekly newsletter.

In addition to continuing the program for farmers, the general farm bill extended the indemnification program — for the first time — to dairy manufacturers as well he noted

"I proposed such a program in a bill I introduced with 10 other Congressmen last year, and I fully support its being included as part of our general farm programs," he said. "Just as the problem of pesticides can cause severe financial hardship if not ruin for the farmer, it can do the same to the cheesemaker if not ruin for the farmer, it can do the same to the cheesemaker or creamery which unsuspectingly uses contaminated milk and consequently has its products removed from the market. In fact, at least two such instances have occurred in Wisconsin in the past year.

I have made it clear during my 9 years in the state legislature and in Congress that I believe we must take steps to halt the use of persistent pesticides. I have authored legislation to ban DDT and other chlorinated hydrocarbons.

"Unfortunately neither the Congress nor the U. S. Department of Agriculture has acted to prohibit the use of these hard pesticides. As long as this is true, I believe we have an obligation to protect innocent persons who through no fault of their own become the victims of the use of these compounds.

"While funds for the indemnification program for farmers were provided in the agriculture budget for 1971, no such funds were available for indemnification for dairy manufacturers. Fortunately, however, an amendment I proposed in the House Appropriations Committee — to provide $300,000 to fund this program — was adopted by that Committee and later by the full House of Representatives. It was also accepted by the Senate and was part of an appropriations bill recently sent to the President for his signature."

"It may be that none of this money will ever be needed and spent," Obey concluded, but now we know that 'insurance' is available if a farmer or manufacturer becomes the victim of irresponsible pesticide use."

Civil Air Patrol Still Searching For Lost Plane

Reports Received of Light Craft Bound For Holland, Mich.

A Civil Air Patrol search picked up today where it left off Tuesday to find a light plane bound for Holland, Mich. . . that never arrived there Sunday.

The plane, a Cessna 172, was piloted by Donald Triplett, 24, and carried his wife, both of Holland. They left Ladysmith in Rusk County at 10:30 a.m. Sunday when it met with no success.

To planes from Outagamie County, and six others from Milwaukee, Iron Mountain and other cities joined in the search suspended at nightfall Tuesday when it met with no succes.

Air Patrol based at the Outagamie County Airport, said the eight aircraft aloft concentrated their efforts on the area between Sturgeon Bay and Algoma in Door and Kewaunee counties.

Wooden said search planes from Chippewa Falls, Eagle River, Racine and possibly Superior would join the party today. He said that since the search began Tuesday, about 30 reports of low flying planes received from citizens had been checked out without confirmation.

Wooden said Triplett apparently intended to fly north around Lake Michigan but may have changed his plan because of the severe snowstorm. If he had flown south on a straight path between Ladysmith and Holland, Wooden said, the aircraft would have passed almost directly over the Fox Valley.

Triplett did not file a flight plan, the officer said. Wooden said the Civil Air Patrol is looking for a downed plane with a blue body and white wings. Thick snow cover would seriously impair visibility of such a downed craft from the air, he said.

Wooden said search efforts would likely be concentrated in the Algoma-Sturgeon Bay area again today, because of the number of reports of a low-flying plane. Many of the reports were turned in by persons who reportedly heard something overhead about the same time the Triplett plane would have passed over the area.

The Cessna aircraft Triplett left Ladysmith in has a full range of instruments, according to the officer, but Triplett is not believed to be qualified as an instrument pilot. The only survival equipment on board was a flashlight, Wooden said.

Triplett, and his wife, who were visiting in Ladysmith, were lightly garbed, Wooden said. Triplett supposedly had on only a jacket when the couple left Rusk County, and his wife wore a dress

Safety Series Set for Pilots Around State

Aviation Seminars Aimed at Reducing Causes of Accidents

A series of general aviation safety seminars aimed at reducing the number of accidents among non-professional pilots, will be held around Wisconsin during the next four months.

The seminars, which are free of charge, are being sponsored jointly by the Wisconsin Division of Aeronautics and the Federal Aviation Administration's general district office in Milwaukee

Program content will be in the areas determined by a review of recent accidents to have been the greatest factors in state aircraft accidents. The public is invited to attend, and all pilots are encouraged to participate.

Seminars consist of four, three-hour programs to be held one evening a month in eight Wisconsin cities: Milwaukee, West Bend, Eau Claire, La Crosse, Madison, Janesville Wausau and Green Bay.

Green Bay sessions will be held at Ashwaubenon High School Jan. 27, Feb. 1, March 1 and April 5.

The first program will include an introduction; instruction in weather; accident causes; and pre-flight — airman and system Program two will cover: pre-flight — airplane; weather; and aircraft control. Program three will cover violations, and how to avoid them; weather and takeoffs and landings. The final program will cover FAA regulations; weather; stall and spin; and a critique.

The same programs will be given each month at alternate locations to enable anyone who may miss one of the sessions in his hometown to travel to another nearby city for the same program.

Instructors will be Jerald Mertens, accident prevention specialist for the FAA district office in Milwaukee, and Duane Esse, chief of safety for the Wisconsin Division of Aeronautics.

Ownership of Proposed Plamann Sewer Is Debated

Who would finance and own a sewer main providing Appleton sewage treatment for Plamann Park is a central question to be answered before city and county officials know whether they can get together on the county-proposed project.

City officials, ideally, would like the county to finance the project and then turn over the sewer to city ownership, to prevent the sewer main from becoming a barrier to the city's distant future annexation of the sewers' users.

But, county officials warned that rural members of the county board may lack sympathy toward the city's position.

The City Council's Streets and Sanitation Committee told Appleton supervisors on the county board Tuesday that they aren't opposed to the project, but until the questions are answered they aren't ready to make a firm committment either.

Estimated Cost

Supvs. Nick Karras and Herman Ripp explained the county's request to the council committee. Public Works Director Robert Miller said the project would be technically feasible, and he made a rough estimate that the main would cost $225,000.

But Miller and the committee were less certain of the financial feasibility.

Miller said eventually $100,000 of the cost could be recovered by charging new users for connecting to the main.

But he added it could be 20 years before the city annexes the residential area between the present city limits and the county park, and the city refused to provide sewer service to private users unless their property is annexed.

He said he would recommend undertaking the project only if the city and county "can arrive at some way of avoiding this quarter-million-dollar burden on the city" for 20 years.

Choices for County

Karras and Ripp were somewhat optimistic, pointing out that if the city doesn't serve the park, the county is left with choices between building a separate sewage system or connecting to the Town of Grand Chute system.

Karras said an independent system would cost about the same as a main to the city, making county financing of the main a logical possibility. Costs on connecting to the Grand Chute system are unavailable, however.

There was uncertainty over legal questions, including whether the county has power to levy special assessments against private property owners connecting to the main.

Miller pointed out the city should have control over the design and use of the sewer, to avoid conflicts with the rest of the city system. The city would have to own the sewer, if annexation could be made a requirement for using it.

County Financing

Miller suggested the county should finance the project, turning it over to the city. The city would collect connection fees as new users are annexed and they connect. The fees would be turned over to the county.

Karras said turning over ownership to the city if the county provides the funds "might provide a major obstacle — for those rural supervisors especially."

But he said the county is under pressure to act, due to the current poor condition of sanitary facilities at the park. He said soil conditions also create serious problems for residents of the area.

Karras said the county board hopes to issue bonds for other purposes this summer and would hope to finance the sanitary service project at the same time, hopefully building the main this year.

But Miller and City Engineer Thomas Harp said due to other projects in their offices this summer the earliest they would be able to supervise such a job would be next winter.

Oldtimers Win Alumni Game

CLINTONVILLE — The results of one of the three alumni basketball games played Saturday night was reversed in the news item appearing in Tuesday's Post-Crescent.

Coach Carl Bruggink originally reported the wrong result of this game.

Action Delayed On Eliminating Surveyor Post

Committee Wants More Information On Ponath Ruling

Further legal clarification will be sought before Outagamie County acts to attempt to eliminate the office of county surveyor.

The county board's executive committee agreed Tuesday that it wanted firmer footing before proceeding with a recommendation from acting Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath that the board declare the post vacant.

The committee decided to hold off for a month action on Ponath's recommendation while seeking further information on whether it can abolish the post during a term of office.

The surveyor issue arose when county officials, checking the surveyor law passed in 1969, learned the surveyor was required to replace at least 5 per cent of the corner markers in the county each year and that the cost could run as high as $200 per day.

James Hebert, a registered land surveyor, was elected to the post in November and took office Jan. 1. The only funds provided in the county budget for 1971 covered the $1,500 specified in the law as the minimum salary.

Ponath then was requested to research the law to determine whether the county could abolish the post. He concluded that the county could and suggested a resolution questioning the constitutionality of the surveyor law and seeking to have the state eliminate the post.

Supv. Eugene Kloes, Appleton, agreed. "This man (Hebert) has gone to the post and has been elected," Kloes said. "If we had done this before the election we would have shown good faith. I think we would be open to a suit if we abolish it now."

Also agreeing was Supv. John Schreiter, Appleton. "We are stuck and might as well face it," he said.

Shells Rip Boat Laden With Fuel

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong gunners on an island in the Mekong River shelled a South Vietnamese landing boat loaded with gasoline and other fuels today. The boat exploded, sending greasy black smoke several hundred feet into the air.

Guarded by two South Vietnamese gunboats hugging its sides, the boat was hit as it tried to run a blockade about 25 miles south of Phnom Penh. It was taking the fuel to the Cambodian capital, where gasoline is rationed and in extreme short supply.

The boat was ablaze and drifting downstream late in the afternoon.

A South Vietnamese officer said the number of casualties aboard the boat or to the ambush troops from the gunboats' return fire was unknown.

The attack occurred from an island in a narrows of the Mekong, witnesses said. The boats were ferrying the fuel from Neak Luong, seven miles further downstream, and were trying to negotiate a series of enemy ambushes from islands and from the east bank of the river when the landing craft was hit.

Two tankers arrived in Phnom Penh today after enemy gunners shelled their convoy escort twice Tuesday, the Cambodia command announced.

The command said one sailor was killed and three wounded in the ambush 39 miles southeast of the capital.

Premier Lon Nol's government has been forced to convoy petroleum cargoes up the Mekong from South Vietnam since November when Communist troops cut Highway 4, the land link between Phnom Penh and the coast.

Gasoline now is severely rationed in the capital. Government officials said last month the city had less than three weeks' gasoline, but river convoys have reached the capital since then.

Officials Call for Help With Snow Emergency

KAUKAUNA — City residents can help themselves and their neighbors in this time of heavy snow through a little extra effort, according to city officials.

Residents are asked to shovel snow away from fire hydrants near their homes to make them more easily seen by firemen in the event of a fire. The little time it takes to shovel a hydrant free could mean the difference between a major tragedy or minor fire, noted Fire Chief Ted Smits.

Street Department Foreman Don Schaefer said, motorists can aid by utilizing the sand and salt boxes placed at important intersections in the city. Over 50 boxes have been set out for use and only about eight are employed, according to Schaefer.

When motorists think slippery conditions consitute a hazard, they can assist by spreading a few shovels of sand and salt onto the street.

Crews check all boxes periodically to keep them supplied.

Combined Locks To Fill 4 Posts

COMBINED LOCKS — A village president and three trustees are to be elected for two-year terms in the April election this year. Interested candidates are to return signed nomination papers by 5 p.m. Jan. 26, according to Village Clerk Mrs. Irene Rehmer.

Incumbent candidates include President Dan Williams and trustees George Bosch, Henry Wulterkens and Gerald Wydeven.

Free Food Program Aids College Students

OSHKOSH — College students will be eligible for free food from the state, if they meet certain requirements. Previously, they had not been eligible at all.

John Spanbauer, head of the program in the county, said Monday a letter from the state clarifying eligibility requirements made it clear that applicants voluntary removal from the labor force didn't make them ineligible.

Students make up the largest number of people who have voluntarily taken themselves off the labor market, but the category includes strikers and seasonal workers who don't look for other jobs.

Students have to meet need and household requirements. Need is purely economic. For a family of two, income can be $255; for three, $285; four, $310; five, $355, on up to ten, $560. Income is what is left in the pay envelope after tax deductions have been made.

Spanbauer stressed that the letter's definition of household might make it tough for most students living together in off-campus housing to qualify. They have to be one economic unit.

"There has to be complete sharing of income and expenditure — food, fuel, water, rent and medical costs have to be borne in common," he said.

For example, if five students lived together and one got income from home or was claimed as a dependent on his parents' income tax, then the group couldn't meet household requirements because one of them belonged to another economic unit.

To qualify, food must be purchased in common and cooked in the same kitchen.
